Nation Is Far Better Off Under Roosevelt, He Says in Talk.

Prosperity Planned As Campaign Issue

Borah Plans Ohio Race; Knox Visits Capital for Parleys.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

National prosperity will be cited by the Democrats as the answer to all attacks on the Roosevelt Administration, Postmaster General Farley asserted last night in a radio broadcast which added spice to the rapidly warming Presidential campaign.

Indulging in sarcasm, invective and ridicule, Mr. Farley professed to feel sad over the "predicament" confronting the Republicans in selecting a Presidential candidate and the enormity of the task of persuading the country that Mr. Roosevelt should not be re-elected.

He predicted that President Roosevelt "will next November receive as great an indorsement from a grateful country as he did before." He staunchly defended the New Deal and undertook to reply in detail to charges that the President had broken campaign promises, particularly in budgetary and financial matters.

"Answers All Attacks."

"The constantly rising tide of national prosperity is the answer to all the attacks on the Roosevelt Administration," Mr. Farley, who will manage the Roosevelt campaign, asserted. "The contrast between the state of the Nation today and what it was on the advent of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the White House is all the retort required to the sprawling barrage that is proceeding from the Republican national committee and being paid for by the special interests that are seeking the return of the system so emphatically repudiated by the people in 1932."

The Postmaster General, who also is the chairman of the Democratic national committee, in simulated sorrow, contended that the Republicans were without Presidential timber in their ranks. He asserted that former President Hoover and Senator William E. Borah are the only aspirants known to the American people and predicted that each would eliminate the other from the race. The other candidates he branded as "political lightweights" and suggested that they "shake dice or shoot craps for the nomination."

But Senator Borah went on with his campaign plans, telling a delegation from Ohio, which called on him that he would "go through with any program" they thought necessary. This was tantamount to a declaration that the Idahoan would authorize the filing of his candidacy in Ohio, although this has not yet been decided.

To Have Delegates.

The Ohio delegation, comprising former Senator Roscoe C. McCullough, Daniel E. Morgan, former city manager of Cleveland, and Julius Cohen, Cleveland attorney, declared that they could say "with certainty that Borah will have delegates in the national convention from Ohio."

"Senator Borah has more strength by far with the voters in Ohio than any other candidate whose name has been mentioned," the group contended in a formal statement, which added that the Idahoan's status in the State had been left to them and that whatever they regarded as necessary to advance his cause would be done.

Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and also aspirant for the Republican nomination, was in the city again, quietly calling around on Capitol Hill but abstaining from issuing political claims or statements. He spent some time yesterday with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan's favorite son for the Presidency.

Col. Knox broke his silence yesterday, however, to issue a brief statement of hostility to the Townsend old-age-pension plan and to call on all other candidates to declare themselves on this issue.

"I have said, and still believe,"

White House and Smith Trade Denials in Tilt Over Invitations

ALFRED E. SMITH.

Underwood & Underwood.
MRS. F. D. ROOSEVELT.

'Happy Warrior' Insists He Hasn't Received Frequent Bids; First Lady Says He Has; Blast at New Deal Presaged.

A formal statement from the White House yesterday took cognizance of the controversy over the invitation to Alfred E. Smith to visit the Roosevelts on Januray 25, and denied that any "spokesman" had said the former New York Governor had received frequent invitations to the Executive Mansion.

Smith, in his sixty-second birthday interview in New York, yesterday, denied the correctness of the statement previously attributed to the "sopkesman." He already had indicated that he had declined to accept the January 25 invitation extended by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Smith will be in Washington January 25 to address the American Liberty League, outstanding opponent of the New Deal.

"Let's keep the record straight," Smith said, according to the Associated Press.

"I notice by the public press that a spokesman for the President is responsible for the following statement:

"'This is not the first time that Mr. Smith has been invited to be an overnight guest at the White House. At least once a year Mr. Smith has been invited to pass either a night or a week-end there, but he never saw fit to accept even one of these invitations.'

"That statement is false.

"Since the inauguration of President Roosevelt I received one invitation, through Secretary McIntyre, when it was known that I was to attend a meeting of the trustees of Catholic University at Washington.

"That invitation was to tea at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, in the company of John J. Raskob and Dr.

Franklin Hoyt Soon May Quit As FAA Chief

Resignation Believed Due in Few Days; Ailment of Throat Blamed.

By Felix Bruner.

Resignation of Franklin C. Hoyt as head of the Federal Alcohol Administration is expected to be announced within a few days. Hoyt is understood to have told President Roosevelt that a throat ailment has compelled him to give up his duties.

Hoyt, a New York Republican, was appointed by President Roosevelt last September to head the Treasury Bureau, which succeeded the old Federal Alcohol Control Administration. His appointment followed retirement of Joseph B. Choate, who actively opposed transfer of the alcohol control functions to the Treasury.

Hoyt was a judge in New York City for 25 years. He is a grandson of Salmon P. Chase, Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of President Lincoln. In 1929 he was awarded a temperance essay prize of $25,000. He sponsored the New York constitutional amendment authorizing a children's court and for some time was on the bench of that court.

Stormy History Cited.

Resignation of Hoyt will mark another chapter in the short but stormy history of Government administration of the liquor business since repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The original Federal Alcohol Control Administration operated under NRA code provisions. After the Supreme Court decision last May it virtually went out of existence and for a time there was little possibility of enforcement.

When Congress began consideration of a new law the proposal that its administration be put under the Treasury Department was opposed by nearly everyone concerned, except some members of the House Ways and Means Committee. The law was enacted in a final compromise near the end of the session. Among the opponents of the plan was not only Choate, whose resignation was looked upon as a

Medicine Relieves Pain at Once, Dr. Krantz Says At Science Session.

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 30.—Instantaneous relief for the pain of angina pectoris and complete cure for the disease itself was claimed today by Dr. John C. Krantz, jr., of the University of Maryland, in a report he read to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The cure, he said, is a drug called trichlorethylene, one cubic centimeter of which is sniffed into the nose when the pains and heart compression of angina pectoris begin. It gives relief within one second.

Used to date on 20 human patients, Dr. Krantz said it had given permanent relief to 18 of them. He explained that these 18 were apparently completely cured, with no other treatment. The other two cases failed to benefit, he said.

Dr. Krantz is professor of pharmacy in the medical college of the University of Maryland. Joining him in the report were C. Jelleff Carr, Ruth Musser and William Harne of the University of Maryland.

500 Cases Treated.

Dr. James C. Munch, of Philadelphia, announced in an interview at the meeting that he had also obtained highly favorable results in the treatment of angina pectoris and high blood pressure with a substance taken from the pancreas, a gland in the abdomen.

Suspected of being a hormone, it is extracted from the pancreas after the insulin, hormone secreted in the pancreas which is used in the treatment of diabetes, is removed, he explained.

To date 500 human cases of angina pectoris have been treated with the substance, Dr. Munch added, and the attacks have been stopped in 85 per cent of them. In about half of the cures the attacks never recurred, he added, and no harmful effects were felt by the patients who were not relieved.

According to statistics of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., the occurrence of angina pectoris in the United States has been growing rapidly. In 1915 the death rate was

Bonus Forces Plan Revised Patman Bill

Thomas Orders Changes in Measure to Pay $2,000,000,000.

U. S. Bonds for Federal Reserve Proposed as Alternate.

By Robert C. Albright.

Revision of the Patman plan for payment of the bonus through a $2,000,000,000 currency expansion was projected in the Senate yesterday, definitely presaging another battle for inflation when the bonus moves toward a show-down vote in both houses early this season.

Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat, who drove the Patman plan to Senate passage last session, instructed the Senate's legislative drafting service to prepare amendments embodying in more detailed form, the Patman principle.

The Senate expansionist leader at the same time ordered drafts made of alternative amendments to be offered in the event a compromise bill for bonus payment in bonds appears likely to pass.

"Eliminates Profit.

His bond payment alternative, Thomas said, would eliminate what he called "bankers' interest profits" by contracting with the Federal Reserve banks to finance bonus cash payment at a stipulated nominal fee.

Under this substitute plan, non-interest-bearing bonds would be issued by the Government, and deposited in Federal Reserve banks, which in turn would write checks against them payable to the veterans, Thomas said.

The Oklahoman insisted this could be accomplished by making the Federal Reserve banks, which are privately owned institutions, the agents of the Government for the purpose of financing bonus payment. He said the Government could contract with the Reserve banks for a sum equal to "cost" of the operation, which he estimated at "a fraction of 1 per cent."

Bonus for Banks.

"Unless this method is followed, private banks would receive a bonus, as well as the soldiers," Thomas argued.

"Veterans, in order to get cash, would be forced to sell their bonds to the banks at a discount. And the private banks would receive the 2½ per cent, or greater, interest rate on the bonds."

Both plans advanced by Thomas were viewed here as highly inflationary, and likely to project the inflation issue once more into the midst of the bonus controversy.

The proposals were advanced by the Oklahoman as Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, showed some willingness to compromise on his plan for paying the bonus in $2,000,000,000 of expanded currency.

Nevertheless, Patman called his House bonus steering committee of 21 to meet Thursday, 24 hours in advance of Congress' opening, to map bonus plans for the session.

"The method of payment is now secondary with me," Patman told reporters, "but I still intend to insist on my method, so long as it does not stand in the way of veterans getting their money. Payment of the bonus will be my first consideration."

Silent on Bonus.

Speculation on a possible bonus "compromise" acceptable to the Administration was not set at rest by the President yesterday. At a White House press conference, Mr. Roosevelt failed to take advantage of an opportunity to restate his opposition to the bonus.

The President, who vetoed the Patman bill last session, was asked if he had changed his attitude on the bonus. He replied by smilingly inquiring if there was going to be a bonus bill. If there is to be one, he told reporters, he would have to wait and see what was in it.

Until then, he said, it was an "if" question, and would continue to be an "if" question even after a bill is put forward. This is a reply often made by the President in response to questions of a problematical nature. It means in effect, "we will cross that bridge when we come to it."

The Patman bill automatically comes to a vote in the House January 13, as result of a "discharge" petition successfully circulated last session by the Texan. The Ways and Means committee, however, still has it in its power to circumvent the vote, by report-

Snow or Rain Is New Year's Day Forecast

Snow or rain will greet Washington on New Year's Day, the Weather Bureau predicted last night.

The precipitation will be preceded by fair and warmer weather today, according to the forecaster.

But despite the prospect of rising temperatures, motorists this morning probably will find streets slippery and ice-coated.

Early this morning the temperature was expected to go down to 12 degrees above zero, 4 degrees lower than yesterday's minimum. The slush-laden streets will be frozen, but will thaw again later in the day.

The 24-hour storm, compounded of a moisture-laden disturbance which came out of the South and met a wave of cold air from the Northwest, loosed 6.3 inches of snow on Washington, which, with that which previously had fallen, thickened the gleaming carpet to 7.3 inches.

1,200 Clear Streets.

Working valiantly through the night, 1,200 District employes, regular and temporary, had all main thoroughfares in such condition that accidents were few and street cars and buses were not far off their schedules.

Ice in the Potomac River, however, seriously impeded water traffic, and the Norfolk-to-Washington boat was an hour late on its arrival here yesterday morning.

District officials responsible for snow removal said their men would be kept at work until they had completed the task of removal or rising temperatures had made their work no longer necessary.

E. Barrett Prettyman, corporation counsel, told the Commissioners they had no authority to compel motor bus companies to remove snow from their routes or stops. The Commissioners, he said, have authority to compel the street car company to remove snow from the intersections where the street car lines meet.

Snow in Florida.

The storm, most severe of the season, apparently had blown itself out last night after moving east from Alabama and then moving up the Atlantic Coast.

Even Florida, whither the wealthy have been fleeing for sunshine and warmth, felt a touch of the disturbance, snowflakes falling at Marianna, in the northwest section of the State.

In Atlanta, where a two-inch rain and freezing weather made the city a vast skating rink, damage was estimated at $2,000,000. Lights, heat and telephones were missing from many homes, and street car service was stopped during the week-end.

While there were no casualties here growing out of Sunday's storm, the death toll for the holiday period mounted when William P. Harrison died at Gallinger Hospital.

Fell On Ice.

Mr. Harrison, 55, of 1103 New Hampshire avenue northwest, slipped on the ice Christmas Day and suffered a fractured skull. He first was taken to Casualty Hospital. He was transferred to Gallinger Hospital and at the same time booked for intoxication at the First Precinct Station.

All of Maryland felt the storm, and in some sections snow was so deep that the roads became impassable for motor traffic.

Farmers also abandoned their automobiles and trucks in favor of horses and mules.

Food supplies were reported running low at Easton and Centreville. Six trucks started from Easton to get bread and only one was able to buck the snow-clogged roads on the return trip.

Tangier Island and Smiths Island in Chesapeake Bay still were hemmed in by ice that formed a week ago. However, Mayor William H. Bradshaw, in the nearby

Ethiopians Closing In On Italians; Mussolini Delays African Drive

Agencies to Rule Business Created

22 Corporations Set Up by Premier in Move to Balk Boycott.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Dec. 30.—Premier Mussolini today showed he foresaw a long economic siege of Italy by announcing creation of a new industrial organization controlling all of the nation's business and labor.

This control will be exercised through 22 corporations. An initial meeting of the corporations was called for February 29.

Il Duce, who considered weighty matters of finance with his cabinet, told his ministers a delay in military operations in Ethiopia was "absolutely indispensable."

Territory already occupied had to be consolidated "to facilitate future movements of several hundred thousand men," he added.

The government today announced the deaths of 52 Fascist fighters in a battle Sunday on the northern front and a victory in the southern zone.

Victory Claimed.

The announcement said:

"Yesterday an Eritrean column reached the Uarieu zone in the Tembien, joining there a column which won the December 22 battle at Abbi Addi. (Ethiopia claims to have recaptured Abbi Addi in this battle).

"In resulting skirmishes, patrols of the enemy suffered heavy losses.

"On our side 44 National soldiers were killed and 12 wounded. Eight Askaris were killed and 2 wounded.

"On the Somaliland front the warriors of Sultan Olol Dinle, who have submitted to us, reconnoitered in the Webbe Shibeli region, defeating near Gabba strong enemy concentrations.

"The aviation strongly supported Olol Dinle's action."

Mussolini issued a blast at the already dead Anglo-French peace plan, asserting its terms were "very far from satisfying the minimum requirements of Italy, especially regarding the security of frontiers and of Italian citizens."

He gave out no budget estimates, but his cabinet approved the normal figure of 20,291,000,000 lire (abqut $1,623,280,000). Receipts were estimated at about 20,311,000,000 lire for the next fiscal year.

The current budget has been supplemented by many extraordinary war appropriations.

Gifts Held "Plebescite."

Premier Mussolini said the economic siege had been successfully combated and gold given by the people was a "plebiscite" of approval of the African "cause."

Last September the government appropriated 2,500,000,000 additional lire for colonial purposes.

In October Il Duce authorized 414,000,000 lire as an extra appropriation for "new construction and transformation of naval craft."

Through loan conversion operations, the treasury is raising huge sums to met the war expenses. The Bank of Italy had nearly 4,000,000,000 lire in gold October 20, when it discontinued publication of statements.

Italians said the treasury realized 100 tons of gold worth 1,250,000,000 lire through voluntary gifts from the public, including wedding rings, December 18.

'Asinine,' Ross Says Of Hopkins' WPA Rule

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 30 (AP).—Gov. C. Ben Ross tonight termed "asinine" a ruling which prohibits needy persons, not on staff relief rolls between May 1 and November 1, from obtaining WPA jobs at sustenance wages.

"The ruling made by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins is asinine," Gov. Ross said.

"What we need at the head of the works division in Washington, D. C., is a practical man with a reasoning mind.

"Hopkins' ruling has a tendency to lower the people's opinion and confidence in his ability."

LIEUT. GEN. HUNTER LIGGETT.

Hunter Liggett, 1st Army Head In France, Dies

Veteran of Indian Warfare Commanded Million Men Against Germans.

Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, one of the greatest military tacticians in American history, died yesterday in Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, after an illness which for nearly a year had kept him confined to his bed. He was 79 years old.

Once an Indian fighter, and later hero of the Argonne-Meuse offensive, he had been an active fighter for his country since his first foray against hostile Sioux tribesmen in 1879.

With him at the time of his death was Mrs. Liggett, who had moved to the hospital in the Presidio with him last January. There are no children.

During the World War Gen. Liggett was one of two men given the rank of lieutenant general in active overseas duty. One million men of the American Expeditionary Forces and the French Armies were at one time directly under his command. In 1921 he retired from active service with his pre-war rank of major general, but by act of Congress he was given the higher rating in 1930.

Selected by Pershing.

With the weather desperately cold, the thermometer was 40 degrees below zero, Liggett, then a second lieutenant, led a platoon into action against Chief Gall, Indian leader of the Custer Massacre, at the Battle of Poplar Creek. From then on his life was an active one. He saw service against the Indians; at the Mexican border, in Cuba, the Philippines and in France.

Gen. Liggett commanded the First Army Corps in the fighting lines in France and because of his brilliant record as a military tactician Gen. John J. Pershing, in 1918, placed him at the head of the First American Army, just before the November "big push" which led to the war's ending. Later he headed the Army of Occupation at Coblenz, Germany.

After his retirement he and Mrs. Liggett lived quietly as civilians in San Francisco. A little more than a year ago they took a pleasure trip to Hawaii. Upon his return he was taken ill, and with Mrs. Liggett moved to the hospital where he died yesterday.

As lieutenant general in charge of the First Field Army in 1918, Hunter Liggett actively led the largest body of American troops ever to take the field at one time under a single command.

His organization consisted of five Army Corps of 20 divisions and additional corps and Army troops aggregating more than 1,000,000 men and 5,000 guns.

Selassie Says Foe Uses Poison Gases

Emperor Also Charges to League That Fascists Kill Civilians.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Dessye, Dec. 30.—Ethiopian armies were reported closing in on Makale tonight in a pincer movement aimed at compelling the Italians to retreat from their advanced positions.

Private advices from the front brought this information as Emperor Haile Selassie dispatched a bitter complaint to the League of Nations that the Italians were using poison gas in violation of international law.

The King of Kings also asserted the Italians have "burned churches and proceeded with systematic extermination of the civil population," during their withdrawal from Scire and Tambien regions.

While the right and left wings were drawing in on the Fascist flanks near Makale, small mobile bands ranging from 1,000 to 5,000 heavily armed warriors continued slashing at Italian communications to "soften up" the invaders for a powerful Ethiopian thrust from east and west. The general attack has not yet occurred, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

Seeks to Bulk Advance.

The Emperor still sticks to his strategy of making the present Italian positions so "hot" for the Fascists that they will be stalemated until the January rains turn roads into mud pools and compel a withdrawal to safer grounds.

Ras Seyoum and Ras Kassa are believed in command of the front-line movement now under way, with Ras Mulu Gheta, imperial war minister, holding back near Lake Ashanghi with his main army as re-enforcement.

Unconfirmed reports said there was fighting southeast of Makale, possibly involving some of Mulu Gheta's advance guard.

The Emperor's poison gas charge to Geneva was the first time the central government has made this accusation, although lesser officials accused the Italians of hurling chlorine gas bombs in the south several weeks ago.

The King of Kings asserted gas bombs were used on the troops of Ras Imaru in Tambien December 23.

After reciting his allegations regarding despoliation of churches and extermination of civilians, the Emperor said:

"Now on December 23 the Italians made use of asphyiation and poisonous gases, which are a new addition to the already long list of violations of Italy's international engagements."

Both Italy and Ethiopia are signatories of The Hague Convention barring use of poison gas, Ethiopia having conformed hastily about the time Italy began her invasion.

Officials said Imaru reported many of his soldiers were suffering lung ailments and blindness as result of the bombing. However, the Emperor's foreign military advisers believe gas—even if used extensively by the Italians—will be of little effect in the mountains.

First confusion due to the explosion of gas bombs among the traaps of Ras Imaru was overcome and the warriors re-formed orderly lines, it was said.

4,000 Defenders Slain.

Asmara, Eritrea, Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Losses to the Ethiopian army since December 15 were estimated officially tonight at 4,000 dead, counted on the battlefield, as compared with 381 Italian soldiers—mostly native Askaris—killed in action.

These casualties came during the first effective Ethiopian offensive maneuvers since hostilities started. The main line of Italian defense in the Takkaze River sector, on the northwestern front, has been withdrawn strategically as result of the Ethiopian drive.

Car Plunges Into River At Miami; Driver Killed

Miami, Fla., Dec. 30 (U.P.).—Out of control after a slight impact with another automobile, a car crashed through a bridge rail and plunged 25 feet into the Miami River tonight, carrying its driver to death. Sam H. Harris, 60, of Miami, was the only occupant. His body was recovered.

Illinois Relief to End Jan. 15; Police Called to Guard Office

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—A complete shutdown of Illinois relief activities, effective January 15, was ordered today by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary, whose resignation from office is effective January 1.

"With less than half the January needs—$5,865,911—available or in sight," Reynolds said, "there is no other alternative."

Funds available for the first half of January total about $2,700,000, including an estimated $2,000,000 as the relief portion of the 3 per cent sales tax, cash on hand and available funds in the down-State counties.

Leo M. Lyons, at present relief administrator for Cook County and named to succeed Reynolds as executive secretary, made no comment.

Reynolds will return to his duties as executive director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, from which position he took leave in 1932 to head the State relief organization.

Decision to shut down relief activities was reached in a conference at Springfield last night, attended by members of the commission and Gov. Henry Horner, who last week personally appealed to President Roosevelt for help, but thus far no Federal action to take 65,000 employables from relief rolls has been announced.

Police were called today when guards at relief headquarters on Michigan boulevard became alarmed during vocal protests of 500 relief employes who had beeen discharged as part of a staff-reduction program. There was no violence.

Schuschnigg Plans To Become Monk

By the Associated Press

Vienna, Dec. 30.—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, whose wife was killed in an automobile accident five months ago, unofficially was reported tonight to be considering retirement to a monastery.

Members of the Austrian federal Diet said the chancellor is contemplating the move, but the official Press Bureau of the chancellory denied there was any basis for the report.

"That impression may prevail among some members of the Diet, but there is nothing to it at the moment," one official said.

Members of the cabinet are said to be trying to persuade the chancellor to remain in office until the international situation is eased.

Schuschnigg has been chancellor since the assassination of Engelbert Dollfuss, 18 months ago. Vice Chancellor Ernst von Starhemberg has gradually increased his powers until he is described as the virtual head of the government.

Japan and China Agree on Parley

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Nanking, Dec. 30.—Japan has agreed in principle to China's proposal that relations between the two countries be readjusted through diplomatic negotiations, the foreign office announced tonight.

The announcement was made in a formal statement giving the reorganized cabinet's long-awaited declaration of policy in the face of "Japanese aggression."

It came while the government was under fire from patriotic organizations because of its policy of nonresistance to the penetration of the Japanese army in north China.

The statement carefully avoided references to Japanese military aggression or to the demands of the students and patriotic societies that the government order the army to fight against the Japanese in the north and announce a cardinal policy of attempting to regain the lost Manchurian provinces.

4 Schools Fight Costly Tomb For Man Giving Them Million

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 30.—Four educational institutions today moved to curb the projected splendor of a millionaire's tomb, cost of which would reduce the residuary estate they are to share.

In his will, written in 1930, William C. Gotshall directed that the accumulated $1,700,000 fortune of a successful engineering career be used to the extent of $250,000 to $350,000 to build a mausoleum for his body.

Last August, when he died, the fortune was valued at $1,100,000. In a letter written two months earlier he had revised plans for his tomb to propose merely that the structure be in keeping with his station in life and his estates.

Briefs filed by Lehigh University, Union College of Schenectady, Washington University of St. Louis, and Rensselaer Polytechnique Institute, residuary legatees, intimated their belief that to follow the will literally would be "unreasonable," "indecent," "unsocial" and "a monument to folly."

They suggested $75,000 to $150,000 would be ample.

One brief said that to take the mausoleum clause at its word would be to "convict the testator of having, in the worst possible taste, created a fund for the purpose of self-glorification and publicity for ages to come."

Surrogate James A. Delehanty directed Executor James J. Farren to erect the mausoleum "at such expense as in your judgment is consistent with" the dead man's station in life and the net amount of his estate.

Accord Sought By Competitive Carriers Here

Rail, Motor, Water Lines Hear Eastman Ask Harmony Efforts.

Joseph B. Eastman, transportation co-ordinator, yesterday opened the first of a series of conferences at which railroad, truck and shipping interests will seek to thresh out problems and issues arising from the Government's movement to regulate motor bus and truck operations as well as the rail lines.

The "harmony meeting," suggested by Eastman some weeks ago, brought representatives of the National Industrial Traffic League, the American Trucking Association and the Association of American Railroads. L. F. Orr, St. Louis, shippers' representative, was chosen temporary chairman, with John V. Lawrence, of the trucking interests, temporary secretary.

Eastman, addressing the meeting, expressed his faith in "face-to-face discussion," and added "I realize you will be unable to compose all your differences, but you could agree on some which would otherwise result in litigation."

Rates Believed Talked.

Rates and the basis on which they should be set was understood to have been a topic at the closed round table discussion.

Officials of the Interstate Commerce Commission are said to feel that their new task of regulating 200,000 truck lines in addition to the railroads, will present many new problems, and may result in important changes of rate-making policy.

In the past the I. C. C. has heard representatives of truck lines who protested against certain railroad rates as being ruinously low to the truck business. Yet the commission has set few minimum rates, and then only in rare cases where two competing railroads threatened each other's stability with a rate war, or where a proposed rate was markedly out of line with the national structure.

Congress Acted.

The recent session of Congress, which permitted existing truck lines to file their present rates exempt from review by the commission for the present, saved that body the almost impossible task of devising a new rate structure for trucks which would be fair both to them and to the railroads.

But the commission foresees that when either railroads or trucks ask changes in existing rates, a controversy will follow which must be decided by the commission. If the rate change is upward, shippers will protest. If downward, the competing forms of transportation will argue that the reduction makes a fair profit impossible.

I. C. C. officials foresee difficulties if it should adopt a policy of letting one form of transportation fix its rates on the basis of what its competitor charges. Such a rate policy would lead to rate wars ruinous to both railroads and trucks, and the commission expects to fix many more minimum rates than it ever has been called on to do in the past, when railroads were its only concern and shipping interests the only other important factor to be considered.

New Policy Forecast.

It is widely predicted that the commission will adopt a policy of fixing new rates on the basis of actual cost, rather than on the requirements of any competitive situation. This would include all items, including depreciation and fixed overhead. Then business would go to that form of transportation which could operate most cheaply, all items considered, or most conviently for the consumer.

In determining actual costs, however, the commission faces many future problems. The capital value of a railroad's right of way and the cost of building and maintaining track would be charged against a railroad's rate structure. But there is a difference in the case of buses and trucks. Many States believe that they tax buses and trucks sufficiently to pay for the cost of building and maintaining the public highways they use. But many railroads probably will appear with an array of facts to prove that bus or truck rates do not represent the actual cost of operation, plus their fair share of the cost of the highways on which they ply their trades.

Farmers' Price Index Shows Rise for 1935

By the Associated Press.

The Agriculture Department today said the farm price index December 15 was 110, an increase of 2 points from November 15 and 9 points from December 15, 1934.

The index is maintained to show the relation between prices that farmers pay for goods bought and prices received for products sold. The period 1909-14 is used to represent 100.

The department said farmers received higher prices during the past month for lambs, sheep, veal calves, hogs, wheat, potatoes, rice, butterfat and apples and lower prices for corn, cotton, cottonseed and eggs.

All groups of products except cotton, cottonseed and grain and some miscellaneous items were said to command higher prices than a year ago.

3 Argentine Ministers' Resignations Accepted

Buenos Aires, Dec. 30 (AP).—President Agustin P. Justo tonight accepted the resignations of three cabinet ministers, in what was considered an attempt to overcome as much as possible the opposition to the Radical Party and other dissenting groups.

Federico Pinedo, minister of finance; Luis Duhau, minister of agriculture, and Manuel de Iriondo, minister of justice, withdrew from the cabinet and were replaced by Roberto M. Ortiz, Miguel Angel Carcano and Ramon S. Castillo.

Relief Thief Jailed.

Denver, Dec. 30 (AP).—District Judge Henley A. Calvert dubbed James Hayes "the meanest man of 1935" today. He sentenced Hayes, clerk in the Denver Relief Transient Division, to from five to ten years' imprisonment for forging food orders on the bureau, obtaining the food and selling it.

On the Hustings

Democratic Jitters Over Straw Votes; Pierce Urges Ban From Mail; Amenities in Politics.

APPARENTLY the Democrats are beginning to get the jitters over the results of some of the straw ballots being conducted to ascertain how the political winds are blowing. First readings of these barometers indicate stormy weather ahead for the New Dealers. Representative Walter M. Pierce, Oregon Democrat, believes there should be a law against straw ballots.

This Oregonian supporter of President Roosevelt contends that straw ballots "can be and are so framed as to bring responses chiefly from discordant elements," that questions are worded trickily and that there is jobbery in the lists. He thinks that "a straw ballot easily could be planned to throw a majority in a certain way and by creating a bandwagon movement get 1,000,000 votes right off the bat." People like to ride with a winner, he opines.

Mr. Pierce's solution for this catastrophe threatening the New Dealers is to bar straw ballots from the mails. He has sponsored a bill to that end. He proposes to solicit the support of Postmaster General James A. Farley in its behalf and wants the Democratic national committee to go on record against straw ballots.

* * *

Aside from the fact that the Democrats had no objection whatever to straw ballots in 1932, when the country was blowing cold on the Republicans, objection might be made to the Pierce plan on the ground that it would deprive the Postoffice Department of several millions of dollars of revenue in campaign years. Thus Jim Farley would be denied the pleasure of claiming surpluses and giving the impression he is the greatest Postmaster General since Benjamin Franklin.

* * *

Mr. Pierce, however, is on sound ground when he suggests that an investigation might be made into the methods by which national straw ballots are conducted, how they are financed and whether there is any motive behind them except to ascertain honestly the sentiment of the country. Such an inquiry by the Elections Committees of Congress would serve a useful purpose and none should object to it.

Mrs. Elmer A. Benson, wife of the Senator-designate from Minnesota, told the Associated Press in St. Paul that she was so thrilled over the appointment of her husband to the Senate that when he is sworn in Friday she probably will cry out "yoo hoo" at him. Those who get tired of the stuffed-shirt atmosphere of the Senate ardently wish she would.

* * *

Alfred E. Smith's declination of an invitation to be an overnight guest at the White House when he comes to Washington to flay the New Deal before the American Liberty League emphasizes the important part social amenities play in formulating political trends and policies. As campaigns approach, social secretaries frequently become more important than political secretaries.

The classic story of how the Nation's course was possibly altered by a failure to observe social amenities is the Hiram Johnson-Charles Evans Hughes incident of 1916. It will be remembered that when the present Chief Justice was campaigning for the Presidency in 1916 he failed to cross a hotel lobby to shake hands with Senator Johnson, the dominant Republican figure in California. Senator Johnson reportedly was angered by the incident. California, by a few hundred votes went for Woodrow Wilson, re-electing the latter. Now and then someone wonders whether the United States would have entered the World War had that handshake taken place.

* * *

Undoubtedly many White House invitations to breakfast, luncheon, dinner or a musicale are issued for political purposes. But enemies as well as friends are made this way. Senator Johnson thought much less of Herbert Hoover after the latter omitted his name from a dinner list than he did before. White House Christmas cards and telegrams last week heralded the approach of a campaign year to many persons.

* * *

"Hello, you old spender," was Lewis Douglas' greeting to WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins at a recent dinner party.

"Why, bless your soul, if it were not for my spending you would not be making so much money writing magazine articles!" retorted "Happy Harry."

Farley Cites Prosperity

the Chicagoan asserted, "that this plan is a cruel hoax upon the aged people of the country."

Incidentally, the Knox managers are playing a careful game and hope to benefit from Senator Borah's avowed purpose to enter primary contests for delegates in Ohio, Wisconsin, New York and other States. For instance, Col. Knox will not file his name in Ohio, but will lend encouragement to the favorite-son candidate, expected to be either Robert A. Taft, son of the dead President, or Representative Chester C. Bolton.

The Knox camp thereby hopes to win the favor of the Ohio Republican organization leaders, who, they believe, will easily defeat the Idahoan in the State. As one figure in the Knox camp sees it, their candidate will go to Cleveland in June with the support of 200 delegates; Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, will have approximately the same number; Senator Borah will have about 100 delegates and the remainder will be either uninstructed or temporarily pledged to favorite sons. It is that block of votes the Knox managers are seeking.

Other Developments.

Other political developments of the day were:

An announcement by former Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts that he would support Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic Presidential nomination next year if the New Yorker is willing.

A prediction by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, that there would be a controversy over the formulation of a platform by the Democratic natinal convention, but that President Roosevelt would be renominated by acclamation.

A proposal by George W. Kline, chairman of the Nebraska Progressive League, that Senator George W. Norris head an independent campaign committee to support President Roosevelt in six Midwest States.

A demand, according to the Associated Press, by Joseph L. Kaplan, of Boston, general counsel of the National Support-Roosevelt League, for a Senate investigation of the American Liberty League.

Denial by Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, of Republican charges that his State was flooded with Federal relief funds on the eve of the recent gubernatorial election.

Defends New Deal.

Mr. Farley, after some sarcasm at the expense of the Republicans, turned to a defense of the New Deal He contended that "our President has performed a great job" and argued that, irrespective of whether it liked the AA or the tax-the-wealthy program or any other single measure, the country generally realized the improvement in economic conditions nationally.

Unable to combat "the fact of the restored solvency of business, our political opponents fall back on the statement that the renewed prosperity is not because of what the Administration has done," the Democratic chairman asserted. If it were not the acts of the Administration, what brought about the change of the last three years, he demanded to know.

"They talk of the President having repudiated his promises, but I have yet to hear them mention any promise that has not been carried out or is not in process of being carried out," he asserted.

As for the promise of a balanced budget, Mr. Farley contended that "balancing a budget is not something that can be done in the flickering of an eyelash, particularly when millions of people are still on relief.

Moreover, he asserted the Roosevelt Administration did not invent the deficit but inherited from the Hoover regime "an entry in the red of something over $3,000,000,000." If the recoverable assets are deducted from the Roosevelt deficits, he added, the amount of New Deal indebtedness "is not very much more than the Hoover deficit."

U. S. Credit Good.

He maintained that "the Government's credit is so good that it can borrow at a very much lower rate of interest than it did before" and thus the cost of carrying the present debt is less than the cost of servicing the smaller debt of the Hoover period.

Mr. Farley argued that "there is nothing frightful" about the amount of the debt, adding that "nobody need fear that the Government is not strong enough to take care of it."

Denying Republican charges of "unbridled extravagance," the Democratic chairman asserted that "the money is not being burned up, it is not being thrown into the sea but it has gone into the arteries of trade and industry," adding that "it has paid wages and bought raw materials and it is now safely among the deposits of our citizens in the banks."

He likewise denied charges that public works funds were being used for political or patronage purposes and contended that some of the delays in approving allocations were due to Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, a Republican. He complained that "in the present propaganda melee an evil construction must be placed on every act whether the President had anything to do with it or not."

Roosevelt Foes to Meet.

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Dec. 30.—Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia tonight said Democrats opposed to the renomination of President Roosevelt will meet soon in Macon, Ga., to launch their campaign formally.

He announced that John H. Kirby, of Houston, Tex., will be here Saturday of this week for a conference to select the convention date and to apportion the number of delegates from each of the 17 Southern States expected to participate.

"This meeting will start the formal campaign to defeat the renomination of President Roosevelt in the next Democratic convention," Talmadge said.

Kirby is head of an organization called the Southern Democrats for Preservation of the Constitution.

The Macon gathering will be a regular convention, the Governor emphasized, adding that a declaration of principles would include many planks of the 1932 Democratic national convention which he charges President Roosevelt has failed to carry out.

New Deal Costs To Be Reduced, Byrns Predicts

House Speaker on Radio; Foresees Short Session, Townsend Defeat.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns in a radio talk last night assured his listeners that there need be no fear of increased expenditures by the Administration in the future.

The talk was in the nature of a "prospectus" of the coming session of Congress. Byrns prophesied:

Eventual return of relief administration to the States and local communities.

Defeat of Townsend old-age pension legislation.

Explaining that he was speaking only for himself, Byrns expressed the opinion that neutrality legislation should give the President wide discretionary powers.

President Writing Message.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt continued to work on his budget message and on his annual message on the State of the Union. He indicated the budget message would be sent to Congress ntxt Monday. As the message on the state of the Union always precedes the budget message, it is presumed it will be delivered Friday.

The President has not yet indicated whether he will appear before the joint session of Congress to deliver his message.

Byrns predicted that the session would be short, declaring that Congress should be in a position to adjourn in April or early in May.

Speaking of expenditures, he said:

"I have no hesitation in prophesying that at the close of the coming session it will be found that there has been a reduction in appropriations for the next fiscal year, considerably below those which were made for the present fiscal year and which, in my opinion, represents the peak of the Administration's financial efforts to restore normal prosperity to the Nation."

Answering critics of Government spending, the Speaker pointed out that many of the emergency appropriations are self-liquidating.

Admitting that relief expenditures have been "considerable," Byrns added that "with the return of normal conditions the States and local communities should resume this obligation, which distinctly belongs to them, and care for those in their midst who actually deserve and need help."

Reassures Business.

"I have referred to all this," he added, "to show that we may expect a continually reducing budget and that business can have no reason to fear increased expenditures in the future."

Referring to neutrality legislation, the Speaker said that, speaking for himself alone, he believed "it will be a grave mistake to pass a mandatory law on the subject, especially as to commodities."

Replying to the criticism that a discretionary law would enable the President personally to involve the country in war, Byrns said that as commander in chief of the Army and Navy any President could involve the country in war at any time.

Pointing to world unrest, Byrns said that a "powerful nation in the Far East, by force of arms and intrigue, is gradually dismembering the extensive empire of one of the most peacefully inclined of all the peoples of the world."

He added:

"I do not subscribe to the sentiments recently expressed to the effect that war is probable between our country and one of these nations."

The reference apparently was to the recent reputed remarks of Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, concerning Japan.

Conceding that the Townsend plan had "gained strength in certain portions of our country," Byrns added, "it hasn't a chance of passage."

Farm Aid to Be Pushed.

Byrns said "it is to be hoped and is expected" that Administration farm legislation will be sustained, but he added that if it should be overthrown by the Supreme Court "Congress will undoubtedly feel the necessity of passing an amended act."

Chairman Marvin Jones (Democrat), Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee, said his group was ready to draft substitute legislation enabling continuance of a broad Federal farm program.

"So long as we have tariffs and trade barriers," he said, "it will be necessary to have a farm program, purely as a matter of equality. If any part of the AAA is held illegal, due provisions will be fashioned."

Bonus Measure Revived

ing the bill out of committee with whatever changes it wishes to make. It can in effect substitute an entirely new measure, if it chooses.

Speaker Byrns at his press conference yesterday pointed out that this course could be followed. By inference, he took the stand that members of the House should not be put in a position where they had to vote "yes" or "no" on the Patman bill, if it is not to become law. He said, however, that he will confer with Representative Patman.

Representative Fred Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, is reported to be working on a "compromise" bill which will be put before the Ways and Means Committee shortly after Congress resumes. Meanwhile, the three major veterans' organizations are studying the Byrnes-Steiwer bill for payment of the bonus in bonds maturing in 1938. The bonds could be cashed immediately for approximately 98 per cent of full value.

Senator Thomas said last night that the first set of bonus amendments he is drafting amount to "an itemized explanation of the Patman bill."

"I estimate there is $6,000,000,000 in gold and silver in the Treasury against which money could be issued," he said. "My first amendment calls for paying the bonus by issuance of certificates against $500,000,000 in silver bullion. I would pay the balance by issuing certificates against $1,500,000,000 in free gold in the Treasury. Neither operation would entail any drain on the Treasury. The gold and silver is there, and should be put to work."

In line with the Thomas proposal, a similar plan was advanced yesterday by Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, chairman of the House Veterans Committee.

"Why not pay the soldiers' bonus in gold?" Rankin said in a statement. "We have more than $10,000,000,000 worth of gold, more than we know what to do with. * * * Of course it would be unnecessary to issue that amount of gold coin. We could set aside $2,000,000,000 worth of surplus and issue gold certificates or United States currency against it."

Neutrality Bloc Planned to Ask Mandatory Law

Maverick and Nye Confer; Strict Act Favored, Texan Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

Plans for organization of a nonpartisan Senate and House bloc to fight for a permanent mandatory neutrality law were added yesterday to the increasing Congressional activities centered upon legislation intended to keep this country out of war.

After a telephone conversation with Chairman Nye (Republican), North Dakota, of the Senate Munitions Committee, Representative Maverick (Democrat), Texas, suggested setting up a "central committee" of three Senators and eight Representatives to guide a campaign for a mandatory bill.

Maverick said he was convinced 85 per cent of members of Congress want a rigid, unqualified bill that will compel the President to place an embargo on shipments of all munitions and implements of war to any belligerent nation.

Present Act Ends Soon.

Mandatory embargo provisions of the present neutrality act expire February 29. There have been hints from Administration quarters that it desires greater discretion for the President in determining what articles and commodities shall be put under embargoes.

"The Administration, the State Department and the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee apparently are in favor of giving the President all the power he wants in the matter of neutrality," Maverick said.

"But I am opposed to that, and so are a good many more Congressmen, on grounds that it would be ineffective, vague, and hand the President the right to declare war without even consulting Congress."

Cohesive Action Sought.

The purpose of the central committee, he said, will be to obtain "cohesive action in Senate and House for legislation that will keep us out of war if any legislation possibly can do that, and for an act that will take away all profits from war should the Nation by some means be drawn into a conflict."

Committee members in addition to himself, he said, probably will be:

Senators Nye, Clark (Democrat), Missouri; Bone (Democrat), Washington, and Representatives Sisson (Democrat), New York; Kloeb (Democrat), Ohio; Tobey (Republican), New Hampshire; Christianson (Republican), Minnesota; Sauthoff (Progressive), Wisconsin, and Moritz (Democrat), Pennsylvania.

Maverick said he had communicated with at least 75 or 100 Representatives and "not a one believes a neutrality law should be anything but mandatory." Furthermore, he added, visits to 22 States since Congress adjourned have convinced him that "the American people overwhelmingly demand a mandatory neutrality act."

2 WPA Men Dead In Island Collapse

Milwaukee, Dec. 30 (AP).—Two workmen were crushed to death and four were injured today when trapped beneath several tons of frozen earth on a Milwaukee River island.

The dead were identified as Stephen Goulding, 40, and David Heinrich, 32, both of Milwaukee.

The men, part of a crew of more than 100 Works Progress Administration employes, were leveling a small island in the river as part of the work of filling in the "Blue Hole," scene of many tragic drownings in the river in recent summers.

The crew was undercutting the bank of the island when suddenly the overhanging frozen earth, weighing several tons, collapsed, trapping the six men.

Companions began to dig feverishly to extricate the victims. Some were entirely buried, others waved feebly for help with their free hands.

Because of the great numbers of workers it was necessary to have a roll call to identify the victims.

Mrs. Morrow Reported Planning Trip Abroad

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The New York Times today said in a dispatch from Englewood, N. J., that Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, and her daughter, Miss Constance Morrow, plan to go abroad in January and possibly will make an extended world tour.

Their plans, the Times said, were made months before Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh decided to establish residence in England.

Wilcox Orders Louisiana Vote Investigation

Warns Allen Fair Count Is Necessary to Secure Recognition Here.

By the United Press.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 30.—A thorough investigation of Louisiana politics was ordered tonight by Representative J. Mark Wilcox (Democrat), Florida, member of a special House Elections Committee who came here to observe plans for the January 21 primary.

Aroused by reports of fraud and alleged corruption in Louisiana's election system, Wilcox tonight ordered a permanent office for his committee in the New Orleans custom house and set a corps of Federal investigators to work.

He said investigators would "go fully into accusations made concerning fraudulent registrations."

Machine Control.

The Huey Long political machine, fate of which will be decided at the polls in three weeks, commands the entire election set-up, including registration offices. Anti-Long candidates charge the registration rolls are being padded by machine henchmen.

Wilcox left for Washington tonight but said he would return in about ten days, probably with other members of the committee.

"My course at that time will be determined very largely by the facts developed by the investigators, but we will very probably conduct a hearing at that time."

Two Hearings Held.

Two Senate hearings were held in New Orleans during Huey Long's reign and they precipitated some of the most turbulent days of the dictatorship.

Gov. O. K. Allen rejected Wilcox's demand that election boards be instructed to give Long and anti-Long candidates equal representation at the polls. The Governor appoints all election boards. He ousted boards in five parishes after they voted to grant equal representation.

Wilcox appealed directly to the election boards and most of them wired him today they would give both sides an equal number of commissioners and watchers. Wilcox warned Allen that unless there is fair representation at the polls, Congress will not recognize Louisiana as having a republican form of government.

Lindbergh Ship To Dock Today; Fanfare Awaits

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Liverpool, Dec. 30.—The American Consulate tonight announced Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will step ashore here at 6:30 a. m. tomorrow from the American Importer.

Seeking sanctuary for their son, Jon, the Lindberghs will find on the dock as large an army of reporters and cameramen as ever besieged their privacy in America.

First authentic news of the Lindberghs' plans came from the United States Consulate, which was informed by the United States Lines that the American Importer would dock at 5 a. m. tomorrow. The Lindberghs, only passengers, plan to come ashore an hour and a half later—a time of day chosen in the belief that the docks would be deserted.

Ship Halts Outside Harbor.

The American Importer halted 12 miles outside Liverpool tonight.

Virtually every agency that makes collection of news in the British Isles its business was represented here. In addition, men were posted at Glasgow and Queenstown on the off chance that Lindbergh might try to outwit the press.

The British government did everything in its power to see that the Lindberghs enjoyed the traditional English privacy, but was fighting a losing battle against the curiosity of 40,000,000 inhabitants of the British Isles. Authorities in London formally requested British and foreign newspapermen to respect the desire of the Lindberghs for solitude.

The Liverpool dock board issued passes to reporters of half a dozen nationalities after exacting from them promises that the Lindberghs would not be unduly molested.

Reporters, however, were preparing for any eventuality. One group of them had a slim, powerful racing car ready to speed after the family that left the United States chiefly because newspaper photographers in an automobile pursued Jon and his nurse and took pictures.

Newspapermen set sentinels at the municipal airport near the Mersey River in the belief the Lindberghs might come ashore by cutter and take a plane. Another group of reporters had a plane ready to follow the family if they attempted to escape by air.

So excited was the British press and public that an American diplomatic representative asked United States lines officials to advise Lindbergh to grant an interview when he landed. He said such an interview would quiet the "alarming rumors" appearing in English newspapers.

Jon's Picture Published.

Four London morning newspapers, including the conservative Daily Telegraph, published today a photograph of Jon—the taking of which caused the Lindberghs to decide to leave the United States.

Plans to keep only a normal police guard at the Liverpool docks were abandoned when authorities learned the extent of the public's interest in the Lindberghs. Instead, enough extra bobbies will be on duty to throw a protecting ring around the pier used by the American Importer.

A representative of Lindbergh, whose name was not revealed, came from London to confer with George Roper, of the United States Lines, about landing plans. After the conference, U. S. Lines officials said they did not know whether the Lindberghs were planning to go to the home of A. N. Morgan, Mrs. Lindbergh's brother-in-law, at Cardiff, Wales.

A wealthy American manufacturer, who has lived for years in England, offered the Lindberghs the use of his automobile and chauffeur, but was told all arrangements had been made.

Ship's Location Unknown.

By the Associated Press.

London, Dec. 30.—The Charles A. Lindberghs were off England's shores tonight after their eight-day voyage from America.

The trip has been described variously as of a business nature and to find seclusion and safety for their son, Jon.

In Glasgow, Betty Gow, former nurse of the murdered Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., said today she had been asked to re-enter the Lindberghs' service, but said she prefers her quiet life in a dress shop there.

Offered Back Old Job.

"I want to forget all about the past," she explained.

Miss Gow said that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had asked her to come to work for them again, and added: "But I don't think I'll go. All I want to do now is to be allowed to live a normal life."

The former maid has been living quietly in Glasgow since the first Lindbergh baby was kidnaped and slain nearly four years ago but for one interruption—when she returned to America to be a key witness in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

The young woman said she might visit the Lindberghs while they are in England, but that she does not intend to re-enter their service.

Forty messages and letters containing British offers of hospitality to the Lindberghs were received by a shipping company in Liverpool. But the Morning Post warned that the flier and his family might be disappointed in expecting to find seclusion in England.

"We hope Col. Lindbergh will find among us the refuge he seeks," it said, "though indications are not lacking that he may, as far as privacy is concerned, be in no better case than he was in his native land.

"For exercise of scruples and forbearance among us has sadly suffered from an infection of American standards and methods. * * * We are by no means free from gangster crime; we have no call to give ourselves too many airs of superior virtue."

Hauptmann Plea Studied.

By the Associated Press.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 30.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's hope of appearing personally before the Court of Pardons to ask for mercy received a set-back today.

The court met, but did not take advantage of its session to call upon Hauptmann in the death house of State Prison, as Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, an ex-officio member of the court, had indicated recently it might do.

The members considered Hauptmann's case informally during the session of 2½ hours, and deferred fixing a date for a formal hearing on a petition for clemency. It may meet late this week or early next week to hear the case, but Hauptmann is not likely to appear as a witness unless he has "a statement to make."

Hauptmann, meanwhile, was slighty nervous this afternoon as prison officials arranged for the electrocution of a fellow death-house inmate, Romaine Johnson, 32-year-old Negro. Col. Mark O. Kimberling, prison warden, said Hauptmann's condition was "only natural" and added he did not believe it presaged a breakdown in Hauptmann's phlegmatic attitude.

Tonight, when Johnson walked past Hauptmann's cell into the death chamber, Hauptmann paid no attention. He was on his cot, either asleep or feigning sleep.

The Negro was the sixth man who has been electrocuted since Hauptmann entered the death house. He advised the first four to "pray to God," but has said nothing to the last two. Johnson was convicted of clubbing a Bridgeton housewife to death during a $3.10 holdup.

After the court of pardons meeting, Gov. Hoffman said there "is no disposition now to call Hauptmann" for a personal appearance at his clemency hearing.

No Application Made.

"He might better be represented by counsel who are in possession of all the facts. There has been no application by counsel for a personal appearance of Hauptmann. If Hauptmann should have a statement to make to the court, then it could elect to call him."

The Governor declined to answer when asked if he had urged Hauptmann to confess on the night of October 17 when he visited him in the death house.

The pardons court considered the Governor's reprieve powers, although the Governor reiterated he had no intention now of staying the execution should the pardons court refuse to intercede. Hauptmann is under sentence to die the week of January 13, for the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Ellis Parker, chief of the Burlington County detectives, who has expressed belief Hauptmann is innocent, visited the executive offices after the court adjourned.

Parker said later the Hauptmann case was not discussed by him and Hoffman.

Wasihngton Digs In to Clear City of 7-Inch Snowfall mainland town of Crisfield, said he believed there was "no real suffering" on the islands as yet. There are about 1,400 persons on the ice-locked isles.

The towns of Hagerstown and Federalsburg were apprehensive lest a sharp rise in temperature cause a thaw and consequent floods. Last summer Federalsburg was inundated by 10 feet of water after heavy rains.

A large number of boats were trapped by ice in Chesapeake Bay, and the Coast Guard cutter Apache and Annapolis ice cutters were busy rescuing them.

Ten large vessels were known to be in the bay, but the location of only seven of them was known to officials.

While District employes tackled the snow on the city's streets and outlying highways yesterday, a separate force of 350 shovelers, working under the office of the National Capital Parks, was kept busy in Rock Creek Park, Potomac Park and on the Mount Vernon Memorial highway.

Fourteen snow plows were brought into play.

Two hundred per diem laborers and CCC workers toiled throughout the day at the Lincoln Memorial Pool, trying to remove enough snow to make skating possible. The snow, however, was too heavy, and skating may not be possible until this afternoon.

Every major road and drive in the park system has been kept open to traffic through prompt snow removal, said C. Marshall Finnan, parks superintendent. Vehicles are barred only on those roads roped off for coasting and skiing. Coasting traffic is heaviest on the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, between P street and Taft Bridge.

The Sixteenth Street Reservoir and the Langdon Wading Pool at Eighteenth and Hill streets northeast will be cleared of snow as soon as possible so skating may be resumed, Finnan said. George E. Clark is supervising the parks office's snow-clearance operations.

Capper to Urge District Board To Sift Rentals

Favors U. S. Housing Projects If Individual Interests Fail.

The Senate District Committee will be asked by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, ranking minority member, to investigate the District housing shortage and high rents.

Senator Capper said yesterday he had received many complaints from members of Congress and from their assistants who have been unable to find suitable living quarters at reasonable rentals.

"I don't know just what the District committee can do about it, but I am going to ask it to investigate."

Favors Federal Housing.

Asked whether he believed the Ellenbogen rent control bill, now on the House calendar, would solve the problem, he said:

"Maybe it would. It's certainly worth looking into."

Senator Capper said he would be in favor of legislation providing Government housing if private interests are not able to supply the demand.

"Ordinarily, I am not in favor of the Government going into business," he explained, "but the National Capital's housing shortage creates different problems.

"We bring the Government employes here, and it's up to us to see they get proper living quarters at a reasonable cost."

Studies "Little Capitals."

The Kansas Senator said the proposal of the National Resources Committee to establish 10 or 12 "little capitals" over the Nation as supplementary to Washington "has possibilities."

He added that such a suggestion required serious study before judgment could be passed.

The Ellenbogen rent control bill, which proposes an emergency rent commission patterned after that which operated in Washington just after the World War, will be one of the first District measures to be considered by the House, since it is first on the local calendar.

Last session it appeared to have a substantial following in the House, but was coolly received in the Senate, one of its outspoken opponents being Chairman William H. King of the Senate District Committee.

Rents Anger Deen.

By the Associated Press

Angered at what he called "almost prohibitive" rentals in Washington, Representative Deen (Democrat), Georgia, proposed last night that the Government undertake a slums clearance project here and build houses for members of Congress at "reasonable" charges.

The Georgian, after an all-day search, planked down $125 as the first month's rent for quarters he said were less desirable than his home in Alma, Ga., which he has just rented at $15 a month furnished.

"Members of Congress have no harder problems to solve," Deen stated, "than those of securing living quarters in Washington. Everywhere I have gone to look for a house or an apartment I am questioned: 'Do you have any children?' I notice that dogs are plentiful in all apartments, but children are not wanted."

Olson to Undergo Operation Today

By the Associated Press.

Rochester, Minn., Dec. 30.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson rested tonight in St. Mary's Hospital preparatory to going under a surgeon's knife tomorrow morning to correct a gastric ailment.

Disposed to comment only sparingly on the projected operation to remove a polyp obstructing the stomach, consulting physicians refrained from specific observations, preferring to wait until after the actual operation.

Several Mayo Clinic surgeons and physicians, with two private physicians from the Twin Cities, will attend the operation. The Governor has been in the hospital since Sunday night.

Youth Admits Death Threats Sent Publisher

Sought 'Thrills' in Notes Also Given Brewer, U. S. Attorney Says.

By the Associated Press.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 30.—A 21-year-old messenger today confessed authorship of letters demanding $250,000 from Frank E. Gannett, the publisher, and Louis A. Wehle, Rochester brewer. United States Attorney George A. Grobe quoted him as saying he did it for a "thrill."

Seeking "the same thrill some boys get by turning in fire alarms," Roland E. Markell, Rochester messenger, signed a confession, the United States attorney said, that he wrote the letters threatening the two men with death and their children with kidnaping unless his demands were met.

Markell will be given a mental examination, Grobe said, and will be held for trial on a charge of attempted extortion.

"The judge can determine just how much criminal intent there was," said the United States attorney.

Markell was quoted as declaring that "first of all I wanted to see how good the detectives were."

"I had no intention of harming anyone; I just wanted to see what would happen," he added.

Tracing of telephone calls, which the mild-mannered youth said he made while drunk, led to his arrest Saturday night at his home after Federal agents and Rochester police had worked on the case for months.

In the telephone calls he boasted to police that he wrote the series of notes, printed in ink, which worked up from original demands of $25,000 to final demands of $100,000 on Gannett and $150,000 on Wehle.

Grobe said the prisoner would be arraigned Friday and $20,000 bail would be demanded.

Gannett said he hoped Markell's case would be an example to others.

Attorney Set Free In Gambling Case

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 30 (AP).—Max Duckworth, former Woodbury County attorney, walked from the Woodbury County jail tonight, free after five weeks in confinement for refusing to testify in the gambling conspiracy trial of Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor.

Duckworth's release followed the collapse of the O'Connor trial when a district court jury failed to reach a verdict after deliberating two days.

Following dismissal by the Woodbury County Board of Supervisors of H. M. Havner as special prosecutor, O'Connor announced he would seek prompt retrial.

The Sioux City City Council also decided in a special meeting to take no action toward removal from office of Gordon C. Hollar, public safety commissioner. Removal had been demanded by Police Inspector Joe Young, who presented affidavits which he said showed existence of a new vice protection ring here.

16-Hour Fight Ends $100,000 Oil Blaze

Muskegon, Mich., Dec. 30 (AP).—Workmen, after fighting a tank fire at the Naph-Sol Refinery for 16 hours, brought it under control tonight. Company officials estimated the loss at $100,000.

The blaze started at 1:30 a. m. in a 25,000 barrel fuel-oil tank and spread to an adjoining storage unit. For a while it threatened the entire $750,000 plant.

A hundred workmen and firemen fought the fire with steam and water to keep it from spreading to adjoining gasoline storage tanks. They erected earth dikes to catch the stream of blazing oil as the bottom of one tank melted. There was no explosion.

The damage, officials said, included two 25,000-barrel tanks, their contents of fuel and crude oil, fittings and equipment.

Lord Reading Dies in London At Age of 75

Was Lord Chief Justice, Viceroy of India and Foreign Minister.

By the Associated Press.

London, Dec. 30.—Lord Reading, former viceroy of India and one of Britain's most brilliant diplomats, died today at the age of 75 years.

He contracted a chill two weeks ago, but an official statement gave heart failure as the immediate cause of death.

The body will be cremated here January 1 before a group of relatives, friends and officials. A memorial service will be held the following day in a West London synagogue.

Suavest of Diplomats.

The Marquis of Reading was considered so suave a diplomat that men said he had not lost his temper in 40 years.

At 75, retired, the London merchant's son had held virtually all the highest offices the British Empire could give him. He had been Viceroy of India, post second only to that of the King-Emperor. He had been lord chief justice of England. He had been foreign minister of Great Britain.

Since, 1931, when he left the foreign office of the short-lived first National government, Lord Reading had been holding the office of Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. It was an easy office for one so energy-filled. It carried nominal lordship of five ports on the south coast of England — Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover and Sandwich. It gave the privilege of living in picturesque Walmer Castle, in Dover, where the Duke of Wellington died.

Born in 1860.

Lord Reading was born Rufus Daniel Isaacs, on October 10, 1860. His father was a well-to-do merchant, and the boy received a rounded education in England and on the Continent. But, when only 14, he ran away to sea, a cabin boy, and saw the low shores of India. Fifty years later, he was India's viceroy.

When he returned, his father urged him to enter business. Rufus Daniel Isaacs, stout-willed, insisted on starting for himself. He ran away again—bound for America. His mother caught him—at the gangplank in Liverpool.

Then he studied law. His cases were exhaustively prepared. He acquired superb dignity and calm. He became a leading barrister.

In Parliament in 1904.

He entered politics as a Liberal in 1900, reached Parliament in 1904, became solicitor-general and a knight in 1910, and attorney general later in 1910.

In 1913 he became chief justice. As such, he sentenced the Irish patriot leader, Sir Roger Casement, to death—for treason.

War came. The allies needed money. Lord Reading, personal friend of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lloyd George, was sent to the United States as head of a joint Anglo-French loan mission in 1915. He secured $500,000, and won appointment as special ambassador here. Simultaneously he was negotiating for shipment of American silver to India.

In 1921, he followed the silver to India—as viceroy, and as Earl of Reading. His job was the calming of that strike-torn nationalism-seething land. Lord Reading met Mahatma Gandhi. Peace returned to India until he left in 1926.

In House of Lords.

Back in Great Britain, he took his seat as a Marquess in the House of Lords, taking a light part in politics until 1931 when a national government took hold followng the collapse of Ramsey MacDonald's second Labor regime, and Lord Reading was called in as foreign secretary.

The government lasted only long enough to appeal to the country on a series of emergency measures, including suspension of the gold standard, and then retired, Lord Reading receding into obscurity with it.

He went back to what he called his "shockingly bad" golf and tennis, his hunting, rowing and cycling, and the ending of a life which he once described, according to the Associated Press, as:

"First, all bed and no roses. Then all roses and no bed."

Such work and study remained

Ethan Allen, 57, Colony Leader, Called by Death

Hitch-Hiked to Washington in 1933 for $27,000 to Finance Work.

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, Dec. 30.—Ethan Alden, 57, direct descendant of the famous leader of the same name of the Green Mountain Boys in the Revolutionary War, and pioneer leader of a co-operative community in the deep woods in northern Minnesota, died today of pneumonia.

In failing health the last year, Allen was forced to leave his community and receive treatment in Minneapolis hospitals. His death came just as the community was well started as a self-supporting organization.

Allen hitch-hiked to Washington alone in 1933 and obtained a Federal grant of $27,000 to found his Northern welfare association. With about 75 persons picked from the relief lines he went to Itasca County and there founded the colony.

Today the colonists have several hundred acres under cultivation, ten new log houses, dairy barns, poultry houses, a large herd and more than 1,200 hens.

Allen was born in Kansas, but lived in Minneapolis more than 34 years.

Grave Rites Planned.

Memorial rites for Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, war-time commander of the Twenty-sixth or Yankee Division, A. E. F., will be held at his Arlington Cemetery grave at 3 p. m. tomorrow by members of the Yankee Division Club and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Edwards Post.

Lord Reading's idea of the good life. He was up daily at 4 a. m., getting the bulk of his work out of the way before breakfast. And at 9 p. m. he was ready for bed.:

Adviser On India.

He continued to lend advice to the government on Indian problems, serving on the 1933 joint select committee on Indian constitutional reform.

His last burst into politics came in connection with his personal religious creed, Judaism. It was carried out with characteristic Reading calm. Adolf Hitler and anti-Semitism came into power in Germany. Lord Reading was president of the Anglo-German Association.

He resigned. Without ceremony. It was as striking a demonstration, in view of his personal prestige, as any explosion of expletives could ever have been.

Harold Laski, British writer, once summed up Lord Reading's tactics, recalling htis quotation:

"He has probably not lost his temper for 40 years. With him politeness is not a quality of mind but a weapon of attack. He is deliberately calm."

Hohbein Rites Set Tomorrow; Presidents' Aid

Veteran Communications Staff Member Served Five Presidents.

Funeral services for Frederick Hohbein, 61, veteran member of the White House communications force, who died Sunday following a brief illness, will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow at Speare's Funeral Home, 1208 H street northwest. Burial, with Masonic rites, will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Hohbein died at his home, 27 Hesketh street, Chevy Chase, Md. He had been a resident of Washington since childhood and attended District public schools.

During the Spanish-American War, he was stationed at the War Department as an employe of the Western Union Telegraph Co. George B. Cortelyou, secretary to President Theodore Roosevelt, appointed him to the White House staff in 1902.

Hohbein served as telegraph and telephone operator at the White House under Presidents Taft, Wilson, Coolidge, Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was in complete charge of all communications at the Executive Mansion when President Coolidge visited Black Hills in 1927.

Surviving him is his widow, Mrs. Eleanor Hohbein; two sisters, Mrs. Amelia Klotz, of Washington, and Mrs. Elizabeth Cathcart, of Philadelphia, and a brother, Edward Hohbein, also of Philadelphia.

Services at the cemetery will be conducted by Pentalpha Masonic Lodge, of which he was a member.

Funeral Rites Held For Harvey Stanley

Funeral services for Harvey Stanley, brother of former Assistant Attorney General William E. Stanley, were held yesterday at his home at Laurel, Md.

The Rev. John J. Neighbor, rector of St. Philips' Episcopal Church, Laurel, officiated. Interment was in Rock Creek Cemetery, Washington.

Mr. Stanley, who died Saturday night after several months' illness, was a civil engineer. Born in Laurel, he spent most of his life on various engineering projects throughout the country. He was the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Stanley.

For the last several years he had been in Government service and was located in Hyattsville. He returned to Laurel shortly before he became ill.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Faith Perry Stanley, of Laurel, and William Stanley, he is survived by two daughters, Miss Frances and Miss Margaret Stanley, both of Laurel; one sister, Mrs. James Boss, of Laurel, and two other brothers, John and Charles, attorneys of Baltimore and Laurel.

Henry F. Lerch Funeral Rites Set for Today

Confectioner Here More Than 50 Years; Burial at Rock Creek.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today for Henry F. Lerch, a Washington confectioner for more than half a century, who died Sunday at Sibley Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Lerch was stricken Christmas Eve and was taken to the hospital Christmas Day. He will be buried in Rock Creek Cemetery following services at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. The Rev. Henry W. Snyder, pastor, will officiate.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Lerch came here when he was 8 years old. He married Minnie R. Huth in 1879 and a short time later started in business for himself. He worked actively until he was stricken at the age of 78.

Friends recalled that Mr. Lerch often told of sitting in his back yard at 1502 M street northwest, and watching stone masons erect the Washington Monument. At that time, there were no intervening buildings to obstruct the view.

Mr. Lerch was an active church worker. He was a member of Luther Place Memorial Church until the Epiphany Lutheran Church was founded. He served as trustee and an official of the Men's Club of the latter church. It was later merged and became St. Paul's.

Surviving Mr. Lerch are two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Hulien, of this city, and Mrs. Dora Peake, of Hyattsville; four children, Mrs. Louis E. Hoover, Mrs. George T. Byng and Mrs. Roland G. Morrissette, of this city, and John G. Lerch, customs attorney, of New YorkCity.

Funeral Mass Held For Father Skinner

A funreal mass was held yesterday at St. Paul's College for the Rev. Robert Skinner, C. S. P., of Catholic University, who died Sunday in Providence Hospital.

Father Skinner was stricken with influenza several weeks ago. He will be buried today in New York.

For the past three years, Father Skinner, who was 57, had been professor of homoletics at the Apostolic Mission House, Catholic University, and professor of moral theology at St. Paul's College, at the university.

He was a graduate of the Paulist House at Catholic University and was ordained in 1906. After graduating from the university, he was a student master at St. Paul's College and later was engaged in missionary work in the South.

Later, Father Skinner was named pastor of the Paulist Church in New York City and remained there until coming here three years ago.

Father Skinner leaves two sisters, Miss Mary Skinner and Sister Immaculate of Holy Cross Academy. He was a cousin of Otis Skinner, the actor.

W. W. Frye Dies; Retired G.P.O. Aid

William Wood Frye, 74, retired proofreader in the Government Printing Office and former editor of a Parsons City, Kans., newspaper, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William A. McLenbon, Jacksonville, Fla.

A resident of Washington for many years, Frye was retired from the printing office eight years ago. Since then he had spent most of his time in the South.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jennie Campbell Frye, former president of the District of Columbia League of Pen Women; three daughters, Mrs. Arthur Hyde Buell, of Herndon, Va.; Miss Helen Frye, of Washington, and Mrs. McLenbon, and three sons, Bernard C., of Akron, Ohio; George R., of Detroit, and William Wood Frye, jr., of Bridgeport, Conn.

Funeral services will be held at Jacksonville today.

Martin Cummings Dies.

Sargent Claims Work Program Fails in Object

Unemployment Reduced Only 6% by Four-Fold Building Increase.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 30.—Noel Sargent, secretary of the National Association of Manufacturers, today said a "four fold" increase in national public works expenditures had decreased unemployment less than 6 per cent.

Addressing the American Statistical Association, Sargent said "increased national expenditures are offset by further decreases in State, county and city public works expenditures."

"Despite Federal public works expenditures four times as great as normal," he said, "the total volume of all kinds of public works expenditures in the United States for 1935 is estimated at 28 per cent below the 1925-1929 average."

Citing figures to show that workers formerly employed on State and local projects had been absorbed by the Federal plan, he added "the expanded public works program has provided employment for only 5.3 per cent of the total number of unemployed."

A public works program which would increase employment without raising prices and wages was said by Prof. Frank G. Dickinson of the University of Illinois to be "politically suicidal."

"The possibility of having an Administration friendly to such a public works plan and still courageous enough to refrain from using it as a price-raising or price-fixing scheme seems very remote today," he declared.

Dickinson said "labor leaders, business executives and some college professors of economics" confuse high prices with prosperity.

George B. Chandler, secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, held that relief as now administered was "a serious impediment to re-employment and therefore one of the major causes of continuing unemployment."

W. E. Dixon Rites To Be Held Today

Funeral services will be held today at 11 a. m. for William E. Dixon, 82, who died Saturday at Camp Eustis, Va. Following services at the Taltavull funeral home, 436 Seventh street southwest, burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Dixon was the oldest member of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union of America. He is survived by 9 children and 21 grandchildren. His wife, Mrs. Margaret A. Dixon, died last summer at the age of 70, shortly after the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

For more than 55 years Dixon was engaged in the construction business in Washington. During that time he helped to build the Lincoln Memorial and other Government and privately owned buildings. He moved recently to Camp Eustis.

Jere A. Downs Dead; Investment Banker

Winchester, Mass., Dec. 30 (AP).—Jere Arthur Downs, 63, head of the Boston office of Hayden Stone & Co., investment bankers, and former president of the Boston Stock Exchange, died here today.

He was chairman of the executive board of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., and had many other business connections. He had been in ill health for more than a year.

Mother, 20, and Baby Are Sought by Police

A police lookout was sent out yesterday for Mildred Tibbett, 20, and her 18-month-old baby, who have been missing from their home, 2029 Nichols avenue southeast, since Saturday.

When last seen, Mrs. Tibbett, described as being about 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighing 140 pounds, was wearing a dark green coat and was hatless.

MRS. GEORGE HORACE LORIMER.

Gimbel Prize Given To Mrs. Lorimer

Philadelphia, Dec. 30 (AP).—The Gimbel award for the outstanding woman in Philadelphia in 1935 was awarded today to Mrs. George Horace Lortimer, wife of the editor of the Saturday Evening Post. The award includes a cash prize of $1,000.

Mrs. Lorimer announced she will give the money to 14-year-old Mildred Applebee, of Philadelphia, a tuberculosis patient, for sanitarium treatment.

Mrs. Lorimer was cited for her varied activities in civic and social work. Her leadership in restoring Metropolitan Opera Association performances to Philadelphia this season was included. She also founded the organization of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania.

T. C. Ashcroft Dead; Tennessee Financier

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 30 (AP).—Thomas Calvin Ashcroft, 70, who climbed from a job as a telegraph operator in a little Mississippi town to the position of a leading Midsouth financier, died at his home here tonight after a long illness.

Ashcroft was president of the American Building and Loan Association of Memphis, a former director of the Home Loan Bank board at Cincinnati, former Mayor of Memphis and a former State Senator. He joined the Associated Press in its early period and was known as one of the fastest senders of the Morse code in the country.

Wagner Act Hearing Is Set for March 2d

Philadelphia, Dec. 30 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today set March 2 for hearing the case in which the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., challenges the constitutionality of the Wagner labor law.

The March term was fixed for the hearing despite the request of Robert B. Watts, acting associate counsel for the National Labor Relations Board, that a date in January be set, so that the case might come before the Supreme Court as soon as possible for final ruling.

Wallace Urges Social Control For Capitalism

Tells Economists to Provide New Glands to Save 'The Old Man.'

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 30.—Secretary Wallace called on the Nation's economists today to help graft some new glands on "Old Man" Capitalism and thus save him from "senility."

The glands he prescribed are "social controls"—or planning. Pointing to the "rise of dictatorships in other lands," he said some social controls are inevitable, but that this "does not necessarily mean that they must take the form of dictatorship" in America.

"Social controls in a society whose roots are so deep in democratic soil can be used in such a manner as to be brought into line with the democratic traditions of the past, provided the economists are sufficiently flexible and ingenious in their approach to the problem," the Agricultural Secretary said in a speech to the Farm Economics Association.

Suggests Three-Way Program.

He suggetsed that economists "stimulate agriculture, labor and industry to work together to bring about an increased balanced production of goods at proper prices."

Wallace raised the questoin whether parity, the standard used in AAA crop adjustment programs, will serve satisfactorily as a permanent thing. Parity, in general, means a price for farm products which represent the same purchasing power for the farmer as in 1909-1914.

While the standard is useful in an emergency, he said, difficulties can arise as time goes on because of changing demand and costs of production.

Cites Hog-Price Difficulty.

For example, he said that this past year "it appeared that the parity price for hogs could be maintained only by furnishing the domestic consumer about 80 per cent as much pork as he has been in the habit of eating."

"I am sure," he said at another point, "that neither the Federal Government nor the farmers will want to stand so very long for a parity price program for a commodity if it would mean the production of a sub-normal quantity of good for the American public, and a reduced net income for the farmer."

Miss Mary Higgins' Funeral Is Today

Requiem mass will be said at 10 a. m. today for Miss Mary Laura Higgins, 73, who died Sunday at her home, 1226 Kennedy street northwest, after a brief illness.

Following the mass in the Church of the Nativity, Miss Higgins will be buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

She was a resident of Washington for 40 years, and is survived by two sisters, Miss Katherine C. Higgins and Mrs. James Dawson; two nieces, Mary and Kathryn Creveling, and a brother, John Higgins.

Students to Ask Option On Military Training

Kansas City, Dec. 30 (AP).—The National Student Federation of America today voted to support a Congressional bill substituting optional for compulsory military training in land grant schools.

Filipino Celebration.

The Filipino community of Washington will hold its traditional New Year's Eve dance at the All States Hotel, Nineteenth and F streets northwest, today at 9 p. m. Refreshments will be served and noisemakers will be distributed to all. The committee on arrangement is headed by Mrs. Robert Shoup.

Mrs. Leetch's Rites Held at University

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Leetch, for the last five years assistant in the food department of American University, who died of a heart attack Sunday, were held last night in the woman's residence hall of the university.

Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor of the university, officiated. Burial will be held tomorrow morning in the family plot at Corydon, Iowa.

Born near West Point, Ill., Mrs. Leetch spent practically all her life in Montana. For many years she was director of the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria in Missoula, Mont. She came to Washington five years ago to take a position at American University.

Mrs. Leetch is survived by four brothers, Linn Bradley, of Montclair, N. J., who attended last night's services; John Curtis Bradley, of Park Ridge, Ill.; James Wesley Bradley, of Kewanee, Ill., and George S. Bradley, of Minneapolis, Minn., and a sister, Mrs. Will Orth, of Corydon.

Lieut. Gen. Liggett Dies

France as a major general in command of the Forty-first Division.

In January, 1918, when Gen. Pershing ordered the formation of the First Army Corps, Gen. Liggett was chosen for the difficult task of organizing and commanding this new unit.

In the early part of September, 1918, with the second Marne campaign over, Gen. Liggett's First Corps participated in the independent American attack on the German lines with the elimination of the St. Mihiel salient as the objective.

Triumph at St. Mihiel.

In this completely successful thrust which cut off St. Mihiel within 24 hours, Gen. Liggett commanded the Second, Fifth, Eighty-second and Ninetieth divisions.

He was supported by the Fourth Corps under Maj. Gen. Joseph Dickman, while the Fifth Corps, under Maj. Gen. George Cameron, attacked the western side. The entire offensive was under the personal command of Gen. Pershing.

In September and early October, as operations in the Argonne-Meuse sector developed, it became necessary to create a second American field army. On October 16 Gen. Pershing relinquished command of the First Army, placing Gen. Liggett in charge.

With more than a million men under his direction, and operating on a front of 120 kilometers, Liggett's army started an offensive which by the end of October had taken all objectives and placed the vital Mezieres-Sedan-Metz railroad within the range of the American heavy guns.

On the morning of November 1 Gen. Liggett launched his last great attack, and by November 5 his men had reached the Meuse, near Sedan, and occupied the hills north of Verdun, which the Germans had held since the beginning of the war.

Enormous Booty Taken.

During the next four days the First Army crossed the Meuse, and was advancing rapidly when the armistice was signed.

In the period of September 26 to September 11 this army captured 26,000 prisoners, 847 cannon, 3,000 machine guns and large quantities of material. It inflicted losses of more than 100,000 men on the enemy.

It overcame 47 divisions of the enemy, broke through the Hindenburg line, cut the enemy's main line of communication running east and west, and reclaimed thousands of miles of French territory.

After the armistice, Gen. Liggett remained in command of the First Army until its dissolution. In the spring of 1919 he was placed in charge of the Army of Occupation in Germany, where he remained until the Third Army was broken up and he was ordered back to the United States to resume his old post as commander of the Western Department. There he served until March, 1921, when he was retired for age with the same rank he held during the war.

Gen. Liggett held the distinguished Service Medal and a number of decorations conferred on him by foreign governments.

When Gen. Pershing, who is at Tuscon, Ariz., learned of Gen. Liggett's death, he said:

"I am deeply grieved. He participated in all major engagements of our armies in France and left the stamp of high character on every unit he ever led."

Secretary Dern's Tribute.

When word reached the War Department that Gen. Liggett had died, Secretary Dern said:

"I am greatly distressed to learn of the death of Gen. Liggett. His career exemplifies the finest in American leadership. His professional skill, his genius for command, combined with his warm, human sympathy, his eager concern for the welfare of his men have won for him a rank with the great military leaders of all time. In his death the Army has lost one of its greatest characters and the country one of its ablest servants."

Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff, described Gen. Liggett as the officer who, "with the exception of Gen. Pershing, did more to bring about our victory in the World War than any other American officer."

Gen. Craig recalled that "during much of my service in the Army, I was closely associated with him. With the exception of a few months I served directly under Gen. Liggett throughout the World War. When he commanded the Forty-first Division I was his chief of staff, a position I also occupied when he became commanding general of the First Corps and again for a brief period when he was in command of the First Army."

"Gen. Liggett was a real leader," Gen. Craig continued. "He commanded not only the respect and esteem of the men under him but also their genuine affection. His record of service in peace and war is one of which the United States Army is justly proud. His death is a great blow to his friends, but his memory will ever live as an inspiration to American soldiers."

A native of Pennsylvania, Gen. Liggett started his early military career in 1879 as a cadet at West Point. As a young officer he served in the "Dakota Territory" and on the Texas border, where he saw action against the Indians.

He served in Cuba and the Philippines, participating in the suppression of the Filipino Insurrection. He came to Washington in 1909 as a student at the Army War College.

The funeral services, the Associated Press reported, will be at San Francisco Thursday at Grace Cathedral. Burial will be in the Presidio National Cemetery.

Spain's Cabinet Resigns in Row After 16 Days

Collapse Delays Action on Support for Britain in War Crisis.

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, Dec. 30.—The 16-day government of Premier Manuel Portela Valladares resigned today almost in blows, but tonight he succeeded in forming a left-center cabinet.

Political observers said the new group was completely lacking in parliamentary support. It is made up of close personal friends of the premier and President Niceto Alcala Zamora, and includes four members of the old cabinet.

Premier and minister of interior, Manuel Portela Valladares; treasury, Joaquin Urzaiz Cadaval; agriculture, commerce and industry, Jose Maria Alvarez Mendizabel; justice and labor, Manuel Becerra; war, Gen. Nicolas Molero; navy, Rear Admiral Antonio Azarola; education, Filiberto Villalobos; public works, Cirilo del Rio.

Rico Avello, who had been offered the State portfolio, announced he had refused it.

It was reported Julio Lopez Olivan, Minister to Switzerland, had been urged to take the post.

Differences over preparations for the coming congressional elections caused the collapse. Spain thus was unable to reply to Great Britain's question of whether this country would came to her defense if she is attacked in the Mediterranean by Italy.

It was learned the cabinet meeting became stormy one when Joaquin Pablo Blanco, minister of agriculture, made a bitter personal attack upon President Alcala Zamora.

Premier Portela came to the defense of the President. One minister said afterward:

"Words seldom heard at a meeting became a stormy one when Joaand it was with difficulty that we prevented the minister of agriculture and the premier from coming to blows."

Natives in Revolt Against Selassie

By the United Press.

Djibouti, Dec. 30.—Widespread rioting and revolt against Emperor Haile Selassie was reported tonight in the central Ethiopian Province of Gojjam, following rumors that the King of Kings poisoned a rival for the throne to get rid of him.

Private advices from Addis Ababa said it was reported without confirmation there that the people had risen against Haile elassie as a result of the mysterious death of Ras Hailu, former powerful ruler of Gojjam, who had been in prison for four years.

Ethiopian officials insisted the rumor was "Italian propaganda." Addis Ababa advices said the report of Gojjam's uprising spread "like wildfire" through the country.

Captured by Italians, Ethiopian Officer Flees

Athens, Greece, Dec. 30 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Lieut. Zulmati Schlomo, believed to be the first Ethiopian officer to escape after capture by the Italians, reached here today en route back to his native land.

Wounded and captured in the early days of the Ethiopian war, Lieut. Schlomo, a Falasha or Ethiopian Jew, was taken to a hospital at Trieste.

Barely recovered, he made his escape and came to Athens by way of Belgrade.

Mystery Ship Strands On Newfoundland Coast

St. John's, Newfoundland, Dec. 30 (AP).—A mystery schooner, the Ada Maud Best, lay stranded today at Lears Cove, near Cape St. Mary's.

Loaded with a cargo of fish and oil, she was found by settlers Saturday but there was no sign of her crew.

Fears were expressed that the seamen had been forced to take to the boats in a blizzard Thursday night and that the vessel drifted ashore unmanned. No word has reached here of a crew being picked up at sea, however.

Balm Suit Reinstated Against Helen Hayes

Chicago, Dec. 30 (AP).—The $100,000 alienation of affections suit filed against Helen Hayes, actress wife of the playwright, Charles MacArthur, was reinstated today by Judge William V. Brothers on motion of attorneys for Carol Frink, Chicago newspaper movie and dramatic critic. The suit was dismissed through a court clerical error recently, without Miss Frink's knowledge. She and MacArthur were divorced in 1926.

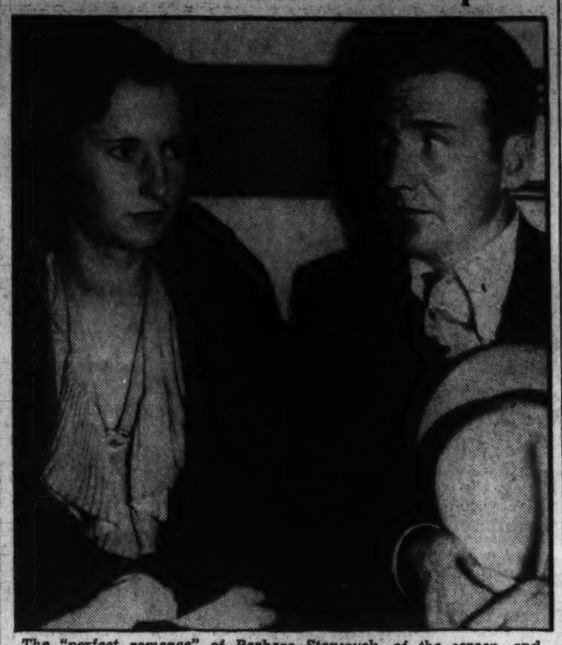
Hearing of the suit was set for February 24. It was delayed at the request of Miss Frink's counsel, who said he would take depositions from residents of the West Coast.

27 Italian Bankers Fined 5,000,000 Lire

Triest, Italy, Dec. 30 (AP).—The government fined 27 bankers a total of 5,000,000 lire (about $400,000) today after they were convicted of irregular exchange activities.

Seven were sentenced to long terms in prison. One Albanian was expelled from Italy, and two private exchange banks were closed.

'Perfect Romance' Blows Up



The "perfect romance" of Barbara Stanwyck, of the screen, and Frank Fay, of the stage, ended yesterday in the Los Angeles divorce court. Miss Stanwyck testified she was unable to live with her husband because he wrangled.

2 Leaders Quit Paris Chamber In War Dispute

Ex-Premier Tardieu, Reynaud Resign Over Policy; England Scored.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Dec. 30.—A political crisis over French foreign policy in the Italo-Ethiopian war led to the resignations from the Republican group in the Chamber of Deputies today of two of its leaders, former Premier Andre Tardieu and Paul Reynaud.

Reynaud, an ardent devaluationist, was president of the party and Tardieu a former president. Reynaud said "opposition from political friends of the government's foreign policy" forced him to give up his post.

Tardieu later said he would reconsider his resignation, but would not accept the presidency of the party, which was offered him when Reynaud stepped out, until he had "reflected" on the situation.

Tardieu charged Great Britain alone with responsibility for "the frightful confusion of the present situation."

Sir George Russell Clerk, the British ambassador, visited the foreign office to congratulate Premier Pierre Laval upon his parliamentary victory Saturday in chamber debate on foreign policy.

Tardieu, who once headed the party, quit in protest because Paul Reynaud, the present leader, voted against Premier Laval Saturday although Reynaud urged that France take Great Britain's side against Italy.

"The problem has been presented as a simple option between Italy, breaker of the Covenant of the League of Nations, and England, guardian of the Covenant," said Tardieu in a letter made public. "This is not the question.

"The frightful confusion of the present moment has but one cause. It is that they pretended to apply sanctions without having first organized them. From this results their inefficiency and danger.

"Now it is England which is responsible for the persistent lack of organization for sanctions. It was England which caused the failure of organization when it was proposed by the Herriot cabinet in 1924.

"Great Britain for 15 years understood so well the inefficacy and danger of unorganized sanctions without an agreed plan or means of action, that she constantly abstained from having any recourse to them in any part of the world."

Citing the Manchurian situation, Tardieu said "Great Britain has since changed its mind. This is the right of a great, friendly country.

"But it is also our right to recognize that the sudden reversal constitutes an injustice for Italy, a peril to peace and a risk for failure for the Covenant."

Insull Seeks 'Comeback' Via Radio Organization

Chicago, Dec. 30 (AP).—Samuel Insull—once "Mr. Chairman" in 85 corporations—sat at the head of a directors' table again today.

The meeting of radio station operators was called to hear Insull's plan for a financial comeback at the age of 76—the organization of a new network of small Midwestern outlets. Some 20 stations are reported to have been asked to join.

Insull emerged from a room in the Civic Opera Building he built in the boom days, to tell reporters "I haven't anything to tell—yet."

Woman Robber of Bank Given 5-40 Year Term

Albert Lea, Minn., Dec. 30 (AP).—Mrs. May Lyons, who single-handed robbed the State Bank of Twin Lakes of $670.75 two weeks ago and was captured shortly afterward, pleaded guilty late today to a charge of robbery in the first degree. She was sentenced to serve 5 to 40 years in the Women's Reformatory at Shakopee.

Edith Maxwell Resumes Fight In Court Today

Autopsy Doctors Expected to Qualify Opinions Stated at Trial.

The fight to see that justice is done Edith Maxwell, young mountain school teacher sentenced to 25 years in prison for the slaying of her father, is being led by the girl's older brother, Earl Maxwell.

The Post, in raising a defense fund for Edith Maxwell, is working in the interest of justice. A new trial will give her a chance to prove her innocence.

Earl Maxwell is telling in a series of articles written exclusively for The Post of his efforts in behalf of his sister.

By Earl Maxwell.

Wise, Va., Dec. 30.—Judge H. A. W. Skeen, who three weeks ago denied Edith Maxwell a new trial, will be asked tomorrow by defense counsel to rule on a second petition.

The physicians who performed the autopsy on Edith's father, Trigg Maxwell, have promised to appear in court tomorrow when defense counsel presents the petition for another hearing.

Both Dr. T. J. Tudor and Dr. G. T. Foust are prepared to explain that in their original report they said Trigg Maxwell died from a blod clot which they believed was induced by a blow on the frontal section of the head.

The physicians are expected to state that their report was based on an opinion and not on fact reached through scientific examination that the autopsy was performed with the naked eye and not with a microscope.

The petition to be presented tomorrow, the final day of this term of court, has been prepared by M. J. Fulton, Richmond lawyer, working with the three Wise County lawyers who defended Edith at her trial last November.

Fulton joined defense counsel less than a week ago at the request of the Virginia branch of the National Woman's Party. The petition he prepared after going over the record of the trial contains eight motions.

Most of those motions set forth the new evidence collected since Judge Skeen denied a new trial.

In addition to collecting important new evidence to show that my sister did not kill Trigg Maxwell, we have also secured affidavits attesting that at least two of the jurors had formed an opinion before they were sworn in.

If Judge Skeen rules favrably tomorrow on the petition, Edith Maxwell will have her second trial in March, at the next term of the Wise County Circuit Court.

If the petition is denied, her attorneys will carry their appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Judge Skeen also is expected to rule tomorrow on the petition we have filed for the exhumation of Trigg Maxwell's body. The actual exhumation, however, cannot take place immediately because the snow is too deep to make such work possible.

Two contributors sent a total of $6 yesterday to The Post's fund for the defense of Edith Maxwell, bringing the fund to $763.08.

Hospital Finds Mystery Victim Slain on Steps

Two Shootings in Boston; Nurse Sees Body Carried From Auto.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Dec. 30.—A slain man was dumped on the doorsteps of a hospital and another man was shot down and seriously wounded a stone's throw from a second hospital tonight, with utter mystery surrounding both shootings.

Both victims had been shot in the chest.

Deputy Superintendent James R. Claflin, chief of detectives of the Boston police, said "it looks as though it's a number pool war, with one man on each side being shot." He declined to amplify this statement.

Near the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, more than three miles away, Frank Sumberg, 32, was shot down.

He told police he was walking on Huntington avenue when three men "jumped" him. In the struggle that followed, he declared, he was shot in the chest. His condition was not regarded as critical.

A nurse told police she saw two men carry the dead man from an automobile and up the hospital steps. Dropping their burden, she said, they returned to the automobile and fled.

The man was pronounced dead when brought inside. He had been shot through the chest.

Rangers Don 'Tails' To Curb Gamblers

By the Associated Press.

Austin, Tex., Dec. 30.—The famous Texas Rangers battled lawlessness tonight along two wide and vastly different fronts.

One group, in boots and spurs, oiled guns for use if necessary against a renewal of cattle rustling on a large scale in the ranch country of west Texas.

The second donned "boiled shirts" and called as "guests" at night clubs and other resorts near the larger cities in the latest drive against "big time" gamblers.

Rustling of both sheep and cattle recently has reached alarming proportions in west Texas.

Rangers, resorting to dress suits to gain entrance to suspected gambling establishments, have adopted a "sit-it-out" plan to stop gambling. Garbed in their, to them, unusual attire they simply observe the proceedings—making sure no gambling paraphernalia is used.

Grandfather Drops Plan to Aid Milne

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Dec. 30. — Caleb Milne, jr., grandfather of Caleb J. Milne 4th, kidnap hoaxer, in a statement tonight said he would not participate in assistance to his grandson.

At his home in the Germantown section of Philadelphia the retired textile manufacturer said:

"Let me make a statement. I want you to print it exactly as I say it. I retire completely from participating further in co-operating to assist my grandson. He has acted unwisely, and must accept the consequences."

Milne said earlier today that he was willing to post the $7,500 bond required for the release of his grandson from the House of Detention in New York.

He said he made preparations to go to New York with the money, but decided to stay in Philadelphia after hearing the youth's mother, Mrs. Frederica Milne, was raising the bond.

Couple Found Slain; Suicide Pact Hinted

Chicago, Dec. 30 (AP).—Patrick Keller, 40, and Mrs. Janet Scaturro, 30, a divorcee, were found shot to death in a rooming house today.

Police were undecided whether they died in a suicide pact or whether it was a case of murder and suicide.

Chicago Hunts Clew in Killing Of Law-Maker

Mayor Does Not Believe Slaying of Chief Bears Political Angle.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Vacillating between theories of political assassination and the original presumption of resistance to robbery, the police tonight grilled their first prisoner in the hunt for the slayers of State Representative Albert J. Prignano.

A fast-moving squad seized Joe Cammarata, former Melrose Park grocer, for questioning about the automobile the slayers abandoned after shooting down the Democratic leader on his doorstep last night.

Cammarata was seized when, Sergt. Joseph Haksa said, his name was found among half a dozen under which the abandoned car was reported to have been owned. Both Cammarata and his wife, who had been apprehended earlier, were subjected to protracted questioning, but were ordered released when Capt. John Stege expressed satisfaction they knew nothing of the case.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly's declaration that he did not regard the killing of his party's leader in the "bloody Twentieth" Ward as a "political crime," was echoed quickly by Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan and Capt. John Prendergast, head of the uniformed force.

"There is nothing in our investigation to indicate the shooting was anything but an attempted robbery," said Sullivan. "It doesn't look like the work of any organized mob."

Sullivan said that the legislator's valuable sapphire ring was missing and that the widow had disclosed she was standing beside her husband when three gunmen felled him with seven bullets.

"Prignano was known to carry much money with him on occasions," said Prendergast.

Police Capt. John Stege, first proponent 'of the political motivation for the slaying, said he was making no direct search for Frank Nitti, "the enforcer" of the old Capone syndicate, but would be glad to question him if Nutti came forward voluntarily with information that might help solve the crime.

He had said earlier he believed powerful enemies had directed the killing of the 44-year-old legislator.

Shooting of 4 Laid To Jealousy; 2 Dead

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 30.—The shotgun rampage of Philip Mikes, who slew his wife and stepdaughter and wounded a stepson and himself, was laid to jealousy and domestic strife by investigators tonight.

Mikes, critically wounded by a charge he fired into his chest, confessed to Sergt. Emil Anderson and advanced this reason:

"She's been driving me nuts."

Mikes killed his wife, Penelope, 34, and her daughter, Miss Lulu Voornas, 17. Then he shot Louis Voornas, 16, in the shoulder. Marian Voornas, 13, escaped by running from their home on the far West Side. George Voornas, 15, leaped to safety from a second-story window. The immediate cause of the tragedy was Mikes' arrest on a disorderly conduct warrant obtained by his wife last Saturday.

Fire Traps Family; 5 Dead, 2 Are Dying

By the Associated Press.

Cuba City, Wis., Dec. 30 (AP).—Caught behind a locked door when fire gutted their farm home today, five persons were burned fatally and two others so seriously they were not expected to live.

Floyd Dent, farmer living near here, and four of his children, Donna Mae, 6; Betty Jane, 11; Merrill, 13, and Robert, 3, died late today. Mrs. Dent and a son, Dorrance, 8, were said to be near death.

The fire broke out this morning and in their excitement the family thought only of the locked front door as an avenue of escape. The bedroom from which they fled had scarcely been touched by the flames when members of the Cuba City fire department arrived.

R. D. Eustice, head of the Cuba City fire department, said there was more smoke than fire at the start and the victims may have been overcome while trying to get the door open.

A Hoosier Scrooge.

The holiday festivities are nearly gone. Christmas is over and everyone is doing as well as could be expected. Old calendar pads are about to be spruced up with 366 new days. It was all fun—the glitter, and the gifts, and the eggnog. When confetti has been thrown and toasts have been drunk, it will be time to settle down to normalcy. This means that we can leisurely select from the books received, and get back to the peaceful business of reading. The "godlike aloofness of books" is like a harbor after all the rush, the roar, and the relatives.

Alas, though, no holiday fable is complete without its Scrooge, which role this year has been essayed by Booth Tarkington.

In a recent interview, the Hoosier author predicted that within a hundred years or "in much less time," the novel will be extinct. This is inevitable, he feels, with television already rearing its ugly head. He concedes that there will undoubtedly be books in the future but adds that they will probably be reference books, scientific books and research books. For one who usually contents himself with the stuff of which dreams and young people are made, Mr. Tarkington has certainly out-Ibsened Ibsen in piling gloom on gloom. No Winnie the Pooh in the year 2035? No Mr. Chips to sigh over when fifty years have passed? Not a single Alice Adams in a carload of encyclopaedias?

If Mr. Tarkington is simply being arbitrary then there is nothing more to be said. But if he is anxious to be reassured, he may turn to a passage written by one of his contemporaries. There Charles Morgan says: "It was a miracle that a book, neglected for years, being taken down at last, should sing instantly with Shelley's voice and that the voice should be unchanged by all the operations of fortune."

As long as such appreciation exists, as long as such ability of expression exists, there will be novels, regardless of radio, television, or the movies. It was in the face of much less overwhelming evidence than this that another Scrooge admitted he was wrong.

Signs Of Better Times.

All statistical records bear witness to a marked expansion of industrial activity during the year now closing. This gain has been accompanied by increases in employment and pay rolls, better wholesale and retail trade, a growing volume of security issues, and further improvement in agricultural conditions. It is particularly encouraging to find that the upward movement has been uninterrupted during the latter part of the year, and that the customary year-end seasonal recessions have either been lacking or have been much less pronounced than usual.

Furthermore, the heavy industries have felt the effects of the general improvement to a marked degree. Thus, 1935 ends with the steel industry reporting an operating rate far above that of a year ago, and steel plants planning to make large outlays for expansion and improvement in equipment. This is extremely gratifying in view of the fact that unemployment has been especially severe in the heavy industries. Another unmistakable indication of better times is reflected in railroad freight traffic and passenger travel, reported to have been the best in four years, despite the fact that the net operating income of Class I roads averages less than 2 per cent of the value of their capital investment.

In addition to such tangible evidences of improvement, a more optimistic attitude toward the future is everywhere apparent. One evidence of this growing confidence is found in the marked expansion of new security issues during recent months. While such offerings have been chiefly for refunding purposes, they testify to a revival of investment demand which should clear the way for new capital financing.

General agreement that business is much better and public sentiment improved does not, however, present sharp differences of opinion as to the reasons for the rise and the permanence of the gains. Armed with the same facts and figures, the politicians of both major parties will undoubtedly try to exaggerate the extent of the achieved recovery, on the one hand, and to minimize its significance, on the other hand. Opponents of the New Deal already cite the sustained business recovery since the demise of the NRA as proof that business was throttled instead of helped by that adventure in co-operative regulation of competition. Proponents of the spending program are pointing to its undoubtedly stimulating effect, though without much comment on either the cost or the temporary character of such artificial gains.

Further and enduring business recovery will now be greatly assisted by a rational economy program. The measure of recovery achieved makes more desirable the elimination of extravagant governmental stimuli and the reduction of the inflationary dangers inseparable from chronically unbalanced budgets. If the country could feel assured that new raids on the Treasury, such as demands for cash payment of the bonus, would be warded off and Federal relief costs reduced to the minimum comparable with irreducible needs, industry would forge ahead faster. And this would automatically reduce the relief problem by the provision of those permanent jobs which alone represent real employment gains.

Lifting The Nazi Veil.

After serving the League of Nations more than two years as high commissioner for German refugees, James G. McDonald has resigned that post. The reasons for his action are stated at length in a document which is one of the most powerful indictments of the Nazi regime of terrorism yet given to the outside world. Its force lies both in the manner and method of its presentation.

Mr. McDonald, formerly chairman of the Foreign Policy Association, has proved himself an impartial and conscientious international official who undoubtedly would have remained at his post if able to cope with the appalling problems created by Germany's reversion to barbarism. He has had superlative opportunities to learn the facts during his period of service as commissioner for refugees. Consequently his opinions cannot be dismissed as the exaggerated views of a prejudiced or ignorant onlooker, inflamed by hearsay stories of oppression.

In his letter of resignation Mr. McDonald states that over half a million persons living in Germany are threatened with pauperization or exile, either because they are Jews or have dared to "resist the absolute will of the National Socialist State." The new legislation announced last fall—denationalizing Jewish citizens, excluding them from public office and depriving them of opportunities to earn their living, has created a situation which, in his opinion—calls for collective action on the part of League states.

While Germany is not bound by treaty obligations to protect minorities living within her boundaries, Mr. McDonald notes that the principle of protection has been recognized in many important treaties of the nineteenth century. It was reaffirmed at the peace settlement following the World War, and incorporated in a large number of special post-war treaties. Germany, moreover, was particularly eager to secure fair treatment for her nationals living in territory detached from the old German empire.

There comes a time, as Mr. McDonald says, when considerations of diplomatic etiquette should yield to those of common humanity. Consequently he urges "friendly but firm intercession" by all "pacific" means to obtain a modification of the policies that have sent and will continue to send so many Germans into exile. The pressure of world opinion, exerted through League agencies, which have no official American support, is not likely to effect immediate radical changes in the practices of the Nazis. But it might well alleviate the hardships of the persecuted and enable them at least to endure life in their own country until a turn of political fortune restores their rights.

Even if other countries were in any position to harbor the hundreds of thousands of persecuted Germans they would be ill-advised to encourage the Nazi campaign of persecution by assuming responsibility for its miserable victims. Efforts must be made to remove or mitigate the causes which create refugees and that, Mr. McDonald asserts, is a "political function which properly belongs to the League itself."

The White Man's Burden.

Rudyard Kipling was seventy yesterday, and the newspapers made decorous mention of the fact. Had his seventieth birthday occurred at the birth of the century, it would have been celebrated from one end to the other of "the empire on which the sun never sets." Now it finds him a hermit in retirement from a world which has seen the philosophy of arrogant imperialism found sadly wanting. Few literary champions of political ideals have received the acclaim for their championship that Kipling was once accorded. Few have survived to see such a shift from the ideals they championed.

Much of his work deserves to live—and will live. Mulvaney and Mowgli, Kim and Stalky "belong to the ages." There, too, belong "The White Man's Burden" and the "Barrackroom Ballads." But while the former are immortal by reason of their eternal verity, the latter last almost solely as expressions of a primitive political creed. The former are types which the world will produce, or want to produce, forever; already the latter are valuable chiefly to the student who wants to understand Great Britain in the flowering of Victorian imperialism.

Kipling successfully sought to express his epoch. Every English-speaking voice repeated his stirring music. Britain and America knew by heart everything he had to say about a "thin red line of 'eroes" and about a mighty, though ungrateful, empire salted down with the willing bones of its citizens—each one of them a workman at the sovereign task. Then came the World War, and beside the thunder of its massed artillery, its wholesale slaughter of spirited youth, the piping about colonial forays sounded reedy and pretty thin.

In a very real sense Kipling, by an act of artistic will, ceased to be an individual and became his time. But it was the time of the Boer War and the Spanish-American War—not of Indian autonomy and a Philippine Commonwealth. That time and its prophet are as mentally distant from the America and Britain of today as is the thought of Caesar Augustus, or that of his present imitator in Rome.

Dying In The Night.

"The year is dying in the night," wrote Tennyson in that one of his poems which inevitably recurs to mind on this day. "Ring out, wild bells, and let him die."

It would be a far happier and a finer world if all those virtues of "the larger heart, the kindlier hand" which this poet so sincerely cherished, could replace "the faithless coldness of the times," merely by the turn of the calendar from 1935 to 1936. Humanity would indeed ring bells this midnight to some purpose, could the transition mean so beneficial a development.

Unfortunately we know only too well that the change brought by the New Year is of a momentary rather than a momentous character. Exaltation, whether spiritual or spirituous, is not the natural state of the plodding animal called man. His character, his culture, his civilization—all these he must build slowly. Only in destruction can he achieve quick results.

But strength for the humdrum tasks which shape themselves so minutely to real accomplishment is needed. And the greatest source of that strength lies in the sure knowledge that we can, if we will, "ring out the false, ring in the true." Not overnight can any such advance be accomplished, but in that fullness of time potentialities of which we hopefully mark and cheerfully symbolize at the New Year.

The Burden Of Proof.

A committee of 14 municipal executives, headed by Mayor LaGuardia of New York, will launch a campaign to secure larger relief appropriations from Congress on the ground that the Federal Government has thrown back upon the States and localities an insupportable burden in making them responsible for the care of unemployables. Moreover, they maintain that the Government's work-relief program has failed to provide for all the unemployables on relief, which is more than probable.

Wherever there is a high degree of unemployment, or a heavy concentration of unemployables, a municipality may find itself unable to make adequate provision for those on relief rolls. No mere edict that the localities must take care of all destitute persons not carried on Federal pay rolls will solve the bitter problems created by abrupt withdrawal of the Federal Government from the field of direct relief. Nevertheless, decentralization of relief is a move in the right direction. Federal financing of direct relief encourages local extravagance and weakens that sense of responsibility for care of the destitute which is a proper concern of local governments.

Resumption of that responsibility should insure more economical administration of relief funds, fewer wastes, and less opportunity to make easy excuses for failure to supplement relief funds contributed by the Federal Government. Already it has become evident that Federal aid will be necessary to prevent dire distress in many hard-pressed communities. But it is entirely feasible to make provision for these special cases without reverting to the discredited methods of the recent past.

Local executives who believe themselves confronted by an insoluble relief problem must first present Washington with irrefutable proof of their inability to care for the unemployed, and ask additional grants on the basis of that evidence. Isolated instances of local incapacity to defray the costs of relief do not justify a general drive to secure larger relief appropriations, particularly if the desired outlay cannot be covered by Federal revenues.

Japan Asks A Riddle.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In their efforts to convert the 5-5-3 naval ratio into a 5-5-5 ratio, the Japanese have resorted to appeals, persuasion, argument and veiled threats. All these got them nowhere, so, just before the London conference recessed for the Christmas holidays, the Japanese delegates took up the Socratic method. Here is the hypothetical question with which they sought to bring light into darkness: "If 40 vessels were attacked by 50 vessels, would the 40 have any chance of success?"

Oriental diplomacy must have lost its traditional cunning if the Japanese expected such a question to clinch their case for parity. The additional details necessary before even a tentative answer may be essayed have an opposite effect. Such details as: How big are the ships? Of what armament and efficiency? How far from their home bases? How navigated and maneuvered? The Japanese refused to amplify, so the matter rested there when the parley adjourned.

A Lesson In The Digest Poll.

From the Kansas City Times.

It is a remarkable reversal of sentiment on New Deal policies in the last year and a half that is disclosed by the Literary Digest poll. In the spring of 1934 more than 61 per cent of the ballots were favorable to the New Deal. Now 58½ per cent are against it. What has happened?

In the first place there has been disillusionment. The Administration's gold policy was advertised as almost a panacea. It failed to produce results. Then came the silver policy. Again no results. The NRA was ballyhooed as the short-cut to recovery. It crashed.

In the second place, experience has demonstrated that the American people are hospitable to a limited number of innovations. Then they become fed up. Too many changes are disturbing and go against the grain.

Dr. Kagawa's Visit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, regarded as "the most Christlike man in the world" by Christians the world over, has had the stigma of "alien propagandist" tied to him by John B. Trevor, president of the American coalition. The intimation is that Kagawa will also spread trachoma among us Americans just as a little by-product of his disregard of American institutions. The trachoma he contracted while working for the poor of Japan in their filth.

Not many American Christians have contracted trachoma among the poverty-ridden people of our backward mountain districts. Not many have even approached the standard of Kagawa as a Christlike man. Unfortunately, many have descended to the level, where anyone from any other country, advancing any social reforms which would affect the existing order, is an "alien propagandist" to be thwarted and, if at all possible, kicked out.

Trachoma makes a perfect excuse for Trevor's diatribe, when he says that "the responsibility for all suffering and blindness resulting from the dissemination of trachoma by this alien propagandist must be assumed by the Administration."

That is contemptible, un-Christian and unfair. It is an attitude unworthy of an American. We all owe Dr. Kagawa an humble apology. C. E. P.

Street Railway Operation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington, whether the street railway company knows it or not, is the most perfect situation almost in the entire world for street railways to give excellent service and make money out of it. Instead we have the picture continually before us of more indecent sardine packing of passengers than the New York subways; of equipment in a practically continuous state of breakdown; delays, blocking of streets and, last but not least, motormen so badly trained that they think they have missed a trick when they do not throw their passengers 2 or 3 feet each time they stop and start.

My suggestion to the commission, to the stockholders and to the suffering customers is that they compel the directors to put in officers and operating men that know how to operate a street railway. It is the simple expedient resorted to by the directorate of industrial concerns very successfully.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS.

Washington, Dec. 28.

Democrats' "Musts."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Democratic National Convention of 1936 must nominate a Jeffersonian Democrat upon a very brief, honest platform guaranteeing: (1) thorough elimination of socialistic experiments from the party program and pledging the party to a strict construction of the constitution; (2) abolition of the Departments of Agriculture, Commerce and Labor; except for statistical purposes; (3) free trade with all nations; (4) faithful adherence to the Democratic postulate of "equal rights for all, special privileges to none"; and (5) replacement of the spoils system by strict conformity to civil service rules including abolition of political postmasterships. Otherwise a third party pledging to the Democratic principles of Thomas Jefferson and Henry George will be in order.

Hill For Grandmothers?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you, through your columns, enlist the co-operation of grandmothers in Washington who desire to coast, during this snowy season, in an endeavor to have a hill set aside for grandmothers.

My grandchildren are not old enough to go out for this sport in a big way and my children are too old to be interested, so I feel myself and my coasting ethics, learned years ago and difficult to outgrow, in conflict with the ethics observed on the hills in Washington and my fun spoiled a bit.

Other grandmothers, suffering under the necessity to submerge their desire for coasting, may be willing to aid in finding a remedy.

Pros And Cons Of Birth Control.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. C. L. Wright's intelligent letter on the subject of birth control and morality in The Post of December 28 constrains me to write and voice my very strong suspicion that birth control in the United States of America is a "fait accompli."

If this is not true, and I mean to include many of my Catholic friends and acquaintances, then it must be admitted that the modern maids and men manifest a notable degree of impotency.

BANNOCKBURN.

Washington, Dec. 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your correspondent, C. L. Wright, whose communication appeared in The Post of December 28 on birth control, could have signed himself "Right." We are a very tolerant people, but there should be limits even to extreme tolerance. When a decided minority of our citizenship would impose on our overwhelming majority an artificial "morality," it is time to speak out fearlessly.

When we see Mussolini giving prizes to a dozen or more women of Italy for producing "litters" of children in a ten-year trial period intelligent Americans wonder why such use of womanhood can be consistent with civilization, not to say "morality." Compared with this vulgar exhibition of marriage, a sane birth control policy or recommendation would seem to be as much higher in morals as our advocates of it are higher than Mussolini.

Is there not, also, something incongruous in having a man who, by his espousal of celibacy, implies that holiness is inconsistent with marriage, dictating to those who assume the responsibilities of parenthood what form their married life should take? Modesty would seem to recommend silence where men rfeuse to accept responsibilities which marriage brings. At any rate, we are not ready to Mussolinize our American womanhood to the level of breeding animals, and do it under the head of "morality."

J. O. KNOTT.

Washington, Dec. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your correspondent, C. L. Wright, ignores the fact that the primary end of marriage is the begetting of children. The limitation of the family by artificial means is an unnatural and immoral vice which Cardinal Hayes rightly condemns. What this country needs is not birth control but self-control.

JOHN J. O'CONNOR.

Washington, Dec. 28.

"We Must Go On."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have absolute faith in the American people and implicit confidence in the Constitution of the United States. The coming months will bring a showdown as to what our future order of things will be.

The present temporary wave of prosperity is just the "ole mule" kicking his last. The Democrats have never been able to properly run this country and they never will. Drunk with power, they have "shot their bolt" in vain. It will be a long time before they ever come back—if ever.

The Republican Party as it existed before 1932 is dead. The elephant and the jackass will soon be side by side in the same tomb. Both have worn out their usefulness for service.

But we must go on. Ours is still the land of opportunity. We have had statesmen who devoted their lives to service; and, history repeats. Such men will survive their parties. They are those who have faith in and hold the Constitution to be sacred and inviolate as well as adequate and supreme. As usual, the coming political conventions will not nominate the men best qualified and it will be they who will take up leadership of the new order.

"Constitutionists," or by whatever name the new party may be called, should be exemplified by the American bull terrier, whose courage, faith, loyalty and whole-souled devotion to service is much more in line with our needs than the cantankerous old donkey or the humility of the G. O. P. elephant. His other qualifications needed are to protect and abide by our Constitution and keep guard over America for Americans.

It will take more than the failure of a few political parties to break down the morale of a Nation so firmly entrenched with resources and guided by so firm and just a hand as our Constitution.

If this is a clarion call, so be it.

DAVID L. ELLIOTT.

West Point Admissions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From reading your commendable editorial, "West Point Admissions," in The Post of December 14 it may not be altogether apparent that examinations and tests prescribed by the appointing authority serve no further purpose than that of selecting the candidate for appointment.

After having first been selected by whatever means, the candidate is eligible to report for the entrance requirements prescribed by the War Department, and those requirements are the final test in determining whether or not the candidate is to be admitted to the Academy.

For example, Representative Hoeppel's son, selected by his father, failed in the entrance examination, and another selection for the vacancy thus created caused all the trouble.

With admissions in the hands of those in authority at the Military Academy—and at the Naval Academy as well—there need be no apprehension on account of political appointments to either.

The Growing Debt.

From the Kansas City Star.

The total debt is equal to the Nation's total income last year. It has been mounting faster than the increase in the national income following its low point in the depression. Plainly, that cannot go on without disastrous consequences. What assurance is there that this disturbing increase in debt will be halted? Precious little, just now. There has been talk of it; but the talk needs to be translated into action.

The Post Impressionist

"Noblest . . . of All the Arts"

Post Office, Tuesday.

MOST architects—even those of some of the newest United States Government buildings—will be interested in the latest bit of art gossip from London. Certain experts believe the missing link in St. Paul's Cathedral has been found.

That isn't a Germanic sentence. It means just what it says: Not that the Darwinian Missing Link has been discovered in the cathedral, but precisely that the cathedral's missing link has been discovered.

* * *

We refer to Wren's "First Model" for what the major critics—the Post-Impressionist belonging, as usual, to a hopeless minority—consider Sir Christopher's masterpiece.

Its mystifying absence has provided a puzzle for the craft and for craft-commentators throughout the better part of two and a half centuries.

* * *

Charles II had not lived through a half-dozen years of his quarter-century reign before he ordered Wren to draw plans for a reconstruction of St. Paul's, which was then, like so much of artistic England after Cromwell got through with it, in a sad state of decrepitude. Perhaps the monarch thought that this pious purpose would be balanced against the desecration of the Protector's tomb. Anyhow, in the May of 1666, Wren replied by a detailed report, suggesting a complete desertion of "the Gothick Rudeness of the Old Design" and radical changes "after a good Roman manner."

Before, however, anything could be done, the conflagration of September 2nd and 5th gutted the old "rudeness" so thoroughly that the cathedral's dean and chapter (the dean was Dr. William Sancroft, wasn't he?) decided upon "a wholly new church." By this phrase, they apparently meant even more drastic departures than the architect had already advocated.

* * *

Wren toiled at plans for two years and, in '68, proudly brought his "Second Design" to the Dean.

Alas, the dean refused the plan!

* * *

The architect now worked as slowly as if he were merely the geometrician and astronomer he used to be. Seven years passed before he submitted a plan and model something nearer to the heart's desire of the cathedral authorities.

Then, having studied the new proposals, those authorities instructed him to go ahead. The ultimate result was that St. Paul's which the world knows today.

* * *

The 1666 design is preserved in the All Souls collection. The Great Model rests, if memory serves us, in the South Kensington Museum. But, until today, experts have sought in vain for the so-called first model of the present structure.

* * *

Well, Expert Arthur Bolton hazards the latest answer. He writes, in the London Times, that some months ago he was invited by Godfrey Allen, surveyor of the Fabrick of St. Paul's, "to inspect a much-dilapidated wooden box" found in the cathedral precincts:

"It has so little connection with the well-known Great Model that it seemed impossible at first that it could bear any relation to St. Paul's. But by degrees . . . a very good case has been established."

* * *

Mr. Bolton reports: "The ground-floor arcade . . . is excluded from the church. There is a broken hinge (on the model) showing that a large part is missing. It is suggested that this portion was a domed vestibule, square externally and carrying a cupola of moderate height . . . precisely what Wren later designed for the great hall and chapel of Greenwich Hospital. The cathedral design also anticipated the library of Trinity College, Cambridge, having two orders, Ionic and Corinthian, instead of Doric, for the lower order as now at Cambridge."

* * *

Then Mr. Bolton draws a lesson from Wren's letters to the dean of the cathedral. These the expert considers as further justification for a faith that the newly discovered model is the "first." For, says he, "it was extremely practical at a time when he (Wren) did not believe that a cathedral on the existing scale of St. Paul's was a matter of practical politics. As soon as he was assured that (the new) London meant to excel, he produced the Great Model.

"The discovery of the first model explains what has always puzzled historians, the great discrepancy between the warrant design and the present cathedral."

* * *

Mr. Bolton's solution is the probable one. But conflicting possibilities do exist.

Wren was violently angry with his patrons' refusal of the '68 plan and, though he swallowed his wrath, he didn't digest it. He went to the King and secured permission to change the finally accepted design without consulting anybody. Isn't there a story to the effect that, in '75, he constructed a secret model for his own uses?

Whatever this is which Messrs. Allen and Bolton have discovered, it would seem to leave one model behind the curtain of the unknown.

Fair Enough

Hot Stove League.

Paris, Dec. 30.

ONE of the favorite sedentary sports of Europe is the game of speculating on war chances, corresponding to the harmless American pastime of trying to guess the winners of the major league pennants. The players constitute a sort of politico-military Hot Stove League, and the object is to guess who will attack whom and who will win.

The contest embraces whole tournaments of wars, and entries include seeded players and bunnies. As a rule, the United States is regarded as the defending champion who does not have to play through but stands on the sidelines until the challenge round.

To play it you substitute for hitting, fielding and the youth or age of athletes such factors as gold, petroleum, iron, naval and mercantile tonnage, army statistics and mechanical equipment, including, of course, airplanes, with due regard for modernness or obsolescence. I find these Hot Stove leaguers keep their statistics in mind just as faithfully as Americans memorize batting averages, and though the game is an obsession with the people, nowhere is it played with greater enthusiasm than in the corridors of the Palace of Peace at Geneva.

• • • •

In speculating on the baseball season of 1936 members of the American Hot Stove League might say that Detroit seems all right except that Goose Goslin, like an overaged battleship, will need replacement soon.

The Italians might be compared to the Cincinnati Reds—a good second division country with delusions of grandeur, who will fight over their heads for a few months and then flop for lack of stamina or money. The French are the general equivalent of the St. Louis Cardinals. They are good, game fighters, and never so good as when they find themselves in a clutch, but are too busy fighting one another in the clubhouse to pull together in a scheduled contest.

Greece is practically synonymous with the Boston Braves—broke, feeble, in hock to the League of Nations and dependent on the League for its very existence.

• • • •

IN this Hot Stove League every man is his own expert. The journalists who get around among statesmen and generals are the insiders, like the baseball experts who associate with magnates and managers. But often the baseball expert picks a team to win a pennant which winds up sixth, whereas some room clerk in a clapboard hotel in South Carolina who never saw a major league game picks them all in order.

So, too, a politico-military expert might get the lineup all cockeyed and guess miles wide of the result. Meanwhile a French bookkeeper fanning with a friend over seven cents' worth of vermouth might predict everything right.

As a premise it is generally assumed that Mussolini has caught his tail in a crack. Italy was broke, and he has had so many unemployed on his hands that he shipped 300,000 men to Abyssinia.

The British, thinking of their own future, ordered him to ship them back. But Mussolini couldn't do that. If he did there would be a revolution in Italy and a wholehearted massacre of Black Shirts, followed by communism. If he doesn't bring them back the British blockade him and he has to fight. And if the British won't blockade him they take a dare and the world will say they are yellow.

• • • •

A HELL of a fix, to be sure. So England blockades, Italy fights and the roughhouse is on. France is too busy beating herself over the head with a bat to take any part in the scrap but permits the British to use her naval and aviation bases.

Greece lets England use her islands to offset the Italian bases in the Dodecanesian islands which Italy stole from Greece. Albania is an Italian annex, so Italy sends Albanians to muss up the Greeks. Bulgaria also jumps on the Greeks out of pure hatred—the only decent motive in the whole melee.

Yugoslavia belongs to the opposition mob in the Balkans and therefore piles into Albania and Bulgaria. Rumania, a member of the same mob, also takes a kick at Bulgaria, but Hungary tries to bite off the ground which Rumania stole after the big war. At this, Czechoslovakia smothers Hungary, and Adolf Hitler, who has been laughing his head off nonchalantly, takes over Austria while Mussolini is too busy to object.

It goes on and on, with Poland fighting Russia on this side and Japan churning up the Far East and the British tearing all over the place like a cat in a bird store.

Finally, the United States gets into a fight with Japan over some little international hubscrape in Arizona or Alaska, and the situation enters a serious phase.

Millions are killed and starved. Rome is bombed to rubbish and civilization reigns supreme.

Santiago Labor Conference

Countries Of America To Study Common Labor Laws.

This is the second of two articles discussing the significance and program of the Labor Conference of American States meeting January 2 in Santiago, Chile.

By Bertram Pickard.
Special Correspondence of The Post.
Geneva.

THE Labor Conference of American States which opens at Santiago, Chile, the day after tomorrow is expected to last about a fortnight. It has plenty to do in that time. Consider the program:

It has first to examine, from the point of view of ratification and application, the international labor conventions adopted to date by the I. L. O., particularly those conventions (and recommendations) dealing with social insurance and the conditions of work of women and children.

In addition, the conference has to discuss at least six different questions, ranging over a wide field, submitted by participating governments as suitable for being dealt with later by the International Labor Conference.

One of the major functions of the international labor office is the development of international labor legislation. Thus the ratification and application by governments of the conventions (i. e. treaties) prepared and adopted by the conference is of capital importance.

The register of ratifications by Latin American states reveals some rather surprising facts. Up to 1931, i. e. 12 years after the foundation of the I. L. O., apart from Chile and Cuba, the ratifications were nil. Today, Latin America counts some 187 ratifications out of a total by all members of the I. L. O. of 674. Out of 60 ratifications registered during the year 1934-35, 44 came from Latin America, of which no less than 30 came from Nicaragua. Moreover, it may be noted that Brazil (with 4 to its credit) and Mexico (with 9) appear in the table for the first time.

WHAT is the explanation of sudden tranformation? It will be noted that the avalanche of ratifications begins, significantly enough, in 1931, coinciding with the arrival of the economic crisis. Without any doubt, the fear of social unrest and revolution has played a determining role in persuading the governments to speed up social legislation with a view to attaining the minimum standards laid down internationally at Geneva. Whatever the motives, however, the fact of phenomenal legislative activity is patent; and the director, in his last report, declares himself satisfied that this increase in ratifications "is a true indication of the progress which is in the way of accomplishment."

One does not need to be an expert, however, to scent a certain danger in this rush to ratify. It is one thing to put through national legislation to square with an international convention. It is quite another thing to assure that the new rules and regulations are carried out. The Nanking Government, for example, has enacted some excellent decrees in the social and industrial sphere; but all the world knows that the writ of Nanking does not run very far in such matters.

This is not to suggest that Nanking may be equated with Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo or Santiago. It is to suggest, however, that wholesale ratifications in any part of the world are bound to raise problems concerning application that really counts; and the I. L. O. must make certain, by one means or another, that the standards adopted at Geneva are faithfully and equally applied by sovereign states that ratify them.

Hence the great importance of the survey that will be made at Santiago of the ratification and application by the States concerned of I. L. O. conventions, particularly those concerned with social security, (as the various kinds of social insurance, when taken together, have been well styled), and the conditions of work of women and children, since these two categories cover the field where social legislation in Latin America has made most progress (see table 5).

• • • •

TO turn now to the series of questions put on the agenda by participating states.

Two very different matters have been introduced by the United States Government: (1) Raising to 16 the age of admission to employment; (2) rationalization of, and reduction of hours in, the textile industry.

With regard to child labor, there are four I. L. O. conventions regulating the admission of children to employment, dealing, respectively, with industry (1919), the merchant marine (1920), agriculture (1921) and nonindustrial employment (1932).

The United States Government, as is well known, is much interested in raising the age limit for admission of children to employment. At the recent seventy-third session of the governing body of the I. L. O. William Gorham Rice, jr., United States Government representative, explained that in more than two-thirds of the NRA codes a minimum age of 16 years had been fixed and for hazardous and unhealthy occupations, 18 years. Furthermore, that though the "codes are no longer a part of the law of the land, the child-labor provisions which they had laid down are still, to a large extent, observed." "The United States Government," he declared, "is therefore anxious that there should be no delay in taking up the question of the raising of the minimum age fixed in the conventions."

Without doubt, widespread unemployment, coupled with the tendency to raise the school-leaving age, will favor this United States initiative both at Santiago and Geneva. The question of hours of work in the textile industry is already on the agenda of the 1936 conference. It remains to be seen whether Latin-American conditions in the industry are such as to make possible an effective indorsement at Santiago of the United States desire to see hours reduced in this field.

• • • •

IN addition to the two proposals from the United States, the agenda includes two separate suggestions from the Government of Chile. One is a somewhat technical question connected with the organization of labor inspection about which some recommendations have already been adopted by the conference.

The other three, however, are of a more general character and reveal the radical predilections of President Arthur Alessandri of Chile. They are: (1) working class nutrition; (2) minimum wages regarded from the point of view of assuring an adequate standard of living, and (3) living and working conditions of agricultural workers.

It will be interesting to see how the conference tackles this trio of questions which, by implication at least, challenge present standards of wealth distribution.

The question of nutrition is already up for discussion in Geneva, having been introduced with spirit by Australia at the League Assembly this year.

The minimum wage question is one of great inherent complexity. Up to date the workers' representatives, as well as the employers' have held that any international agreement concerning wage levels is technically impossible in view of the difficulties of finding any adequate standard of comparison. A moment's reflection will show that, not only exchange problems but also questions of social benefits (insurance pensions, etc.) and habits of life (cost of food, housing, etc.) make comparison of money values virtually impossible.

Both in this matter and that of agricultural conditions the question as put forward by Chile for discussion is so vaguely worded as to mean anything or nothing. It remains to be seen what President Alessandri really has in mind.

• • • •

IN conclusion, let us venture one or two prophecies as to results that will follow the Santiago innovation.

It may very well be that the resolutions to be forwarded to the International Labor Conference will not set Lake Geneva on fire.

In less tangible ways, however, the Santiago conference will almost certainly yield important gains for the I. L. O.

Without doubt, there will be valuable repercussions regarding ratification and particularly application of conventions in Latin America. The I. L. O. is armed by its constitution (article 22) with sanctions to enforce conformity to the accepted law (i. e., by a state that has itself voluntarily ratified any convention in question, but it not applying it). But, in practice, such pressure, beyond a measure of moral suasion, has never been resorted to, and is probably impracticable. What the I. L. O. needs is understanding of its purposes, and the good will of members, especially of the men that count in the countries concerned. These men (or many of them) will be at Santiago, in consultation for the first time, perhaps, with one another, and with an important group of officials (30 in all) from Geneva, not to mention several leading members of the governing body.

Santiago should mean not only an educational experience for officials, but also for public opinion generally on the American continent. The mountain having gone to Mahomet, at Mahomet's expense, the event should prove a seven days' wonder in Latin America and make the I. L. O. a reality—perhaps even a living reality—to thousands who had never even heard of it before.

• • • •

AS a result, various obligations deriving from the constitution may be more generally observed by Latin-American states in future. Complete tripartite delegations may attend the annual conferences. Conventions adopted at Geneva may be more regularly presented for consideration of parliaments, as by law they should be. Annual reports, so important for statistical purposes and for judging the effectiveness, or otherwise, of application of conventions, may come more regularly and voluminously to the offices in Geneva.

On the other hand the Geneva office, through the personal contact of an important staff contingent with delegates and experts at Santiago, should be able all the better to visualize those special characteristics and conditions of labor in Latin America which need to be taken into account in planning for the future.

In short, the association of Latin-American states with the I. L. O. may receive an impetus that will be commensurate with their rapidly growing importance in the social and economic scheme of things.

If this be so, the Labor Conference of the Countries of America at Santiago, Chile, will not have been held in vain.

U. S. Excluded 1 Million Aliens In Last 5 Years

Would Have Swelled Ranks of Unemployed, Says State Department.

By the Associated Press.

The State Department estimated yesterday that the immigration laws had excluded from the United States since late 1930 approximately 1,000,000 aliens who might otherwise have been "added to the ranks of the unemployed."

Its estimate was made in announcing that immigration visas permitting 38,146 persons to enter the United States were issued during the fiscal year ended last June. This compared with 35,437 previous year and 258,348 in the fiscal year ended in June, 1930.

Against 233,798 applications from immigrants desiring to come to the United States, under the quota system limiting the number that can be admitted annually, only 17,291 "quota" visas were granted.

Non-Quota Visas.

The remainder were "non-quota" visas, representing relatives of American citizens, returning aliens, ministers, educators and students, and American-born alien women.

Despite the general low percentage of quota immigration, the State Department reported that quotas for Turkey, Spain and the Philippine Islands were filled completely during the year, and that for Greece was 99 per cent exhausted.

Germany was the country in which the largest number of quota visas was issued—4,653, or 27 per cent of the total. That country's quota of 25,957 was not even one-fifth filled, however.

Announcement Made.

The State Department announcement said:

"As the result of the enforcement by consular officers of the excluding provisions of the immigration laws, in the light of the existing unemployment situation in the United States, it is estimated, by using the monthly average of 21,529 immigration visas issued during the fiscal year 1930, that during the 57 months from October 1, 1930, to June 30, 1935, approximately 1,000,000 aliens who might have been admitted during normal times did not enter the United States to add to the ranks of the unemployed.

"Despite the general knowledge abroad of unemployment conditions in the United States, the registered demand at consular offices for quota immigration visas amounted on June 30, 1935, to 233,798, of which 45 per cent are chargeable to the German and Polish quotas."

Al Smith

Sullivan, and that invitation I accepted.

"It is the only one I ever received up to the one that came last week from Mrs. Roosevelt, which was promptly acknowledged.

"Mrs. Smith has never seen Washington, and I haven't been there since the fall of 1933, as I have said."

The statement from the White House, which promptly followed the Smith interview, said:

"The only statement made by anyone within the White House was that which Mrs. Roosevelt made today in answer to questions at a press conference. The statement was spoken by Mrs. Roosevelt to the newspaper women attending that conference. Transcribed from the stenographic reports of this conference, the statement, complete and literal, follows in full:

"'I cannot imagine how anyone got hold of that (the invitation extended to Gov. Smith). I worked with Gov. Smith in every State campaign and when he ran for President. I have always asked him here. I asked if he and his family were coming down for the twenty-fifth and if they would care to come and stay, just as I would have asked any other friend.'"

New Deal Blast Expected.

It is expected that Smith's speech before the Liberty League will be a blast against the Administration. He has been silent since his criticism of the Roosevelt monetary policies during which he invented the expression "baloney dollars."

Politicians, asked to comment on the controversy last night, shied away.

"I have no comment to make," said Postmaster General Farley.

He thereupon went to a radio station to uphold Roosevelt prosperity as an answer to Republican attacks.

Other influential Democrats were just as chary about commenting.

Former Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, according to the Associated Press, simultaneously declared he would support Smith for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1936 if Smith became a candidate.

Smith was wary about discussing his participation in the 1936 Presidential campaign, saying only that he would make "all conclusive statements" relative to it at future dates.

He would not divulge the nature of his address before the American Liberty League, but his statement today strengthened the belief that he planned a vigorous assault on the New Deal.

However, he acknowledged that he was pleased with the league's activities.

Waterways Treaty Postponement Seen

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt indicated yesterday the Administration would not ask the Senate at the coming session to ratify the St. Lawrence Waterways treaty with Canada.

In response to inquiries at his press conference, the President said he did not think the question would reach the Senate before Congress adjourns to prepare for the 1936 elections.

At the same time the Executive expressed the hope that a bridge across the St. Lawrence at Ogdensburg, N. Y., would be constructed. He said $3,000,000 of public works funds had been pledged for the bridge. Arrangements must be made with Canada before it can be built.

Sergt. Hoover, Oldest Soldier, Ends 32 Years in U. S. Army

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Dec. 30.—Shoulders thrust back, chin pulled in and hiding the emotion that was his, Sergt. John Hoover, the oldest soldier in the United States Army in point of service, was retired at Fort Benjamin Harrison today.

Belying in looks his 69 years and the hardships of 32 years of the tropics, the trenches, and two wars, the veteran stood proudly at attention as the formal order mustering him out of his life's work was read.

Then, standing on the reviewing stand surrounded by the highest commissioned officers at the post, the old soldier, struggling to keep the tears back, watched the entire Eleventh Infantry pass before him in tribute to his service.

Sergt. Hoover, a member of the service company of the Eleventh Infantry, plans to do what so many men of action have done before him—retire, at least temporarily, to the "little place" his sister owns at North Vernon, Ind.

"It's just a little place, but there will be something to do and anyway I have a lot of friends down in that part of Indiana I want to visit," Sergt. Hoover said.

"I've got my medals and my memories of having served with Gen. Pershing in France for 18 months. I have the memories of men I knew there as well as in the Spanish-American War and the last war. It's hard to break away from the Army, but that's just part of being a soldier.

"I was lucky. In the 32 years I was in action, I never once was wounded. I haven't even got a mark on me to show for those years. Others were not so furtunate."

Sergt. Hoover has the gold medal of honor for service in the Spanish-American War. He also was given the Liberty medal as a result of his duties in the World War. He said he thinks he may be a distant relative of former President Herbert Hoover.

Glass Will Forget Birthday, He Hopes

By the Associated Press.

Senator Glass hopes enough will happen Friday to make him "forget" Saturday is his birthday.

He hopes also that the snowstorm which yesterday delayed the arrival of his train in Washington five hours forebodes no such delay in an early adjournment of Congress.

The fiery senior Virginia Senator's seventy-eighth birthday falls on the day after Congress is convened, but he said he wanted to be allowed to forget the birthday and think about Congress.

only 15 persons per 100,000 population. In 1930 tne rate had climbed to 80 and by 1935 it reached 100. It is more frequent among men than among women.

Asthma Treatment.

A new medical treatment for bronchial asthma, which stops the strangling paroxysms of this common malady, by an upside down position in coughing, was also reported to the association.

The coughing is preceded by remedies to loosen the lung and bronchial passages. The treatment was described by Noel F. Shambaugh, M. D., assistant clinical professor of medicine, University of Southern California.

The position, which roughly imitates a monkey hanging by its tail, was suggested by laboratory studies of the nature of this disease. It was found that an internal sweeping out, like dusting a room, was likely to relieve most of the trouble.

The internal "dust" is made up of products of chronic inflammation involving lungs, air passages and lymph glands.

A method of tapping the brain with fine electric wires to learn its geography and pave the way for discovering the secrets of mental action is new to science. It was developed by Dr. Edmund Jacobson, of the University of Chicago.

He tried it on a man, part of whose skull was missing, due to an operation on the bone. Fine wires were able to penetrate almost 3 inches deep without causing pain or harm.

Several explorations were tried. Only one brought results. The fine wire, at a distance of nearly 2 inches down in the brain, on the left side, not far from the top of the skull, touched a spot that sent out strong electric signals every time the man closed his jaws tightly.

Drugs' Benefits Sought.

The first step in a study to discover whether there are any drugs which can improve man's mind was reported today by Dr. Walter R. Miles, of Yale University.

He sought first for effects on rats with caffein, alcohol, morphine, plain salt water, thyroxin, antiutrin, hyoscin, strychnine, cocaine and adrenalin.

Even in the smallest amounts none helped a healthy rat, but some improved the learning powers of blind rats. This was a suggestion that there may be conditions in which some medicinal drug may improve the mind.

Use of scientific research to end agricultural production control and dependence of industry on tariffs was advocated today by Dr. Karl T. Compton, incoming president of the association.

Scientists Skeptical.

St. Louis, Dec. 30 (AP).—Heart specialists here greeted reports of a complete cure for angina pectoris, announced at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, with mingled hope and skepticism.

The cure—a drug, trichlorethylene, snuffed through the nose—was announced by Dr. John C. Krantz, jr., of the University of Maryland. The drug ends the angina pectoris pain instantly.

Dr. J. C. Lyter, a leading Midwest specialist, declared hormones from human urine and from the muscle extract of veal had proved of great value in treatment, but that he had not met with the "spectacular success" claimed for the new drug.

On Right Track.

"However, it is exactly along the line followed by Dr. Krantz—dilation of the coronary arteries—that we must work for a cure. I sincerely hope he has found the answer."

Dr. Llewellyn Sale, chief of staff of the Jewish Hospital, declared the remedy would have to be met with "a healthy skepticism, but a readiness to try it out."

"Such a cure could be discovered, but it will have to be tried on many more cases before the medical profession can definitely accept it as a positive remedy," he said.

Frankly dubious over the drug's curative powers, Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella, of the St. Louis University Medical School, thought it might prove of value to supplement other quick-acting drugs now being used to relieve angina pectoris pain.

"The drug, since it is apparently rapidly diffusable, may relieve pain immediately but I can't see how it would prevent spasms in the future. The drug would have to be present for at least a year, since the spasms may occur at infrequent intervals, before any claim to a cure should be considered.

"I think the report will be taken with great skepticism by most doctors."

Trade Aid Shown By Road Building

By the Associated Press.

An estimate that each $100,000,000 of expenditure for highway construction has resulted in transaction of other business totaling $315,000,000 yesterday was issued by the Bureau of Public Roads.

In an analysis of highway construction expenditures, the bureau said spending of $100,000,000 in one year results in an average employment of 102,690 persons at an average cost of $970 per person. The bureau said that for each person employed on direct highway jobs —37,960 workers—approximately 1.7 persons are employed indirectly in industries furnishing materials, equipment, supplies and services.

In connection with highway expenditures, the bureau presented a table showing the estimated average annual construction expenditure for all purposes from 1926 to 1933 to be $8,894,875,000. Public utilities, including railroads, accounted for 33.56 per cent of the average annual construction. Private construction—including residential, commercial, factory, farm, religious, memorial and social—accounted for 36.86 per cent.

Word to Grant France Benefit In Trade Waits

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt reserved judgment yesterday on whether France shall benefit from reduced tariffs granted The Netherlands by the United States.

His action immediately brought speculation as to whether France was being given another chance to remove trade restrictions against American products—with the possibility of being blacklisted along with Germany if she does not.

Negotiations for a reciprocal trade pact with France have been in progress for some time, but the governments have been unable to reach an agreement.

Under Secretary Hull's program, tariff concessions granted to one nation are extended to all which do not discriminate against American exports. Up to the present, Germany is the only nation denied such benefits.

Formally proclaiming the newly signed United States-Netherlands agreement, Mr. Roosevelt told the Treasury instructions concerning the application of rates in that pact to the products of France and its colonies would be issued "at a later date."

His letter reiterated that Germany continues to discriminate against American commerce and instructed that it shall not receive the rate cuts granted in The Netherlands agreement.

"In respect of the products of France (including Algeria) and its assimilated colonies, namely Indochina, Madagascar, Reunion, Gaudeloupe, Martinique and Guiana, instructions as to the application of the proclaimed duties will be issued at a later date," the President said.

In the absence of further instruction, France still will be entitled to benefit from the American tariff reductions granted in treaties with Brazil, Canada, Sweden, Haiti and Belgium.

The Netherlands agreement, which was signed here on December 20, becomes effective February 1. In exchange for various tariff concessions by the United States, Holland agrees to enlarge quota allowances for American products and to buy a specific quantity of milling wheat and flour from this country annually.

protest against the new law, but also Secretary Morgenthau. The new agency was given considerably increased powers, among them those of suspending licenses and assessing fines.

While officially it was denied yesterday that there had been any friction within the Treasury over alcohol enforcement, it was at the same time reported that there had been a "slowing up" of the machinery of enforcement and that there was some conflict between the alcohol law and the internal revenue statutes.

Amendments Seen.

Amendments to the alcohol control law are expected to be proposed in the coming session of Congress, but there has been no open movement as yet to divorce its administration from the Treasury. One amendment is expected to provide for a deputy commissioner to serve in the absence of the head of the bureau.

In previous years Treasury control over alcohol has been confined to the taxing function. The present law covers complete regulation of the business down to rather minute details, most of which have no direct connection with taxation. The arrangement is opposed by at least some concerns in the liquor industry. They object that while the commissioner is given heavy responsibility the corresponding authority is lacking.

Another objection is that because of so-called "dual" control of the alcohol administration there are many delays incident to the necessity for obtaining Treasury approval of acts of the commissioner.

Methodists Are Told They Can't Go to War

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 30 (AP).—An ardent pacifist, Dr. Kirby Page, told more than 5,000 young Methodists here tonight that, as Christians, they cannot go to war.

"Christians," said Dr. Page, religious writer, "are obliged to follow God rather than man and to say to our Government that we are unable to sanction or to participate in war."

"Box Office Champions for November" Are Made Known by Actual Cash Receipts

Leaders Carry Weight as Ace Films on View

By Nelson B. Bell.

Unless yesterday's tabulation of our suspicions regarding the "ten best pictures of the year" exhausted the reader's enthusiasm for formal ratings, it may be of interest to know that the Motion Picture Herald's monthly survey of so-called "key city" box-office statements has established the identities of the "box-office champions for November."

This is the authentic appraisal of box-office values, formulated upon the basis of actual earnings at the ticket wickets, of the pictures being shown in the principal cities of the country. It represents an infallible index to a cross-section of bona fide public taste in cinematographic entertainment.

There seems to be a slight confusion in the Herald's announcement of the November "champs." First and second ratings are undisputed. Two pictures apparently are tied for third and three for fifth.

No accounting is made for an eminently respectable fourth ranking.

Whether the second of the pictures ostensibly tied for third, or the first of the three seemingly tied for fifth, should be dropped into the fourth notch you and I probably never will know.

Here Are the Champions.

At any rate, here they are:

First place goes without contest to "Mutiny on the Bounty," as it rightly should; second, to "Thanks a Million." The two subjects which may, or may not, be tied for third are "The Crusades" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and the three fifths—you can pick your own fourth from this conglomeration—"In Old Kentucky," "A Night at the Opera" and "Metropolitan."

There is a bit of a musical trend in this summation. "Thanks a Million," the Mendelssohn score for "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "A Night at the Opera" and "Metropolitan" all possess qualities of musicianship that serve as eloquent evidence that the American public gradually is becoming tune conscious and enjoys the experience.

"Thanks a Million," of course, runs to popular forms of chromatic expression. The Felix Mendelssohn music for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is of standard worth, and in the Marx Brothers' insane travesty of grand opera, and Lawrence Tibbett's more serious treatment of the same honorable branch of theatrical endeavor, the most popular of the operatic arias are given a full opportunity to impress themselves upon the minds of motion picture audiences.

As among the major producing companies, the month's winners gives a slight lift to Twentieth Century-Fox. "Thanks a Million," starring Dick Powell, borrowed from the Warners; "In Old Kentucky," the last of the Will Rogers posthumous releases, and "Metropolitan" all emanate from the Fox lot.

Of the remainder, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer scores with two—"Mutiny on the Bounty" and "A Night at the Opera"—and Paramount and the Warner Brothers with one each, "The Crusades" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," respectively.

Worthy selections, all of these, although I would not rate them in precisely the order established by the box-office.

However, as I recall it, it is money that talks!

The famous Hall Johnson Choir that contributed so much in musical and atmospheric effect to the rounded performance of Marc Connelly's stage production of "The Green Pastures" during all of the successive seasons of its triumph up and down the land, leaves New York this morning for Burbank, Calif., to take its accustomed place in the Warner Brothers' picturization of the celebrated drama of Old Testament scripture as interpreted by the simple mind of the primitive Negro.

The Hall Johnson group of singers leaves Manhattan at 8:10 a. m. and will spend a brief noonday 40 minutes in the National Capital between the hours of 12:40 and 1:20 p. m.

If a burst of song should waft through Union Station between the hours named, it probably will be these talented colored vocalists airing their splendid voices and dusting off their vocal cords.

Those Midnight Shows.

True to yesterday's promise, it may be set down now—to be pasted in your hat, thrown into the waste basket or otherwise disposed of—that midnight shows celebrating the advent of the New Year will be held tonight in the Belasco, Loew's Fox, Palace, RKO-Keith's, Warner Brothers' Earle and Metropolitan theaters.

At the Belasco the attraction will be "The New Gulliver," with the final projection beginning at 12:49 a. m. RKO-Keith's will inaugurate the engagement of Lily Pons in her first feature picture, "I Dream Too Much," at approximately 7 p. m., with a final showing beginning at 12:02 a. m.

At the Fox and Palace, extended schedules will provide for late performances beginning at 11:30 p. m., and a final complete performance at the Earle will begin at approximately the same hour, with stage show at 11:55 p. m., and the last presentation of the feature picture at 12:40 a. m.

Preview of Dickens.

The Palace's midnight feature, by the way, will not be "The Littlest Rebel," in which Shirley Temple, John Boles and Jack Holt currently are playing, but a special preview—a week ahead of its regular engagement—of "A Tale of Two Cities," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of the Dickens novel with Ronald Colman in the stellar role of Sydney Carton.

Perhaps, after all, the simplest method of keeping these juggled schedules in orderly mental arrangement is to clip out the "Film Time Table" appearing elsewhere on today's theater pages and paste that in the hat instead of these reiterative remarks.

Reverting just a moment to the Metropolitan, the midnight attraction there will be "Show Them No Mercy," a new film, which will be thrown upon the screen as soon as the last "Nevada" audience has dispersed.

While this department usually does not concern itself with the bills in the neighborhood houses, the attractions are sufficiently important to seem to warrant mention of the fact that the midnight shows at the Warner Brothers' Tivoli, Colony, Central and Penn theaters will feature "Mutiny on the Bounty," the Marx Brothers in "A Night at the Opera," James Cagney in "Frisco Kid" and "A Night at the Opera," respectively. Not one of these but can be unequivocally recommended as a superior picture in its class.

Gosh, How We Suffer!

So the drama desks are in for it again tonight!

At the witching hour of midnight—and why it is called that I shall never know—the five incumbents of the critical jobs on the local press will interview Jean Harlow from the stage of Loew's Fox Theater by long-distance phone.

This is one of those bizarre conceptions for which Divisional Manager Carter Barron is so justly noted. He can think up more trouble per square inch for the boys and girls on the theater desks than any other dozen executives in captivity.

The only nice thing about this one is that we all know Jean Harlow and entertain extremely high regard for her as a frequently maligned young woman who, in her persona propria, is not at all as she is so often represented on the silver sheet. Jean is a pretty grand scout, and I, for one, will be glad to hear her voice again over the phone.

Is Up to Engineers.

Whether or not this is a matter that can be communicated to the audience over the public-address system of Loew's Fox is something that rests with the engineers of the telephone company, who have been working on the thing for days—and as far as we ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the press are concerned, it might as well be spelled "daze" at the outset and have it over with!

If amplification cannot make our conversations audible to the audience in the Fox they will be translated (also sic) by stentors who will probably get the whole business handsomely garbled and give you no idea whatever of what really was asked and answered.

At any rate, we shall give the novelty a whirl and hope you'll like it.

Transmission Normally Clear.

There should be no difficulty as far as the clarity of transmission is concerned.

The last time I essayed a thing of this sort it was a long-distance interview with Irene Dunne, who was in her home in Hollywood, whilst I was in Johnny Payette's office in the Earle Theater Building, wondering if Miss Dunne might not be in the next room. It was that clear.

And we had a lot of fun. Formal questions had been formulated and communicated by mail to Miss Dunne, but after No. 1 they were abandoned and we merely had a delightfully chummy talk.

I hope something like that may happen tonight.

Word-to-the-Wise Note.

In case it does not, that will be I they are sweeping out into the alley!

In New Year's Preview Tonight

Although its regular engagement will not begin for another week, the special screen feature of the New Year's Eve midnight performance at Loew's Palace Theater tonight will be the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film version of Charles Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities," in which the stellar role is played by Ronald Colman. Mr. Colman, as goes without saying, is cast as that admirable friend and true lover, Sydney Carton. He is pictured above, at left, with Reginald Owen, only one of the long list of distinguished players who make up the cast of this picture.

Press Club Members To Be at Dudley Rites

Funeral services were held in Petersburg, Va., today for Mayo Dudley, Washington newspaper reporter, who died Sunday at his home, 3100 Connecticut avenue northwest.

President Mark Foote, of the National Press Club, designated the following to attend the funeral:

U. S. Fan Dance Aims Discussed At White House

Mrs. Roosevelt's Parley for Press Enlivened by Theatrical Talk.

By the Associated Press.

Ruby Bae, "Federal fan dancer No. 1" of Minneapolis, yesterday was fitted into her little place in the scheme of things at Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's press conference.

She's one of 6,000 professional theater people—actors, playwrights, designers—whose Nation-wide activities on a "security wage" from Uncle Sam were described by Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, director of the Federal theater project.

Soon there'll be 10,000, Mrs. Flanagan predicted — perhaps by January 10. A survey showed that many eligible.

Gowned in becoming brown and green, Mrs. Flanagan sat on a divan beside Mrs. Roosevelt and detailed shows that soon will be seen the country over from a dime to a dollar per admission.

Asked about Miss Bae, Minneapolis fan dancer, Mrs. Flanagan replied, with great seriousness: "We do have some burlesque, variety and vaudeville performers on our hands, in whom we are very interested. They have great skill. There's no one on earth more skilled than the trapeze performer."

To utilize such skill, she said, several circuses are now playing—in New York, Chicago and Southern California.

In Chicago: "One theater is to be devoted to plays important in American theatrical history, with Harry Minturn directing. 'Texas Steer,' 'Old Homestead' and 'The Octoroon,' not done with the tongue in the cheek, but reviving the historic values."

In San Francisco: "Blanch Bates and Gilmore Brown have leased a theater, to be used in conjunction with music and art projects."

Wearing a red homespun woolen "jumper dress" with white blouse, Mrs. Roosevelt wished her press conference a happy New Year; humorously obliged with her New Year's resolution: "I think I am going to try to resolve to have more time to think."

She solemnly evaluated the year 1935: "Probably the most important thing happening to all of us is a gain in a wider vision, and a greater knowledge of a variety of social conditions, and an awakening realization of what these conditions mean to each of us in our own particular spheres."

U. S. Board Plans Control of Radio

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Communications Commission is preparing to step into the field of chain broadcasting regulation.

Under the 1934 communications act, the commission is authorized to impose regulations governing chain broadcasting, but has not done so except so far as networks were affected by regulation of individual radio stations.

A high commission source said yesterday the new regulations probably will be issued within the next few months. The commission has conducted field tests to determine to what extent the present network setup has resulted in duplication of programs.

The regulations, it was said, probably will be designed, to eliminate undue duplication. Commission officials declared it would be possible to chart the general station alignments on networks to insure a variety of programs to listeners throughout the country.

Program duplication now is particularly apparent, it was said, in rural areas where listeners may receive only two or three high-powered stations, all of which may be offering the same presentations.

The chain broadcast regulation is expected to be tied in with the commission's study of a broad rearrangement of present channels.

This study is pointed toward determining the advisability of stepping up power and readjusting wave lengths of certain stations to bring about greater program "balance."

Ph. D. Demand Hit by Teachers Of Journalism

Association Fights Policy of Colleges to Require Degree of Staff.

Sharp opposition to the policy of some colleges to require Ph. D. degrees of journalism instructors was voiced yesterday by the American Association of Teachers of Journalism.

The organization adopted resolutions indorsing high education and professional standards for such appointments, but condemning as "unsound and shortsighted" any policy "which emphasizes the Ph. D. at the expense of adequate professional experience and actual writing pertinent to journalism as a qualification" for teachers.

Gayle C. Walker, of the University of Nebraska, was elected to succeed Kenneth E. Olson, of Rutgers University, as association president.

Elmo Scott Watson, of Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, was elected vice president, and H. H. Herbert, of the University of Oklahoma, secretary-treasurer.

The association ended its four-day session without selecting a city for the 1936 convention. St. Louis and Los Angeles are the chief contenders. A choice will be made by the executive committee.

A resolution commended American newspapers and press associations for improved methods of presenting news, "through improved facilities and personnel and especially by the development of background reporting so as to give an integrated picture of events, have contributed conspicuously to a better and quicker understanding of foreign and domestic affairs and to the formation of more intelligent public opinion."

The resolution condemned "those self-appointed critics of the American press who through ignorance, prejudice or self-interest question the fidelity or the integrity of the great majority of the press of the United States in fulfilling its function."

An increase in the number of high schools and junior colleges offering courses in journalism caused the association to adopt resolutions urging that "professional or formal training for journalism be confined to those colleges and universities which are able to organize it efficiently, to staff it adequately and to supplement the formal courses with the proper laboratory facilities and professional connections and particularly that the high schools limit their field of activity to the school community."

The organization also adopted resolutions paying tribute to outstanding journalism teachers who died in the past year, including Walter Williams, University of Missouri; Willard G. Bleyer, University of Wisconsin; Harry F. Harrington, Northwestern University; Buford O. Brown, Stanford University; Clarence E. Cason, University of Alabama, and Albert H. Nelson, Michigan State University.

De Witt Mackenzie, director of the Associated Press foreign service, told the association the Associated Press has been bothered by censorship in only a few foreign countries.

Seymour Berkson, managing editor of the foreign division of Universal Service, said a "muzzled press" in Italy was used to stir up sentiment favoring the war against Ethiopia, although "the population has no actual taste for war."

Hollywood

Hollywood, Dec. 30.

MARLENE DEITRICH'S husband, Rudolph Sieber, is in town . . . He, Marlene, and John Gilbert went visiting together . . . Kay Francis told friends at a party that she would marry Delmar Daves any day. . . . The Donald Woods expect a baby . . . Dixie Dunbar has replaced Alice Faye as the girl who is seen with the most boy friends. Dixie's selections this week were Paul Kritch and Addison Randall. . . . Dick Rodgers and Larry Hart have written a song for "Dancing Buccaneer" which kids such ditties as "The Continental" in a novel manner. It is a period flicker and Rodgers and Hart have a song called "When You Do the Waltz," introducing the waltz as the new, hot dance of the day. . . . Darryl Zanuck has hired Roscoe Turner to fly him to Palm Springs daily while his flicker, "Under Two Flags," is shooting there . . . A prominent blonde actress has a maid who answers the door and says to anyone standing there, "Missie loves company."

* * * *

Liam O'Flaherty has written a novel called "Hollywood Cemetery," which will be discussed plenty. Characters in it will be recognized as noted Hollywood producers, directors and writers thinly disguised . . . The novel begins with the heroine in a situation which the Hays' office would never approve; but the lady's talent is recognized and she is given the chance to become an actress . . . Jack Kirkland and June Travis are playing "Boy Meets Girl" at the Trocadero . . . Tom Jenk has changed the title of his flicker again. He now calls it "It Didn't Even Happen One Night."

* * * *

Joan Crawford and Clifton Webb refused to rehearse their dance routines for "Elegance" together. But Sammy Lee, the dance director, had them shake hands and now they're shaking their feet together. . . . Helen Vinson has Fred Perry's photo in her cigarette case and whenever she offers an actor a cigarette he meets Mr. Perry. . . . The best number in the revue, "Follies of the Day," is the novelty dance by Sally Keith. It would be a great act for a Broadway night club and replace the "Fan Dance." . . . Eleanor Rudolph will be Mrs. Jerry Wald. . . . Fred Keating was very amusing as the master of ceremonies the other evening. . . . Keating said he was going to present a new style of entertainment, that merely to be different he was going to present professionals. Of course, he said, some of them might be too good, and if they are they'll get the gong. . . . There is a Mr. Garbo in Hollywood, not concerned with motion pictures, and he has a daughter named Greta.

* * * *

Horses are the main topic in the cinema city now . . . The race track was so crowded the opening day that there was hardly room for the horses . . . Many actors own and race their own horses . . . It is a good investment and is listed as a business venture on the income tax account . . . A studio has strict orders that no writers are to phone bets to bookies . . . To beat this ruling a writer may be heard saying over the phone: "In that third act I want to put in a character named Bamboula and in the sixth sequence I like Valiant Fox." . . . A producer, who shall not be named, said he wanted to do a flicker about that well known raconteur, Dutch Schultz.

* * * *

It was always a big problem where to take Shirley Temple to dine on maid's night out . . . Mr. and Mrs. Temple have solved it . . . They go to a not-so-prominent restaurant on Wilshire boulevard. They sit in a booth and several waitresses always stand near the table . . . Whenever the tourists start to mob Shirley the waitresses rush to the table and offer interference by pretending to be delivering the dishes . . . H. Carroll was having a talk with the publicity chief of a major studio. They both promised to tell the truth and lay their cards on the table. And Carroll discovered the press agent was a fellow who put his cards on the table—face down. . . . In "Sylvia Scarlett," Katharine Hepburn portrays a boy as well as a girl, and the picture becomes a little confused. In fact, it annoyed Joel Sayre so that he stood up in the Pantages Theater the other evening and shouted, "Is this a six-day bi-sexual race?"

Bank Deposit Study Plans Completed

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board completed plans yesterday for a $500,000 study of the "turnover" in bank deposits between 1928 and 1931.

The project, financed from works relief funds, will be carried out in 45 States and the District of Columbia and will employ approximately 800 or 900 collar unemployed.

The study will be confined to banks now closed, and is expected to be of wide importance "to the Federal Reserve and to commercial banks."

Officials explained that the tabulations were expected to show just how often people drew heavily on their accounts during the period in which the 1929 crash occurred.

This, they said, would aid banks in determining their investments so as to remain "liquid" without piling up excess reserves, and give an indication of spending habits of both individuals and corporations. The study also is expected to help the Reserve Board determine monetary policies.

Walter Hampden Includes Washington in New Tour of "Cyrano," to Open Jan. 25

Rostand Drama Holds Records In Many Cities

Acceding to insistent demands from many cities, Walter Hampden has decided to make a final strictly limited tour in his greatest success, "Cyrano de Bergerac," the most popular romantic play of modern times, in which he has appeared 878 times to gross receipts of more than $2,000,000, and the title role of which he has made peculiarly his own in America.

Opening in Hartford at the Bushnell Auditorium on Saturday, January 25, Mr. Hampden will play the following week at the Colonial Theater, Boston. He then will visit the following cities, only, and in the order named: Providence, New Haven, Springfield, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Baltimore and Brooklyn, with the season to end on Broadway in May.

It has been four years since Mr. Hampden has played the great-nosed hero of Edmond Rostand's heroic comedy, and these probably will be his last performances in the role, because conditions in the theater are making it increasingly difficult to operate so big and expensive a production on a paying basis.

Involving an organization of over a hundred—requiring a company of 75 and a stage crew of 27, as well as 6 musicians and 2 horses—and demanding a special train of 7 cars for transportation, "Cyrano" easily is the costliest of all non-musical plays to present, and it follows that practically capacity business at full prices everywhere is imperative if the play is to remain on tour.

And it is just such business that the Hampden "Cyrano" always has enjoyed in the past. To this day it holds the non-musical record for business in many cities despite the claims of several other popular attractions of recent years whose receipts have been widely heralded—over $37,000 for a single week in Philadelphia, for instance, and over $35,000 in Boston. It has been played four weeks in Philadelphia with the lowest gross over $28,000, and four in Boston with the lowest $27,000, each of the other three weeks in each city grossing over $30,000.

Those figures are likely to remain something for the other attractions to shoot at for a long time.

Of course, Mr. Hampden again will use Brian Hooker's superb rendition of "Cyrano," which was written especially for him and is his exclusive property. Katherine Warren again will play Roxane.

Rehearsals will be begun early next week.

She Is Booming "Collegiate"

From looking at this photograph of Virginia Gray in the costume she wears in Paramount's "Collegiate," the new musical with Jack Oakie, Joe Penner and Frances Langford, one would hardly guess that it was only a few years ago when she played Little Eva in the screen version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." We should say that the present Miss Gray possesses quite a wallop. In case you doubt it, ask the bass drum, which seems about to find out! "Collegiate," incidentally, opens on the screen at the Earle on Friday of this week.

Music to Feature Open House at 'Y'

Music will be a feature of the open house entertainment tomorrow in the Central Young Men's Christian Association, Eighteenth and G streets. Walsh Appeal Lost In Accident Award

Damages of $10,000, awarded Mrs. Anna Rosenberg after she was run down by an automobile belonging to Leonard P. Webb, assistant coach of the George Washington University football team, were sustained by the United States Court of Appeals yesterday.

Walsh, through his attorney, had appealed from the verdict given by a jury in the District Supreme Court several months ago. Walsh contended several errors had been committed during his trial and had prejudiced the case against him. Mrs. Rosenberg, it was shown, was struck at Pennsylvania avenue near Twenty-second street, May 21, 1933.

Walsh testified he had not operated his car for several hours preceding the mishap and did not know who the operator was at the time the woman was struck. Attorneys A. L. Newmyer, Lewis Shapiro and David Bres, representing the plaintiff, contended she had used every ordinary precaution in crossing the street at the point of the mishap.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

SOMEWHAT of an exodus of Government scientists has taken place this week to the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science which begins in St. Louis today. Austin H. Clark, National Museum, director of publicity for the association, preceded the Washington delegation to St. Louis.

BAKER.

Some of the more outstanding papers to be presented at the session by Federal scientists have already been listed in this column, as well as an account of the exhibits to be featured at the meeting by various Government bureaus.

"The Effects of Soil in Relation to Nitrate Solution on the Germination of Seeds of Poa compressa," by Alice M. Andersen (F), Plant Industry.

Other papers will be presented by the following Agriculture workers: F. A. Abegg, F. V. Owen (C), H. H. Smith, Alice L. Brown, George Stewart, J. B. Kincer, E. R. Miller, W. P. Raleigh, C. F. Clark, A. E. Mercker, M. A. Smith, M. C. Goldsworthy, R. P. True, E. T. Miller, George L. Peltier, E. E. Clayton, John Monteith, jr., Mary E. Reid (C), and P. Macy.

Samuel D. Sanders, of Washington State, has been appointed cooperative bank commissioner of the Farm Credit Administration, effective January 1, to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Francis W. Peck.

Another Hurdle Looms.

A report circulating around portends a dubious New Year gift to Government employes in the guise of a change in the present Appeal Board of Civil Service Commission. It is said the change will add another hurdle for an employe to jump before obtaining consideration when questions of status or grievance arise.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF F, P or C appears after your name in this column call in person on the Federal Diary editor today only between 12 and 2 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's Theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable in person and other acts; screen, Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery and five other stars in "Ah Wilderness!"), or to P, Loew's Palace (Shirley Temple and John Boles in "The Littlest Rebel"), or to C, Loew's Columbia (Dick Powell, Ann Dvorak in "Thanks a Million").

Hugh L. Kerwin, director of the United States Conciliation Service of the Department of Labor, announces that the service during the year just past made possible adjustment in 749 labor disputes, involving 785,077 workers. He says that 173 cases were in Ohio, 113 in Illinois, 113 in Pennsylvania, and the rest scattered through other States.

Mrs. Flood Presents Her Daughter, Cousin

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Mrs. Henry D. Flood entertained at a tea dance from 5 to 7 p. m. yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club, when she presented her daughter, Miss Eleanor Flood, and her cousin, Miss Westwood Byrd, to society.

Miss Byrd is the daughter of Senator and Mrs. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, and Miss Flood is the daughter of the late Representative Flood, who served in Congress from Virginia for many years and was a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House during the World War.

Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd, who is the grandmother of one of yesterday's debutantes, Miss Byrd, and the aunt of Miss Flood, received with the hostess and the two guests of honor.

The club was attractively decorated for the party. In the drawing room there were open fires, and one end was banked with flowers sent by admiring friends to the debutantes.

In the ballroom there was dancing and hundreds of young people spent most of the afternoon there. The older guests sat in groups in the drawing room to watch the arrival of others, gathered in the tearoom, or lingered at the cocktail bar.

Mrs. Flood wore an afternoon gown of black and silver chiffon fashioned with a cape shoulder line and a flowing skirt. She wore a corsage of orchids, as did all the young girls who assisted the debutantes.

Miss Byrd had chosen a frock of deep green crepe, trimmed with touches of gold. Both wore corsages of orchids, and carried large old-fashioned bouquets in paper frills.

Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd wore a gown of deep garnet velvet, trimmed with collar and cuffs of antique gold. She wore a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, also was glimpsed. Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, wearing a black gown trimmed with pale blue satin and a tiny black hat, was accompanied by Mrs. Hiram Bingham, in black trimmed with touches of terra cotta red.

Held Small Court.

Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War, who has just returned from the Philippines, was accompanied by her two daughters, Mrs. Harry Baxter ad Miss Betsy Dern, and the three held a small court as their many friends welcomed their return.

Mrs. Dern wore a suit of rose-colored tweed with a black hat, and Mrs. Baxter was in a gown of pale beige crepe embroidered with a brown monogram, topped by a cape of leopard and a brown felt hat. Miss Dern was in a frock of black and silver lame, with a black velvet beret.

Assisting Mrs. Flood were her sisters, Mrs. Augustine L. Humes, of New York, and Mrs. Palmer Derby, of Washington. At the tea table were Mrs. William Phillips, wife of the Undersecretary of State; Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Mrs. John H. Gibbons, Mrs. Charles Warren, Miss Josephine Patten, Mrs. Perry L. Miles, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mrs. George Barnett, and Mrs. Ben Cain, jr., of Warrenton, Va.

Assisting the debutantes were Miss Marguerite Hagner, Miss Emily Davis, Miss Yolande de Mauduit, Miss Miriam Scott, Miss Frances Andrews, Miss Angelica Lloyd, Miss Mary Wells, Miss Jane Cary Randolph, of Virginia; Miss Mildred McKinney, of Richmond, and three cousines of Miss Flood and Miss Byrd, Miss Roberta Conrad, of Baltimore; Miss Margaret Byrd and Miss Fenton Nelson, of Winchester, Va.

Mr. John Roosevelt, son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, was among the hundreds of young men who lingered until a late hour.

Diplomats Present.

Among the diplomats at the party were the Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Don Guillermo Patterson; the Minister of Greece, Mr. Demetrios Sicilianos; Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama, and her debtuante daughter, Senorita Amelita Alfaro, who wore yesterday a smart black frock with an off-the-face hat.

Others present were Mrs. Campbell Prichett, Mrs. Sidney Cloman, the Misses Patten, Mrs. John W. Davidge and her daughter, Miss Martha Davidge; Miss Maude Davidge, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Bowler Hull, in smart black; Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Hayne Ellis and their daughter, Miss Lucie Ellis, the latter in pale gray; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Owsley, the latter wearing a frock and hat of brown with a handsome scarf and muff of sables; Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman with their daughters, Miss Ruth and Miss Alice Tuckerman; Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, Mrs. Robert L. Owen, wife of former Senator Owen; Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Mrs. Louis Greene and her daughter, Miss Anne Carter Greene; Miss Anne and Miss Mary Randolph, Mrs. James Carroll Frazier and Capt. and Mrs. John P. Jackson.

Also Mr. Ralph Hill, Mme. de Mauduit, Mrs. Sherman Miles, Mr. Everett Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Hubbard, Mrs. Emlen Davies with her daughter, Miss Emlen Knight Davies, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Aldace Walker; Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State; Mrs. Harry Meem, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barbard, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Joseph K. Taussig and their daughter, Miss Margaret Taussig; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Emory S. Land, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, wife of Representative Fish; Mrs. Charles Riggs, Mr. Ankor Bojsen and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson.

Daughter Is Born To Guggenheims

Mother Formerly Was Miss Helen Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, jr., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Grace Ann, on Sunday in Salt Lake City, Utah, where the young couple are making their home. Mrs. Guggenheim was formerly Miss Helen Allen, of Montreal.

Mr. Guggenheim is the son of Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, of Washington and Babylon, Long Island. Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim are entertaining at a buffet supper on New Year's Eve.

Netherlands' Envoy Returns To Washington

Mme. van Haersma de With and Daughter to Come Here January 14.

The Minister of the Netherlands, Jonkheer H. M. van Haersma de With, has returned to Washington after an absence of several months. Mme. van Haersma de With and their daughter, Mlle. Nora de With, will arrive in this country January 14 and will come directly to Washington.

Mme. van Haersma de With and her daughter have been absent since the early spring. In April, accompanied by Mme. van Haersma de With's sister, Mlle. Inez van den Broek d'Obrenan, who had been staying in the Capital, they went to Florida and Cuba to spend several weeks, and on their return spent a brief time in the Capital preparing for the motor trip which took them to the West Coast. Shortly after their return they sailed for Europe.

Arts Club Planning Bal Boheme Jan. 20

Following the Christmas holidays, artists of the Capital will turn their attention to preparations for the thirteenth annual bal boheme of the Arts Club, which will take place at the Willard Hotel the evening of January 20.

The committee on costumes is headed by Mrs. George H. Girty. The costumes have been designed by Mr. Raymond Mentzer, formerly of Worcester and East Gloucester. Mrs. Helen Tanquary Smith is chairman of decorations. Mr. Mentzer has as his first assistant, Mr. Junior Brooke Todd, who will design the panels for the lobby in keeping with the ballroom decorations.

Mrs. Fulton Lewis soon will announce the list of patronesses and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor and Mrs. Frederick V. Coville will name those who hold boxes for the event.

The committee on selection of costume awards, with Mr. William J. McManus as chairman, urges all artists of the club to submit their works of art, original in design and workmanship, before the committee meeting on Tuesday, January 7. The members of this committee include Miss Alice J. Clapp, Mrs. Oliver Owen Kuhn, Mrs. George Hewitt Myers and Dr. Hans Kindler.

Tickets are being distributed by Mrs. W. Ridgley Chapline.

Two Debutantes Presented to Capital Society

Miss Eleanor Flood (right) was presented to Capital society yesterday afternoon by her mother, Mrs. Henry D. Flood, at a tea at the 1925 F Street Club. Miss Westwood Byrd (below), daughter of Senator Harry F. Byrd and Mrs. Byrd, was also presented to Washington society by Mrs. Flood. Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd, grandmother of Miss Byrd and aunt of Miss Flood, came to Washington for the debut, and received with Mrs. Flood.

The Edgar Morrises Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

Reception Is Held in Sixteenth Century Spanish Room Designed by the Hostess; More Than 400 Guests Attend the Affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris celebrated their silver wedding anniversary last evening with a reception at their home, 5242 Colorado avenue. More than 400 guests were present.

After being greeted by Mrs. Morris, who wore a gown of silver lame and a corsage of orchids, the guests were escorted into the Spanish Sixteenth Century room, depicting a street scene in Old Madrid, which was designed and decorated by the hostess. Starting from a replica of the poorer quarter of the Spanish city, the guests heard the bells toll the hour from a tower. Then they visited the pottery store, where the handiwork of Spanish craftsmanship was displayed. After tarrying a while beside the old wall surrounded by beautiful palms and vines of red roses, they came to the home of a Spanish nobleman. In the patio, they found a statue of the Virgin Mary, an old arch, and birds and flowers of Spanish origin.

Next to the nobleman's home was the residence of a Spanish poet, situated in a garden. And near this was a hacienda of a wealthy Spaniard, built on a high precipice.

An orchestra played throughout the evening, and supper was served in the Sixteenth Century room. Mr. and Mrs. Morris cut the wedding cake at 10 o'clock.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, Mrs. Hampton P. Fulmer, Mrs. Charles E. Jackson, Mrs. Jeter R. Horton, Mrs. Frank Peckham and Miss Mary Offutt.

Former Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham will have as their guests for several days Dr. and Mrs. James Judd, of Honolulu, who will arrive in the Capital today to remain over the week-end.

Dr. Judd is a brother of the Governor of Hawaii, Mr. Lawrence Judd, and is a surgeon of note. He and Mrs. Judd have been frequent visitors in Washington over a period of years.

Tomorrow afternoon Senator and Mrs. Bingham will entertain at a tea for their guests, and on Thursday afternoon, Col. and Mrs. George C. Thorpe will give a small tea for the visitors in their home on Woodley road.

On Friday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Mead will give a tea at their home on Foxhall road for Dr. and Mrs. Judd.

Women's Press Club Will Honor Bonsals

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bonsal will be the guests of honor at the weekly luncheon of the Women's National Press Club at the Willard today.

Other guests will be members of the Washington committee of the Museum of Modern Art, including Mrs. MacWhite, wife of the Minister of the Irish Free State; Frau Scholz, wife of the First Secretary of the German Embassy; Mlle. Simone Gaucheron, sister of the First Secretary of the French Embassy; Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mrs. McCook Knox and Miss Caroline Huston Thompson.

New Year's Day Will Be Quiet For Roosevelts

Musicale to Follow Dinner for Garners at White House Thursday.

On Thursday night they will entertain at a State dinner in honor of the Vice President and Mrs. Garner. The dinner will be followed by a musicale to which additional guests will be invited.

On Friday Mrs. Roosevelt will attend a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State. There will be guests for tea at the White House that afternoon. On Friday night Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guest of honor at dinner at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

The First Lady will attend the openings of two art exhibitions, one Sunday afternoon at Studio House, 1614 Twenty-first, and the other at the Junior League House on Massachusetts avenue.

Misses Meigs To Be Presented At Tea Thursday

Miss Constance Marlatt Is Entertained at Holiday Dance.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward B. Meigs have issued invitations for a tea Thursday at their home on M street, when they will present to society their daughters, Miss Sarah and Miss Mary Meigs.

The Misses Meigs are students at Bryn Mawr College and made their debut in Philadelphia society earlier this season.

Mr. Arthur Meigs and Mr. J. Wister Meigs are also home from college for the holidays and will be present at the tea.

Miss Marlatt was presented to society at a tea on December 7.

Wellesley Club Luncheon Today

The Washington Wellesley Club holds its Christmas luncheon at 1 p. m. today at the American Association of University Women's clubhouse. All members of the Wellesley Club are invited and their guests will be the undergraduates home from college.

After the luncheon Mrs. Donald Foote Roberts will preside at a brief business meeting, to be followed by addresses by members of the student body and faculty. The speakers will be Miss Fredericka Billard, class of 1936; Miss Barbara Caton, class of 1936; Miss Alla Carnduff, class of 1939, and Miss Bertha Miller, of the latin department of Wellesley College.

Mrs. Harry C. Cramer is in charge of arrangements.

Smart Woolen Dresses Defy Wintry Blasts

By Ruth Anne Davis.

LOTS of the lucky ones are looking about now for cruise clothes and dainty pastels to wear in southern climes. Not so with hundreds of others. No sooner has winter bared her fangs in such a forceful manner than we troop forth for warm snug woolens. An ideal place to find these at very budgetable prices is the sports section of a local store. Here a large table is completely given over to the display of smart two-piece knit dresses quite irresistable at $3.33.

These are available in plaids and plain colors and in sizes from 12 to 20.

It's putting it mildly to call these dresses mere bargains. They were especially priced to begin with, and now they're reduced—just in the nick of time to protect us from the wintry weather still to come.

Feathered Capes.

DOWNY evening capes that give a feminine, frilly and fluffy touch to your costume are those made of the unbelievably soft maribou feathers. These in luscious shades of jewel colors, and likewise in black and white, are now half price in a downtown store.

While such capelets are hardly cozy enough for bitter weather, they're ideal to keep around your shoulders while you're dining or cocktailing. Besides they're flattering to the nth degree.

Colorful Flowers.

TO give your room a bright touch of color and a more than luxurious air are the large artificial flowers in a local store. There are two types especially worth your enthusiasm. First, the long-stem, full-blossomed yellow calla lilies. Second, the sprays of gladiolas. Just to look at them you'll find it hard to believe they aren't honest-to-goodness real flowers!

Perfume Quintet.

AS gay a little perfume bouquet as you've ever seen is the one featured in a G street store. It consists of five tiny bottles, in odd shapes, and filled with such scents at lotus, apple blossom, lilly of the valley, Acacia and orange blossom. The quintet is tied together with a golden string. The complete set, yours for only $1.

Durable Baskets.

WASTE PAPER baskets made of a heavy durable fiber are well worth your consideration. They're made to last. You could play football with them and they'd take it standing up.

They're decorative, too, with their glossy coating of shellac and with attractive prints on the side. The prices range from $1 to $1.65.

Gay Kitchen China.

WHY NOT give your gloomy kitchen a festive air with some of the gay plaid china sets? There are all kinds. For instance, in green and yellow, blue and yellow, or orange and yellow. You can buy one consisting of a China tray with a vinegar jar, mustard container, oil jar, and salt and pepper shakers. Or there's one with a teapot, sugar bowl and cream pitcher. These, mind you, for $1, complete.

Besides you can buy spice jars, cake plates, et cetera, for reasonable prices to match the sets.

Mickey Mouse Bottles.

TO AMUSE the wee sma' kiddies and to keep them warm as well there are the Mickey Mouse hot-water bottles, attractive in dainty pastel colors.

Shopping for the little niece and nephew who can't yet tell you their preferences is not an easy thing to do. That's why something as practical and attractive as these have already received a hearty welcome. The price, $1.

Parade of Color.

Now that our fancies are inclining woolen-sockward it's grand to find such a choice variety to pick and choose from. The price of these is 50 cents a pair.

Useful Items Grouped.

An ideal holiday set for a man is the one designed by a famous perfumer. In a handsome box, covered with hammered silver paper and with military blue trim, there are various groupings of such useful items as after-shaving lotion, hair dressing lotion, shaving cream and talc.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 323, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Overworked Daughter in Large Family Asks How to Deal With Situation Involving Quarrelsome Father, Selfish Brothers and Invalid Mother.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am the only girl in a large family. I am in the twenties. I am studying nights for a college degree and, although not regularly employed, manage somehow on my earnings as typist and substitute teacher. I live at home in a large, old-fashioned house where there is much work to be done and this falls to my lot each day when I get home about 7:30. My mother is a semi-invalid, and I am glad to do all I can for her.

The men of the family, all employed, come home evenings to throw garments around, drop ashes and create general disorder and confusion. My brothers think only of dating, dressing and going out to parties, never of the work they make for me, and I am the one blamed for things undone or out-of-place. My father bickers with me, constantly—saying I should have found a regular job when I graduated in 1931. He is most antagonistic to me, and I feel I wouldn't care if I never saw him again.

• • • •

To the best of my knowledge my father never offered me so much as a car token, or a dime for books during my three years' of "higher education," but when anyone comes into the house he takes great pride in telling them he has spent everything educating me and I'm still as dependent as the day I was born. We have had several bitter arguments recently and he has threatened to make me leave home. I shouldn't mind in the least. Two years ago I did leave for three months and enjoyed great peace of mind, returning only because mother begged me to come back for her sake. She remonstrates with father, but to no purpose.

• • • •

What is the best solution of my problem? My mother can't possibly do all the housework and cooking. Is my duty to my mother or to myself? . . . Why is it so many parents today feel because their children have a diploma they can demand a job immediately? . . . I feed and clothe myself, but can't contribute anything at home except my services, because of my meager earnings . . . My mother is lovely and fine and tries to pacify me all the time by helping when she can. She would remedy the situation if she could, but she can't.

• • • •

I am afraid and ashamed to bring my friends home for fear of their being slighted or insulted or witnessing a family quarrel. I don't smoke, drink or go to parties. My last dance was in 1931 . . . I am engaged . . . My fiance has only been in business a year. He feels things will surely improve and begs me to hold on a little longer. I am all to pieces now and doubt if I can stand the situation much longer . . . It has been suggested that I seek your advice. Please answer soon. Sincerely,

UNHAPPY.

First Duty Is to Self.

DEAR UNHAPPY: I fully appreciate the ramifications of the situation in which you find yourself—torn between protective love and pity for your mother and a need to save your own health by living in an atmosphere of peace and decent self-respect. I realize how difficult it is for you to make an objective, fair-minded decision between your mother's claims and your own. But I believe your first duty is to yourself. I believe you should leave home without delay, if it is at all possible for you to be economically self-sustaining on your present earnings.

• • • •

After all, you are engaged to be married. It seems clear you are deferring marriage only until your fiance's business justifies such a move. He has asked you to "hold on just a little longer." This plainly indicates you have no intention of remaining with your mother to the end of her days; that you expect in the not-too-distant future to have a home of your own. This being the case, I see no logic in your currently remaining in an intolerable environment until your nerves are wrecked, because of a sentimental sense of duty to your mother. If circumstances were different, if your father and brothers were not in financial position to provide your mother with the material comforts and physical assistance she needs, I might reason otherwise.

• • • •

As your story stands, however, the situation on which you are pilloried is largely the handiwork of the selfishly blind and callously indifferent attitude of your menfolk. They create disorder, yet chafe at confusion. They accept your services and despise your efforts. Your father makes no effort to help you realize your ambitions while sneering at your slow progress toward your goal. Your mother makes pathetic efforts to keep peace in the family, with no success. Wouldn't she be a thousand times better off with a full-time domestic employe to keep the house in order, than living in the present confusion? Wouldn't she, once the wrench of separation and readjustment was made, be far happier with frequent visits from a contented daughter than in continuous futile efforts to protect that daughter from an unreasonable father's ugly, sarcastic and inimical outbursts? I think so.

• • • •

What is to be gained by remaining? At most, you are only deferring a little longer what must eventually be complete separation of your own and your mother's lives—if you expect, that is, to lead a mature and successful life of your own, and at worst, you are running the risk of becoming a chronic victim of broken health and shattered nerves.

My advice to you, and to your mother, is to discard sentiment in favor of courage, common sense and self-discipline when working out the answer to a problem as serious as this.

Traffic Signs Used to Teach Child to Read

HOW CAN a parent help a child to learn to read?

By arousing his interest in things that he sees and knows about, says an author in the current issue of the Parents Magazine. The writer points out that the expressions, "Flats fixed" and "Cars washed here" are often learned more easily by the wide-awake boy than "Once there was a little red hen."

To the parent of the child who has difficulty learning to read at school the writer offers these suggestions:

"Take him out in the automobile and drive through some cross-street where there is a stop sign.

"Put your foot on the brake and stop so suddenly that Johnny asks why. Then show him the reason for doing so. In the same way draw up before a "no parking' sign and call his attention to it, then go on. You needn't talk about reading, but in a few days as you drive about, it will be fairly certain that Johnny will be noticing 'stop' and 'no parking' signs. And these are just as good words for today's child to cut his teeth on as 'I see a cat.'

"Thus is the boy taught the use of learning to read and when he understands its use, his desire to learn to read will be aroused. When it is, put into his chubby hand some such book as 'Mr. Brown's Grocery Store,' in which he would see many a familiar word. Or you might try games to help the young reader along. Still another way of approaching learning to read is through rhymes. For the child who responds to the swing and dance of words there's no better book for him to learn to read from than good old 'Mother Goose.'"

LaGuardia Likes His Hat.

New York, Dec. 29 (AP).—"Some men cannot pass a haberdashery," but Mayor LaGuardia isn't one of them.

He clings to an old black felt hat—a large one, rather high, like a cowboy's hat. Most women would call this hat "horrible." But it does have a certain charm, and so has the corncob pipe which the Mayor of the world's largest city is wont to smoke.

Woman Speed Pilot Defends Ability of Sex

Maxine Howard Declares Feminine Endurance Is Equal to Men in Air.

By Sara Roberts Millhouse.

ON THE WHOLE a woman's physical, mental and nervous endurance in flying is equal to that of a man. This opinion on a subject of recent controversy, the endurance of women aviators, was voiced by one who should know—Maxine Howard, nationally known aviatrix.

Mrs. Howard, who has established several speed records in flying, is the wife of Ben O. Howard, 1935 Bendix trophy winner, crack speed craft designer and pilot of the United Air lines. She has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Cora Schoen, 3701 Sixteenth street northwest.

"Beautiful and blonde," as press notices often describe her—and justly—Mrs. Howard seemed too slight and fragile to sit at the controls of one of the fastest little planes in this country while setting a speed record from Cleveland to Miami. But that impression is forgotten when you shake one of the hardest little hands you ever grasped.

"In my opinion a woman's physical endurance is perfect except at certain times when she shouldn't fly," said Mrs. Howard. "But it is not so much a question of a woman's strength and nerves as it is how much she knows about flying.

Temperaments Differ.

"It's hard to make general statements because the temperaments and abilities of women fliers, like men, vary as in any other pursuit. Flying is something like driving a car—some men and some women are excellent drivers—others aren't."

As far as nerves are concerned, "Mike," as her mother and friends call her, believes that a woman's nerves are as sturdy, as reliable as a man's. She thinks this is especially true if a woman is "flying a job alone."

About the recent discharge of Helen Richey, first and only woman regular air mail pilot, Mrs. Howard said, "I know very little about the Richey case, so I can't discuss it. But I don't believe any discrimination against women pilots or their ability was intended."

Will women last as long as men at flying—will it tell more quickly on their nerves, their strength, age them sooner?

"I think that if women flew regularly like men they would last as long," she said. "But that is only my belief. I dont' see why they shouldn't, but we have no example on which to base an opinion. With the exception of Miss Richey, no woman has ever made regular flying her job."

Flown Since Marriage.

Mrs. Howard, who is only 24, has been flying almost since her marriage. "I've been interested in flying since I can remember," she said. "But," she smiled, "I almost had to learn to fly in self-defense. It was all I heard, and even my tablecloths were covered with designs for new craft!"

She laughed when asked how long she was in learning "I'm still learning," she exclaimed. "You're always learning to fly—just as aviation is always progressing. Every flight teaches me something new."

Of her record-establishing flight from Cleveland to Miami on January 18, 1935, she would say little but "that and all other flights like it are sort of examinations, like you have in school to test what you know."

The public, however, made much of the flight when the blonde slip of a girl set down "Mr. Mulligan" at Miami just 4 hours and 45 minutes after leaving Cleveland. She had averaged better than 240 miles per hour. She laughed at the speed, saying, "'Mr. Mulligan' cruises best at 275."

Plane Anniversary Gift.

"Mr. Mulligan" was Mrs. Howard's third wedding anniversary gift from her husband. It was the plane he had planned to build for years while his twin ships, "Mike" and "Ike," were winning his trophies. When he had finished it, he gave it to his wife and many of the dreams that went into "Mr. Mulligan's" construction have come back to the Howards in records, fame and cash. Last summer, it captured three of the outstanding air prizes in America, including the Bendix Trophy.

Mrs. Howard feels that she is more valuable to her husband as supervisor of his plane-building activities than as a flier in air races. While Benny is away piloting, Maxine, who is not a designer, but knows considerable about his designs, supervises construction of a new plane at Chicago. She also keeps the books and pays the men who are building Benny's ideas into a new speed craft.

As she packed her bags preparatory to taking a plane back to Chicago, she was asked: "Would you feel as safe, be as ready to go if both pilots on this liner were women?" But she wasn't to be defeated.

"If the two women pilots had the same reputation that this airline requires of all its pilots, I would be perfectly willing to fly with them," she replied.

Upholds Feminine Air Pilots

It's not so much nerve and endurance as knowing one's job that makes a good flier, maintains Maxine Howard, aviatrix who has been visiting in Washington.

Small Midwinter Fabric Hats and Turbans Give Fresh Touch to Afternoon Costumes

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Have you noticed, as we have, how many heads bobbing over bridge and tea tables or tilting back merrily at cocktail bar restaurants are crisply crowned with fabric hats? Particularly belting ribbon, faille, and stitched satin.

They're turbans, many of these fresh little hats practically all of them having a high time with a deftly manipulated crown pointing skyward . . . with an upsweeping wing or feather . . . with a pompon or flower taking top place.

Small and Comfortable.

Such tiny turbans know their business—to keep out of the way in a crowd, to be sure there's no awkward bumping when you dance, to snuggle inside a fur collar without a collision. You see such a hat sketched second from top in the picture. High, feathered, veiled—a hat to take you most anywhere in the daytime.

We think the turban sketched at the bottom of the illustration is a prize for the "smart forties." It's of stitched satin, with self-fabric wings giving it the breadth that so many women's faces need, yet cleverly taking a young, upward quirk. The rhinestone clips add to its fashion rating.

Brims and Berets, Too.

"But I have a couple of turbans," you say, "so I want something different for my midseason hat." Very well, you can't beat the Dutch girl bonnet sketched second from bottom. A brim, but an out-of-the-way one, naive and flattering. This particular one is caught up in back by three camellias, making the rear view as interesting as the front.

Berets, defying you to find a material they don't take to, are now winning more laurels in belting ribbons, faille silk and satin. If you're the beret type, you couldn't choose better.

Up-in-Back Brims.

If you like your eyes provocatively hidden, you'll want to get under a hat like the one at the top of the picture. Trolean pique, we'd call that crown! And the spread pleats of the brim are all the trimming this dashing bonnet needs.

Holiday Stains Are Removed In Easy Ways

Boiling Water, Weak Chemical Solution Best Method to Take Out Spots.

THE SATISFACTION of entertaining at a big dinner is often dimmed for the hostess who must view the havoc wrought on her precious linens and rugs by the carelessness of family and guests. The following methods will prove successful in removing many of the stains common to holiday accidents.

Fruit, wine or jelly stains, when fresh, can usually be removed by pouring very hot or boiling water directly on them. If the stains have already dried they are more difficult. For those that remain after boiling water has been tried, a chemical remover will probably be necessary. Some stains are set or changed by soap or alkaline solutions.

Oxalic Acid Solution.

An oxalic acid solution can be used on all white fabrics. Your druggist will sell you a solution, or you may buy a few oxalic crystals and dissolve them in water. The best method is to draw the stained portion of the cloth over a bowl and apply the solution with a glass stopper or rod. If a large stain is to be removed, a sponge is convenient, or else the article can be dipped in the solution. Be sure to rinse the article immediately; first in a weak ammonia solution and then in clear water until all traces of the acid and stain are removed. If the oxalic acid is not available, lemon juice and sunlight may bleach out the stains.

For delicately colored fabrics, it is best to try a 10 per cent solution of acetic acid in place of the stronger chemicals. For silk or wool use warm water with a little hydrogen peroxide added.

Coffee Stains.

Coffee stains and most cocoa stains can be removed by a sponging with Javelle water followed by a good laundering in soap and water. Javelle water can be made at home by the following method: Dissolve one-half pound of washing soda in one quart cold water. To this solution add one-fourth pound of chloride of lime. Filter this liquid through a piece of muslin to remove the sediment that remains. It is wise to keep this clear liquid in labeled bottles for later use. Always be sure to rinse out articles that have been treated with Javelle water, for the chemicals will injure the fabrics if left in them for any length of time.

For stains made by colored candle wax this method will usually be effective. After scraping away all you can with a knife use a grease solvent to remove the rest. Blotting paper and a warm iron will probably suffice for the linens. If color dye still remains this may be sponged out with wood alcohol or carbon tetrachloride.

For wax dropped on rugs or heavy fabrics any grease solvent will do. Cornmeal, French chalk or Fuller's earth will sometimes dissolve grease on this type of fabric.

Britain's New Prince Sets Nursery Styles

In his new "pram," the infant son of the Duke and Duchess of Kent adopts navy blue as the color scheme—inside and out.

Because babies "perambulate" in London, rain or no rain, a special mohair velvet has been used for the hood and apron, to make the "pram" completely water-tight. Both sections are in navy mohair, lined with navy silk. The only decoration is a small Duke's coronet traced on the side in gold.

The carriage has an extension which lets down, so that the length can be increased as the royal infant grows.

Expert Urges Patriotic Note In Cosmetics

Titian-Haired With White Hands Achieve It by Blue Eye-Shadow.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Red-haired women with lily-white hands were urged today to strike a patriotic note and wear "flag-blue" eye-shadow.

This helpful hint came from the salon of a dressmaker, and along with it came the discovery that it isn't enough these days for dressmakers to make dresses and sell them—they're giving beauty advice.

The one whose patriotism was stirred by titian hair, Germaine Monteil, said she was tired of seeing the effects of her gowns ruined by poor skins and improper makeup, so she added to her "couture" shingle the word "cosmetiques."

In make-up she urges bravado. She orders her clients to "dip into colors boldly, apply them fearlessly, and try unexpected combinations."

All women, according to her analysis, belong to one of six types. Heading the ranks, as usual, is the "very fair blonde," who wears flesh powder and "blue rouge."

Medium blondes get a more spectacular make-up, orange rouge and green eye-shadow, and olive-skinned brunettes are given both green and brown eye-shadow for evening.

Other designers share her belief that a great gown means nothing without facial care and a flattering hairdress, since clothes are supposed to call attention to their wearer, not to themselves.

Bright Fruit Garnishes.

Winter Styles In Exercising Are Effective

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

WE have come a long way from our primitive forebears, who obtained a livelihood through hunting, fishing and gathering the natural fruits of the earth. They were compelled to exercise or they did not eat. But brain has been in constant conflict with brawn, and with each century the victory of brain has advanced apace, not always to the advantage of health. From a cave dweller man has become a hothouse inhabitant.

The changes in the physical contour of man are inimical with the passing of generations. Nevertheless, unless we use our muscles, variations will appear.

Even now, during the winter season, we may fail to heed one of the most valuable prescriptions that can be given, namely, regular and moderate exercise. We may believe that we have stored up such a tremendous amount of vitality during the summer months that we can curl up in a comfortable chair and maintain body resistance and vigor until spring—a la Mr. Bruin. Muscles are made to be used, and we have learned that in order to rid the body of waste products we must exercise. This means deep breathing, with the needed absorption of exygen and the relaxing and contracting of muscles.

Try lying in bed with every portion of the body at absolute rest. This is the first principle of exercise. Then, when standing, begin a series of movements bringing about relaxation such as wrist flapping or swinging the arms from the shoulder to and fro with all the muscles completely loosened except those of the shoulder, thus making the arm a pendulum. There is a trick to this, but it can be learned. The legs may be swung in the same way.

After the relaxing process has been mastered active muscle contractions may be begun. All exercises are best performed before a mirror, and at the outset a correct standing posture is of the greatest importance, and either a double mirror arrangement or turning the body is preferred. The heels should touch and the toes point outward at a little less than half a right angle (40 degrees). The knees are braced lightly, the abdomen is drawn in through the use of the abdominal muscles, and the chest thrust forward, aided by the backward position of the shoulders.

Walking must not be forgotten, and in many respects this is the ideal activity for both men and women past middle life. Take a natural stride, assume a good posture, and walk short of fatigue. This is particularly valuable for the person who has a tendency toward overweight, and fat persons can pant and puff themselves back to health through walking, if reasonable attention is paid to the diet.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE NEVER let anyone sniff at our enthusiasm for pretty colors and a pleasant home. Because our philosophy is that if the ladies do a good job with home making, the wiseacres in Washington would have more time for their whittling. So we're very happy, indeed, minding our own business right at home. And plenty of ladies do the same!

One of them describes her living room—it has white walls and built-in bookshelves painted blue. The rug is a beech shade or a light rust and she has a dark brown sofa, white leather chair, chair in hand-blocked linen of natural ground with red, blue and a little green in the pattern. She does not want draperies because they would cut off too much of the light. What color, she asks, would we use for draw curtains? What color for lamps?

We would have the draw curtains of a topaz color, this same tone for lamp shades and bases of blue pottery. And try to introduce still more blue into the room if possible—maybe in an extra chair covering.

King to Push Lorton Farm In Congress

Senator Is Shocked to See Many Boys Among Prisoners.

States He Doesn't Favor Any Change in Parole System Now.

By James D. Secrest.

Adequate appropriations to establish a hospitalized farm for drink and drug inebriates and to separate first offenders from hardened criminals at the District Reformatory were promised last night by Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Senator King made a tour of inspection of the reformatory at Lorton yesterday through the snow in company with Wilbur La Roe, jr., chairman of the District Parole Board, and Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of penal institutions.

"I am not in favor of any change in the District parole system at present," he said after sitting in on a meeting of the board.

"Of course, I will continue to study the matter, and I will try to get a larger appropriation so that the board can hire additional parole officers."

Barnard Commended.

Senator Kink strongly commended both Capt. Barnard, the veteran penal institutions head, and the parole board for what he termed "their very fine work."

"One of the first steps I will take when Congress reconvenes," he said, "is to get an appropriation so that the very young inmates of Lorton are spearated from the hardened criminals. I was shocked to see so many young boys mixing with old offenders among the 1,400 prisoners."

The District Reformatory, he pointed out, has changed its character in recent years because the Justice Department no longer takes the more dangerous criminals into Federal prisons. The Lorton institution, as a consequence, has gone beyond the reformatory stage and become a penitentiary.

Senator King has not definitely worked out a plan for the segregation of the repeaters from the youths, but he expressed the opinion that the walled group of buildings, now nearing completion, is not sufficient.

Plan of Hazen.

The idea of a farm for scientific treatment of habitual drunkards and drug addicts has been advanced by Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of District Commissioners.

"If Commissioner Hazen doesn't send up a bill to establish such a farm, I'll have it drafted in my office," he said.

"I was profoundly shocked to see so many inebriates at Lorton. Some of them have been there for years with intervals of only a few days. As one sentence would end, the unfortunates would succumb to their habits again and be returned to prison.

"These inmates should be treated like other sick persons, for a disease. They should be placed on farms where they could work and be given proper medical treatment at the same time."

Senator King's approval of the present parole system will discourage favorable Senate action on the recommendation of the House subcommittee on District crime that the District parole board be abolished and that the paroling of local prisoners again be placed in the hands of the Justice Department.

"Of course, the parole system has been abused in many places," he said, "and some mistakes may have been made here. But the parole board is doing a fine job on the whole, and I would be opposed to any change for the present.

Calls Paroling Sound.

"The paroling of prisoners is economically as well as sociologically sound. It is better to release a good prisoner before the expiration of his sentence, place him under supervision of a parole officer, and allow him to help support his family than to turn him loose with no strings after he has served his full prison term."

Senator King again refused to indorse a candidate to succeed Capt. Barnard upon his retirement, adding that he hoped Barnard might be retained as long as his health permits.

"However, all things being equal, I would favor selection of a local man for his successor, particularly when he has had the experience of working with Capt. Barnard."

Col. William L. Peek, superintendent of the District Reformatory, is the outstanding local candidate for the job when Barnard retires.

G.W. Teacher Talks On Study of Glands

Current developments in study of endocrine secretions, regulators of human growth and health, were outlined for the Symposium on Organic Chemistry, at Rochester, N. Y., yesterday by Dr. Vincent du Vigneaud, professor of biochemistry at George Washington University.

University authorities here commented that the work of Dr. du Vigneaud and others in the local laboratories is responsible for the placing of increasingly effective therapeutic agents in the hands of physicians.

Dr. du Vigneaud is specializing in the purification of the endocrine secretions or hormones, and particularly of the pituitary gland hormone. The pancreas secretion contains the insulin necessary to prevent diabetes. The local chemists are studying the characteristics of the chemical structure of insulin so that it may be possible some day to produce chemically an artificial substance which would have the same effect when given by mouth.

Four Appointed To Write a New D.C. Zoning Law

Building Rules Also to Be Revised; Fight Believed Likely in Congress.

Machinery for the remaking of the entire zoning and building regulations of the National Capital was set in motion by the Commissioners yesterday.

Revision of the whole matter, including buildings, zoning, sub-divisions, use of property and all related subjects, was placed in the hands of a special committee of four officials.

Edward Dent, surveyor; Capt. Hugh P. Oram, executive officer of the Zoning Commission; John Nolen, jr., city planner of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Vernon E. West, principal assistant corporation counsel, who made legal history in Washington by his zoning fights as private counsel in the courts, were named the committee.

A fight in Congress is expected to result should the Commissioners attempt to have enacted any legislation which would weaken the zoning laws so as to permit "partial" commercial use of buildings zoned as residential. The Commissioners are in no way bound to accept any recommendations which might be made by the committee. Neither, it was emphasized at the District Building, has the committee come to any conclusions about what it will recommend.

It was, however, regarded as significant that Col. John W. Oehman, District building inspector and a recognized authority in zoning and building law, was not named on the committee, which is to make its report as early as possible.

Mrs. Helena Scott Dies After Illness

Mrs. Helena W. Scott, 43, wife of Commander Leon B. Scott, U. S. N., died yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital, where she had been confined ever since she and her husband came here from the Canal Zone in September.

Born in Columbus, Ohio, in 1892, Mrs. Scott moved to Kensington, Md., as a young girl, when her father, Dr. Francis M. Webster, joined the Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture. She attended Chevy Chase Seminary and Sweetbriar College.

Surviving her, besides her husband, are two daughters, Jean and Barbara; a sister, Carrie Webster, of Kensington, and three brothers, Prof. Robert L. Webster, entomology department, Washington State College; Ralph Webster, Des Moines, and Howard L. Webster, of Washington.

Funeral services will be held 1 p. m., Thursday, at the Army Medical Center Chapel, followed by burial in Arlington Cemetery.

'Too Cold to Stay Long,' Says Commander, Ordering Halt.

Two hundred men in olive drab marched down the street, and their heavy brogans crunched in the snow. Despite the ice, despite the cold, the Fifth Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, drilled last night—out on Indiana avenue and along John Marshall place. A private in the front line slipped and fell, and the others sidled out of line.

"We really need an armory," said Maj. Harvey Miller, in his daytime moments secretary of the District Boxing Commission, on Tuesday nights a reserve major of marines. (The marines drilled one night early this week.)

Trumpeter George Scott stood in the lee of a snow pile, a pile that had been jammed up by District plows. Ready he was to sound the attention call.

Four young girls came traipsing along—Marjorie and Jane Berger, Lily Bonucelli and Rita Kane—dragging a sled. They stopped to stare as Scott puffed his cheeks and blared.

"It's too cold to keep the men out long," said Maj. Miller.

The men came swinging down John Marshall place, a few eyes veering left to the searchlight-gilded dome of the Capitol. Crash—behind them. The cleaners' truck that had just skidded past had skittered further. It rammed into a delivery truck, and it shattered its own left headlight.

"That ought to be plenty," said Maj. Miller.

The men came back along Indiana avenue and up the iron stairs of the District-owned building at 458 Indiana avenue. They've had its use ever since the Commissioners condemned it back in 1930, and they can use it until the Municipal Center development requires its razing.

"The National Guard's been fighting 50 years for an armory for the District," said Maj. Miller.

The last drill of 1935 was over. The men went into a picture-filled hall to listen to lectures on combat principles. They were blowing on frost-reddened fingers.

Theft of Hart's Bonds Probed By Grand Jury

$7,000 Paper Stolen in 1934 From Former Employe of G. Bryan Pitts.

The District grand jury is investigating the theft of $7,000 worth of bonds from Henry O. Hart, of Mount Moore, N. C., former accountant for G. Bryan Pitts, once head of the F. H. Smith Co., it was learned yesterday.

The proceeding, concerned entirely with the theft of the bonds, is not a reopening of the investigation of the failure of the Smith investment house several years ago, said Charles B. Murray, assistant United States attorney, who is in charge.

Murray said that the bonds had been stolen from Hart in February, 1934, from his room in a Washington hotel. They were recovered in Baltimore recently when an attorney into whose hands they came notified police.

In the event that an indictment is not returned, the assistant district attorney said, no report will be made to the court by the grand jury, which is attempting to determine whether those who have had the bonds since their theft have been ignorant of the fact they were stolen.

Several persons have appeared before the jury, Murray said, including Hart. One witness is still to be heard, a woman acquaintance of Hart, who has not yet been located, Murray said.

Library Hours Today.

The Library of Congress will be open from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. tomorrow, but the public library and all its branches will be closed, it was announced yesterday. Today the central library, together with its branches and sub-branches, will close at 1 p. m., said Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian.

More D. C. Vocational Schools Sought to Give Chances to All

Mrs. Doyle, Board President, Names Committee to Map Policy; Facilities Inadequate, Critics Say; Building Envisioned.

So all children in the District of Columbia public schools might have "opportunity," Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, president of the Board of Education, yesterday appointed a special board committee to map future policy on vocational education here.

Expressing her own viewpoint, the slim, dark-haired board chief, herself a mother, said, in an interview:

"I feel strongly that we ought to give opportunity to all the children. While some can go to college, many cannot, and they should have the chance to learn to use their hands."

To the committee Mrs. Doyle named Henry J. Gilligan, board vice president, as chairman, and George Whitwell and Benjamin Gaskins, board members. She herself will work closely with them.

A plan submitted by the District Vocational Association will be turned over to the committee at once. It has been indorsed by the Central Labor Union, the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Board of Public Welfare, and the Juvenile Court.

Facilities Inadequate.

There are now five vocational schools in the school system—Abbott, Dennison and Lenox for white children and Margaret Washington and Phelps for colored. Critics say their facilities cannot accommodate all the children who wish to enroll, while efforts have been made to replace Dennison, in particular, with a new, larger school on the site of the present Tuberculosis Hospital.

Mrs. Doyle said that vocational education had been handicapped by popular misconceptions. Specifically, she stressed that it did not imply that pupils were backward or retarded—simply that they wanted to enter the field of skilled labor.

"The community should look upon vocational education as just as fine and good as academic education," she said.

The District Vocational Association's plan is based on two premises—first, that the Nation has a surplus of unskilled labor but a shortage of skilled labor, and, second, that since employers demand experience in new employes, the the schools should provide "pre-employment training."

Five-Year Building Plan.

The association urged co-operation with representative employer and labor groups to assure placement of graduates of the vocational schools. Its plan urged greater variety in skilled trades taught, limitation of enrollment to pupils of real interest and demonstrated ability and availability of training both by day and by night.

It also urged consideration of a long-range building program for vocational schools. A new five-year building plan for the entire school system is now being drawn up by school officials.

District vocational schools are now classed on the elementary school level, with teachers paid accordingly. A bill backed by the school board introduced by Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, now before the House, would raise them to junior high school rank.

Mrs. Doyle said yesterday that this would be a move to boost the prestige of vocational education.

Mrs. Norton's bill would empower the board to establish occupational schools on the elementary school level for pupils not wishing to pursue vocational education, and also to set up advanced courses in the high schools.

5 Policemen Promoted, 55 Are Shifted

3 Detectives Become Sergeants; 2 Privates Raised in Rank.

Traffic Bureau to Be New Division After January 1.

A shake-up in the personnel of the Metropolitan Police Force announced yesterday includes promotion of three Precinct Detectives to Detective Sergeants, two Privates to Detectives, and the transfer of 55 other officers.

Precinct Detectives Paul E. Ambrose, of the Pick-up Squad, T. M. McVeary, of the Fourth Precinct, and C. H. Warder, of the Second Precinct, were made sergeants and transferred to the Detective Bureau.

McVeary will work out of the Fifth Precinct, while Warder will be assigned to the Check Squad.

Detective Sergt. Arthur Fihelly, while remaining in the Detective Bureau, will work out of the Twelfth Precinct. Detective Sergt. Guy Rone was transferred from the Pick-up Squad to the Fugitive Squad, to replace Detective Sergt. Joseph Shimon, loaned to the Miami Police Department for the winter season.

Private John P. Meshkoff, director of the Police Boys Club, was made a Precinct Detective, and assigned to duty in the Fourth Precinct.

Detective Sergt. James C. Collins, of the Twelfth Precinct, was demoted to a Precinct Detective and assigned to the Third Precinct.

Private Mathew Chmylko, of the First Precinct, was made a Detective and transferred to the Twelfth Precinct.

Other Transfers.

Other transfers are:

Sergt. J. E. Silvea, from the Second to the Fifth Precinct; Sergt. R. D. Chenault, from the Fifth to the Second Precinct; Detective R. E. Talbot, from the Third to the First Precinct; Private A. R. Helwig, from the Eighth to the First Precinct; Private G. B. Cannon, from the First to the Eighth Precinct; Private J. B. Belt, from the Eleventh to the Seventh Precinct; Private A. H. Cochran, from the Seventh to the Eleventh Precinct; Private F. E. Bendure, from the Second to the Fifth Precinct; Private E. J. Ball, from the Fifth to the Seventh Precinct.

Precinct Detective John F. Boxwell, from the Twelfth Precinct to the Second for foot patrol duty; Private C. W. Pitts, from the Second to the Twelfth Precinct; Private H. A. Turner, from the Second to the Eleventh Precinct; Private Lucian D. Peyton, from the Eleventh to the Second Precinct, and Private L. C. Davis, from the Traffic Bureau to the Chief Clerks office.

Privates Transferred.

Twenty-eight privates of the Traffic Bureau were transferred to duty in precincts by the order, which carried final instructions for the reorganization of the Traffic Bureau, to be known as the Traffic Divisioin after January 1.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, called a meeting of his commanding officers yesterday and discussed the changes.

Inspector Benjamin A. Lamb, District traffic superintendent, was retained as commanding officer of the hack inspector's office and the traffic collateral bureau, when Maj. Brown rescinded his original order that Capt. Milton D. Smith should head these offices.

Capt. Smith will command the new traffic division. Sergt. John P. Agnew heads the collateral office and Lieut. Frank Mason is in charge of the hack inspectors.

Woman Fights Off 2 Purse Snatchers

Three times within 15 minutes last night, footpads fought with women pedestrians, trying to steal their pocketbooks.

Mrs. Jane Gilbert, Census Bureau clerk, fought off two colored men who grabbed for her pocketbook as she walked near her Chastleton Hotel home. They threw her to the ground, but she held on to her purse and they finally ran away.

A few minutes later, police scout cars hurried to 2718 Ontario road northwest, home of Miss Ruby Slickenmaier. A colored robber struck Miss Slickenmaier on the back of the neck with a blue-steel revolver, she told the police. She lost a purse containing $9.85.

A pocketbook containing $3.50 was surrendered to a colored robber on L street northwest, near Eighth street, by Mrs. Lola George, of 3000 Connecticut avenue northwest. Mrs. George said the robber had threatened her with a knife.

Rockville Prisoner Shovels Way Out

George Howard, colored, of Mount Zion, Md., facing a jail term, shoveled himself out of trouble yesterday.

Howard was arraigned in the Rockville Police Court on a charge of trespassing. When the testimony was in, Judge George Howard said:

"You can take 30 days in jail or shovel the snow away from the courthouse."

"I reckon I'll take the shovel," said George.

6,000 Autoists Lack Tags; Bureau Jammed

Line Forms at Agency in Last-Hour Rush for Licenses.

A line of motorists half a block long waited outside the Traffic Bureau yesterday in a last effort not to be among the 6,000 persons without 1936 license tags when the deadline is reached at midnight tonight.

The bureau was disposing of these late applications at the rate of 800 an hour and a check at the closing hour in the afternoon showed that nearly 10,000 persons had failed to get tags. Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer estimated nearly 4,000 of them would be cared for before the office closes at 1 p. m. today.

Of the car owners who have failed to act until the zero hour, at least 3,800 failed to settle traffic tickets against them and will have to do so before getting their tags.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, has made a special New Year's gift to the unfortunates in the form of a moratorium on arrests until 8 a. m. tomorrow.

"The deadline is midnight tonight," he said, "but we won't molest those coming home from New Year's Eve celebrations. They will be given until 8 a. m. to get home."

Among those who waited in line yesterday to get his tags, only to find several tickets against his name, was one gentleman who had to pay $45 for nine offenses accumulated during the past 12 months.

High up in the list of regulation-breakers were 23,000 motorists who failed to notify the Traffic Bureau within 72 hours of their change of address.

Hit-and-Run Driver Fined $100 by Judge

Howard L. Hettenbaugh, 54, of 5001 Hutchins place northwest, was ordered to pay a fine of $100 or spend 60 days in jail yesterday when arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt on a second charge of hit and run.

Arrested after a two-block chase Saturday night Hettenbaugh also was ordered to pay $10 or serve 10 days for operating on an expired permit and given sentences of $5 or 5 days each on charges of driving on dead tags and with bad brakes.

Both cases of leaving after colliding occurred this month, the first December 11, police records show. A charge of hit and run was placed against Hettenbaugh June 28, but changed to driving on the wrong side of the street when the case went to Traffic Court. He was fined $50 in the former case and $25 when the the charge was reduced.

Hettenbaugh was arrested in the latest case when Policeman Phelen J. Jordon last Saturday night commandeered a passing car after the defendant had struck a machine driven by Otto Garnand, of 637 Raleigh place southeast, at Fourteenth and F streets northwest.

A brown and white dog, suffering from distemper and tied up in a burlap bag, was left to die yesterday in the snow on Connecticut avenue extended. The Volunteer Fire Department of Kensington found it, its hind quarters paralyzed from cold.

They took it to the Animal Protective Association, 5200 Wisconsin avenue, where it was put to death.

Virginia W. Sargent, president and founder of the association, called The Washington Post last night to say:

"There is no need for such cruelty with so many stations in the city where animals can be taken care of."

T. L. Dodson to Address Emancipation Society

Thurman L. Dodson, president of the District Bar Association, will be the principal speaker at the Mount Carmel Baptist Church, Third and I streets northwest, at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow, when the Emancipation Association, Inc., celebrates the seventy-third anniversary of President Lincoln's proclamation freeing the slaves.

Officers of the Emancipation Association include Charles W. White, president; Miss Ruth McCollum, secretary, and Mrs. C. A. Diamond, chairman of arrangements.

Citizens Given Plan to Remodel Disposal Plant

Clark Submits Proposal to Association Heads in Southeast.

A new proposal to end protests of Southeast citizens against the presence of the District garbage disposal plant at Second and K streets southeast, now pending before the Commissioners, was received by leaders of the Southeast Washington Citizens Association last night.

The new proposal calls for a $115,000 rebuilding of the present plant, William A. Maio, association president, reported. Chemical processes to reduce the smell would be utilized in the plan, and a large inclosure would surround the plant.

Maio said the proposal was submitted to the Commissioners by Capt. Howard F. Clark, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, on behalf of a special committee of five appointed three months ago by Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan to study the complaints.

Maio named a special association committee, consisting of Vernis Absher, C. G. Degman, Earl C. Walck, B. G. Ladd and W. J. Cary, to scrutinize the Clark proposal and report to the association on January 7.

"We've always been in favor, though," he pointed out, "of moving the plant to Buzzards Point. That would be halfway between Southeast and Southwest, and the garbage could be taken easily in scows to Cherry Hill. But we'll study this proposal, of course."

Association leaders gathered at Maio's home, 1018 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, last night to prepare their phase of the ten-association drive for 1,000 members sponsored by the Southeast Council.

People's Counsel William A. Roberts bestowed his blessing on the drive, saying there is a definite need for citizens' associations to express local opinion here.

Montgomery Lists $12,000 Liquor Sale

The dispensaries in Montgomery County sold $12,000 worth of liquor the week before Christmas, $3,500 more than in the same week in 1934, the liquor control board announced at its meeting yesterday.

The dispensaries are in Rockville, Bethesda and Silver Spring.

The National Guard Armory yesterday notified the board that it was filing an appeal from the decision refusing it a license to sell beer. The license was refused on the ground that the armory is too close to a church, that some members of the National Guard are under age, and that many citizens opposed a license being granted.

Two Homes Menaced By Fire in Southeast

Fire caused by a defective chimney in the home of Benjamin T. Sockrider, 816 C street southeast, last night ate through an outside partition of the frame building and threatened the attic of an adjoining house before being extinguished by firemen. Damage was estimated at $150.

6-Year-Old Here Lights Tree Instead of Candle

Mildred, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Lacey, of 612 Van Buren street northwest, tried to light a candle on her Christmas tree last night and lighted the tree instead.

The Fire Department arrived in time to confine the blaze to the tree and answer another Christmas fire in Mrs. Isabelle Smith's basement at 612 Oglethorpe street. Mildred escaped injury.

Dr. Kindler to Speak.

Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, will address the National Music Teachers Association convention this afternoon. His subject will be the development of the symphony orchestra and its place in contemporary cultural life.

PUC Clamps Bonding Curb Upon Utilities

All Securities Issues Must Get Approval of Commission.

'Possible Manipulation' Is Anticipated in the Mandate.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday forbade public service corporations under its jurisdiction to sell bonds and other securities without its approval.

The order anticipated refinancing needs of some of the local utilities, notable among which is the Washington Gas Light Co., and possible manipulations among the financial interests which control some of the local concerns.

Never before has the commission undertaken to control so completely the financial conduct of the corporations and companies under its jurisdiction. Its authority to do so is contained in the law enacted by Congress last session. Employment of the authority has been under study by Riley E. Elgen, chairman; Richmond B. Keech and Col. Dan I. Sultan, members of the commission, and has been advocated by William A. Roberts, people's counsel, for some time.

Advent of the North American Co. into the local utilities field precipitated the situation out of which the order was born, although, in the matter of dollars and cents, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which owns the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., probably will be affected more adversely.

No utility, the commission decreed, hereafter may sell securities which mature more than a year from date of issuance, without seeking bids from at least three "responsible unaffiliated financial institutions, at least two of whom shall not be affiliated with or financially interested in the applicant."

Must Show All Bids.

All bids for the purchase of securities must be submitted to the commission for approval. Heretofore utility companies have sold their securities under such arrangements and prices as they thought wise.

In its order the commission said:

"It is the opinion of the commission that the interests of the public and utilities under its jurisdiction require that any utility proposing to issue and sell stocks, stock certificates, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness payable in more than one year from date of issuance solicit bids therefor from a reasonable number (not less than three) of reputable and responsible unaffiliated brokers, bankers or other financial institutions, at least two of whom shall not be affiliated with or financially interested in the utility."

'Japan's Case' Subject Of Speaker at Forum

Discussion of "Japan's Case" by Frederick Moore, erstwhile adviser to the Japanese government, will open a series of meetings of the Friends Forum at 8 p. m. Sunday at 1811 I street northwest. Moore was an Associated Press correspondent in China for seven years.

The forum will hear another discussion of Oriental problems on January 19, when Dr. Maurice T. Price lectures on "China's Dilemma." There is no admission charge.

Phone Company Report Lists November Gains

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday reported 200,819 telephones in service here as of November 30, and an increase of more than 1,500,000 calls in November, compared with the same month in 1934.

According to the report of operations filed with the Public Utilities Commission, operating revenues last month were $846,753, compared with $826,160 for November of last year. Operating expenses, including interest, totaled $685,939. Taxes for the month amounted to $59,546.

A total of 21,657,000 telephone calls was made in Washington during November, as compared with 20,134,000 in November, 1934.

New Year's Eve Biggest Thrill For Revelers

By Chanticleer.

There's only one thrill comparable with the kid days of waking up Christmas morning to see what Santa Claus left. And that's the wallop that comes once a year when New Year's Eve comes along and brings with it the whoopingest, craziest, maddest, most delirious night of revelry in the calendar.

And boys and girls, tonight's the night.

Here and there a few sane folks will be at home in bed before morning. But the rest of the citizenry will be whooping it up at the town's bright-light and soft-music spots.

At the Ambassador: Table and floor space increased ten times over normal by the simple expedient of throwing open the entire first floor of the hostelry to care for the crowds, beginning at 9. Paradise Islanders in the Hi-Hat room, special performers in informal entertainment. Souvenirs, favors, noise-makers and Russell Conn's welcome to 1936 with no cover, no minimum.

• • • •

Heigh-Ho: New Year's Eve and the final appearance of Lincoln Scott and Dorothy Douglass, who have charmed Heigh-Ho audiences for the last two weeks. Ramon advises there are a few tables remaining for bright-and-early telephone users today. Pete Macias and all the Macias entertainers. Dancing till dawn.

Lotus Restaurant: Special de luxe dinner until morning, dancing to Bill Strickland's Capitolians with Al Norton and Judy Ellington. Souvenirs and novelties . . . and the big Broadway floor revue —Lady Mei's Mannequins. Costumes of unusual attractiveness. Keep an eye on the Three d'Espys, an adagio of note.

• • • •

Shoreham: Motion pictures will be taken of arrivals and in the ballroom at the Shoreham's gala celebration. Barnee and his Maxim Lowe Orchestra to welcome another new year with the old Barnee crowds of years past. Featuring the 1936 Shoreham Revue, and the Bonners—Carl and Leone—now in their eighth week.

La Paree: Martin and Turnbull head the La Paree's entertainment, in acrobatic stunting that will take your breath away. Emory Daugherty and his orchestra for the dancers with Ray Beck and Marie Fowler vocalizing.

• • • •

Mayflower: It's to be "show-off" night for Buddy Harmon and his orchestra, with special stunts and novelties. Fancy hats 'n' everything. Spirit of the Carnival, with noise-makers and elegant favors for the guests, confetti and horns. Huge balloons and streamers and so on. Surprise entertainment features, special supper under personal direction of Marchitelli.

Cafe Samovar: Really in the nature of an opening as well as New Year's whoopla; this new rendezvous having opened only this last week. Ballroom of the Burlington being used for overflow reservations. Two orchestras—Royal Persians and a guest band. Special dinner. Lehla Chanum, Nautch dancer.

• • • •

Volga Boatman: Old Russia holiday celebration—the Koliatka, floor show in spirit of the Czars. It's the Club Volga Boatman's first New Year's Eve and Host Matt Windsor is seeing to it that his patrons remember it. Special favors and dinner.

Club Habana: New Year's in the Spanish style—Spanish favors, Cuban hats, South American dances. But the "Music Goes Round and Round" probably will be on hand just the same, with Moe Baer and his orchestra, Bert Granoff and Russ Cullen. Dinner, early, and late supper. Towne and Knott in ballroom dance interpretations.

• • • •

Hangar Club: Just over the river in Virginia, with a sepia floor show that sizzles—Gypsy West, blues singer; Rhythm Sisters in hot tunes, and Sid Sisko, the gal with the ball-bearing joints.

Stone Villa: Dick Mitchell and his Merry Madmen, dancing until dawn. Famous for chicken dinners. Wines and beer after midnight. On Mount Vernon Memorial highway.

• • • •

Dude Ranch: Will Lacey and Company headlining the gala night's floor show. Lacey, who skips a rope while riding a trick bicycle. Dixie Dyer, mistress of ceremonies. Jimmy Staley, radio crooner. Barrett's Dude Ranch orchestra for dancing.

• • • •

Maryland Club Gardens: Specious quarters for merry making, with Jimmy Harris and his ochestra, and Fran Trappe, Virginia Simms and Evelyn Thawl Chicken dinner a specialty. And the Garden's own famous horseshoe bar.

River Bend: Burning pine logs and open fireplaces. Music by Dave McWilliams' orchestra, under direction of George Stein. Fried chicken a specialty.

Cotton Club: Reminds you that the dance floor has been enlarged by 120 square feet of space. Pete Moss and his 15 Ambassadors for the dancing. Sepia entertainment. Impresario Hurwitz says: "Come early, stay late."

In Lotus Club Floor Show

Larry Hendrick and his accordion will be on hand to entertain the revelers at the Ambassador tonight.

Stove Gas Kills Three.

Walker, Minn., Dec. 30 (AP).—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McIver, each about 55 years old, and their 12-year-old son, were found yesterday in their home near here. Coroner E. M. Thomas said he believed gas from a stove caused their deaths.

Lava's Advance On Hilo Slower After Bombing

By the Associated Press.

Hilo, Hawaii, Dec. 30.—Burning trees in its advance, Mauna Loa's river of flaming lava rolled steadily but with diminishing force tonight toward Hilo's water reservoir, 3 miles away.

The advance caused fear that unless rain fell soon large forest fires would result.

Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, Government volcanologist, said earlier there were indications an Army airbombing attack Friday had overcome the threatening flow toward the reservoir.

The movement slowed to about 40 feet an hour. The red-hot slag traveled about 200 feet during the night toward Hilo, 14 miles distant at the seashore.

"All indications point to the fact the bombing gave the eruption a real shock," Dr. Jaggar announced. "The results thus far have been entirely as anticipated. By Tuesday I will be able to say definitely if the present stoppage results from the bombing."

Students Demonstrate.

Cairo, Dec. 30 (AP).—Restive students today demontsarted outside and inside of the National University when it was opened for the first time since November 14. The institution was closed at that time because of anti-British riots.

Foes Eyeing Weather at Rose Bowl

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 30.—Southern Methodist and Stanford football players kept a weather eye on the skies today. There was threat of rain in the air for their intersectional grid clash at the Rose Bowl New Year Day.

While meteorologists were not prepared to say what would happen on January 1, they forecast rain for tonight or tomorrow and unsettled conditions the next day.

Possibility of a soggy field and, in the California parlance, "slight precipitation," had a tendency to throw the whole Rose tournament game setup into a slight turmoil.

There was considerable conjecture as to how a slow field and "liquid sunshine" would affect the two teams, and even more consternation among ticket scalpers who had hoped to clean up on the ducat market tomorrow and Wednesday.

General opinion prevailed that Stanford, with its ponderous line and a team of 11 pounds to the man heavier than the Mustangs, would gain the advantage in case of rain—since Coach Matty Bell's team depends on passes and fast-breaking running plays.

On the other hand, the invading Texans thoroughly demonstrated this season, especially in their game with Texas A. and M., that they could throw passes in the rain and that Bobby Wilson, star halfback, also could run on a slow, slippery field.

Stanford's team never has been classed as a mudder. It lost to Columbia on a wet field here two years ago as the most outstanding example of its reactions on a soggy turf.

Eight players on that team are back in the Rose Bowl this time, including Bobby Grayson, the All-American fullback, who put on one of the greatest one-man exhibitions the bowl has seen by piling up 160 yards.

Yet the fact remained that Columbia, outweighed almost as much as Southern Methodist will be, scored the only touchdown of the encounter.

Followers of the Western representative were chered with the news today that Grayson, despite a slight cold which kept him confined to the hotel yesterday, definitely would be ready to play.

Almost all trace of his ailment had vanished when he worked out with the squad at Brookside Park this afternoon. Coach Claude (Tiny) Thornhill gave the Indians their last serious workout, including, as of other days, a lot of passing, with Graydon and Paulman doing the throwing.

James (Monk) Moscrip, end, whose condition has been a question since the team's arrival, showed up to better form and there was every indication he would start the game with his injured left knee in a brace.

While the activities of the S. M. U. squad were cloaked in mystery, it was understood Coach Bell drilled them for two hours, with an hour and a half of dummy scrimmage on defense and offense. Included in the offensive workout was a great deal of pass throwing.

Southern Methodist will drill only lightly tomorrow, in the Rose Bowl. Stanford does not propose to set foot on the turf where the game will be played until New Year's afternoon. The plans are for a light final workout at Brookside Park tomorrow.

8 of 15 Coaches Pick Methodists

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 30.—Football coaches polled by the Associated Press, during their annual convention, showed Southern Methodist a slight favorite over Stanford in the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day. Of 15 hazarding opinions, 8 picked S. M. U., 7 selected Stanford to win. Two were noncommital.

The S. M. U. pickers were Charley Bachman, of Michigan State; Tuss McLaughry, of Brown; Homer Norton, of Texas A. & M.; Clark Shaughnessy, of Chicago; Bernie Biermam, of Minnesota; Carl Snavely, of North Carolina; Biff Jones, of Oklahoma, and Don Faurot, of Missouri.

Those favoring Stanford were Lou Little, of Columbia; Harry Kipke, of Michigan; Bill Cowell, of New Hampshire; Mal Stevens, of New York University; Adam Walsh, of Bowdoin; Jock Sutherland, of Pittsburgh, and Vic Hanson, of Syracuse.

New Attack On Boycott Planned

Sentiment Over Nation Is Sounded Out and Ideas Heard.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—While the American Olympic committee is undergoing a "house cleaning" to rid the organization of any members not in full sympathy with American participation in the 1936 games at Berlin, a new counter movement to keep Uncle Sam's athletes out of the international sports carnival was started today.

Four resignations from the A. O. C. already have been received and accepted. They were from Jeremiah T. Mahoney, former president of the Amateur Athletic Union and leader of an unsuccessful fight to boycott the games at the recent A. A. U. convention; Louis di Benedetto, of New Orleans; Charlotte Epstein and Henry Henshel, of New York.

On the recommendation of Avery Brundage, president of the Olympic committee and of the A. A. U., a letter will be sent to Olympic committee members asking those not fully in accord with American participation to signify by tendering their resignations.

Few Left, He Says.

"Only those four resignations have been received to date," said Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the committee. "There are only a few 'oppositionists' left. They include Charles Ornstein, of New York, and William P. Kenney, of Boston. Kenney is chairman of the boxing committee."

Ornstein, a vigorous boycott advocate, told the Associated Press he hasn't decided whether to resign, and revealed that shortly after the first of the year a new national movement will launch a fresh campaign to keep America from being represented at Berlin next summer.

"We haven't done anything officially since the A. A. U. convention," Ornstein asserted, "but different groups throughout the country are sounding out sentiment and getting suggestions for a new plan of attack on American participation. I imaine it will get under way in a couple of weeks."

Mahoney also projected himself again into the forefront of the fight by declaring that "it should be kept up to protect the honor and prestige of every American—not only the athletes."

Skating Titles Kept By Vinson and Lee

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The national figures skating champions marched on to new laurels tonight as Maribel Y. Vinson, of Boston, and 16-year-old Robin Lee, of Minneapolis, successfully defended their titles and gained a place on the United States Olympic team.

Completing four days of competition that brought together the best of the Nation's fancy skaters, Miss Vinson and Young Lee were crowned tonight as the country's Olympic representatives paraded before a crowd of 8,000 in Madison Square Garden.

With the figure skating committee, headed by Richard L. Hapgood, of Cambridge, Mass., deciding to send eight singles and two pairs combinations to the winter games, the Weigel sisters and Miss Peppe also were placed on the Olympic team.

Sugar Bowl's Rivals Held Even Bets

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—A carnival atmosphere gripped New Orleans today, as one Sugar Bowl team moved in and the other put on finishing touches for the New Year's Day classic at its home camp in Baton Rouge.

Texas Christian University's powerful Horned Frogs, led by "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh, arrived this morning and worked the traveling kinks out of their limbs during the afternoon.

The L. S. U. Tigers went through their paces on their home field and will not depart for New Orleans until Wednesday morning, arriving a few hours before game time.

The Frogs were jubilant upon finding clear, crisp weather and expressed hope that the battleground would be firm and dry.

Capacity Crowd.

Already several hundred fans from Texas and other States are here. Officials of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, which is sponsoring the game, said the stadium would be jammed to capacity, with every ticket sold. A crowd of at least 35,000 was expected.

Betting commissioners were offering 5-6 and take your choice, while wagering among individuals was on an even basis, with money plentiful on both sides.

Ticket scalpers were active, but as yet were not receiving exorbitant prices for their prized tickets. Some sales of $3.50 tickets for twice their cost were reported.

L. B. "Dutch" Meyer, T. C. U. coach, said the hopes of his team for victory over the Tiger lay in cold weather, and that "all I hope is it doesn't rain."

Then Meyer turned back to the S. M. U.-T. C. U. contest that sent Southern Methodist to the Rose Bowl.

The Greatest Game.

"I believe our game with S. M. U. was the greatest game ever played," Meyer said. "The statistics showed that we had a little the best of it. But they don't pay off on statistics. It took a miraculous catch of a pass to beat us that day. As luck would have it, Lawrence, one of our greatest pass defenders, had been taken out of the game just before the pass that beat us was completed.

"With Lawrence in there, I doubt if the pass would have been completed, because he is one of the best I have ever seen breaking up passes."

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

THIS is the time of year when this department brings out the product of its own inventive genius—my patent-protected, two-ply superheterodyne crystal ball, wired for sound—which permits me to peer into the immediate and distant future and perceive exactly what will take place in 1936 in sports; at least what to the best of my imagination will take place.

POVICH.

So, I give you what the crystal ball gives me:

Baseball—The Red Sox winning the American League pennant as the direct result of the slugging of Jimmy Foxx and the added pitching strength of Johnny Marcum. The Tigers, with their pitching faltering, make a fight of it until late August. No other club is a serious contender. In the National League the Cubs lead from start to finish and beat out the Giants and Cardinals in a common gallop. Aided by the short left-field fence in Boston, Foxx leads all the American League hitters and Arky Vaughan takes a long lead to top the National in batting. Washington finishes at the bottom of the first division.

Boxing—Joe Louis knocks out Max Schmeling in the fifth round and Jimmy Braddock in the fourth to win his way to the world championship. Jack Dempsey's White Hope tournament proves hopeless and Al Delaney, who would have no part of it, looms as the only Nordic with even a chance of beating Wilson. Barney Ross beats Jimmy McLarnin to retain the welterweight crown and Jock McAvoy knocks out Babe Risko again to take the middleweight title.

Racing—Marshall Field's Tintagel proves he is more than a sprinter and beats Red Rain in the Kentucky Derby and two weeks later wins the Preakness from Memory Book. In California, Discovery unlooses his famed stretch rush to overtake Psychic Bid and win the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, a race in which the unsound Cavalcade failed to get to the post. Like all recent Derby and Preakness winners, Tintagel breaks down and is unable to campaign beyond midsummer.

Golf—Johnny Revolta comes into his own among the professional brigade and wins the U. S. Open from Horton Smith, Henry Picard and Paul Runyan. Lawson Little repeats in the British and U. S. Amateur to score his twin triumphs for the second year in a row, and an American professional, as yet unidentified, but resembling Runyan, wins the British Open.

Tennis—Donald Budge is the only American to win a singles match against the defending British team in the Davis Cup finals but the doubles team of Allison and Van Ryn triumphs, America losing, three matches to two. Budge comes home to lose the National Singles to Fred Perry, of England. Helen Wills repeats her triumph at Wimbledon by beating Helen Jacobs in the finals and refuses again to compete for the United States women's title.

Football—Minnesota is the only major team to emerge from the season unbeaten and untied; declines the Rose Bowl invitation, and Pittsburgh accepts as the Eastern representative. George Washington fails to produce a successor to Leemans and Georgetown's sophomore team of last year is "tops" in the Washington area. Guckeyson, of Maryland, gets an All-American berth. Selah!

In Short—

The Yankees are expected to make one more gallant bid to buy Buddy Myer from the Nats for cash approaching $150,000 . . . and Clark Griffith is less astute than he always has been if he doesn't take that sum for Myer, who, in truth, is older than Lazzeri . . . but better preserved . . . The Indians turned down flatly a trade broached by Washington in which Cliff Bolton was offered in an even exchange for Frankie Pytlak . . . but Griffith is still intent on procuring Shortstop Roy Hughes, of Cleveland, and Bolton may figure in the outgrowth of that deal . . . 1936 contracts will go out to the Washington players this week, with only Buddy Myer and Buck Newsom due for increases . . . No dividends will be declared at the meeting of Washington club stockholders scheduled for a week from Tuesday, inasmuch as the Nats were the poorest drawing club on the road in 1935 and the sixth worst drawing card in home games.

Ring Show Off Until 3 P. M. Tomorrow

A NOBLE experiment in fisticuffing was arranged yesterday by Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn when they postponed the boxing show scheduled for last night until 3 p. m. New Year's Day.

The card will be held intact, with an eight-round main event between Johnny De Foe, of New York, and Cowboy Howard Scott, Texas featherweight, heading the program.

An innovation, in the form of a battle royal, has been added to the card. In the free-for-all, five or more colored battlers will have it out in the same ring at the same time under the ancient rules of battle royaling.

Both Scott, who has been on the scene for more than a week, and De Foe, who arrived yesterday after being snowbound in Delaware over Saturday night, welcomed the postponement. They feel the extra training time will enable them to reach an even finer condition than they already have achieved.

Cites Two Draws.

De Foe, declared by many one of the finest featherweight prospects of recent years, yesterday proudly cited recent draws with Sixto Escobar, world's bantamweight champion, and Moon Mullins, who soon is to fight for the right to contest the featherweight championship with Baby Arizmendi.

As originally announced, Eddie Burl will meet Tony Fernandez, a New York featherweight, in a six-round semifinal. In other sixes, Billy Landers will tackle Sammy Weiss, and Cary Wright is scheduled to swap swats with Eddie Guera.

Capital Pro Adds 71 for 139 Total as Pasadena Leader Cards 137.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 30.—Harry Cooper, aided by four birdies, added a par 71 to his 36 of the first round to hold the lead today through the second round of the Pasadena $4,000 Open tournament.

His 137 was two strokes better than Horton Smith, another Chicagoan; Wiffy Cox, Washington, D. C.; Ray Mangrum, Pittsburgh, and Harold McSpaden, defending Pasadena champion. Cox added a 71 to his 68 of the opening round.

Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.; Fred Morrison, Pasadena, and Ky Laffoon, of Chicago, who literally burned up the home nine with 30's, five strokes under par, were tied for third at 140. Laffoon, ready to quit at the turn, collected five straight birdies coming in.

Little Shoots 72.

Two champions toured the Brookside course, a trifle slow after yesterday's heavy rains, in exhibition play before a gallery of several hundred. Lawson Little, jr., British and American amateur, shot a 72, and Sam Parks, jr., Pittsburgh, National Open champion, who failed to qualify with a dismal 78 first-round score, was three strokes better for the 18 holes today. Little did not enter the tournament.

The championship round over 36 holes will be played tomorrow, with the 60 low scorers eligible.

Squad Works In Tropical Weather

By Lewis F. Atchison.
A Staff Correspondent.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 30.—Posing, persistence and perspiration marked the opening day's workout of the Catholic University football squad here in preparation for the post-season Orange Bowl game with Mississippi on New Year's Day.

The posing—for the still cameras and newsreels—took place prior to the morning workout, the first that the Cardinals have had since they left snow-covered Washington. Limbering-up exercises were followed by light drills consisting of throwing the ball around and signal practice.

The persistence came in the afternoon workout, which was really such, in which Coach Dutch Bergman sent his charges through drill after drill until they had become as near letter perfect as might be expected at this stage of the game. The perspiration was present all day as real tropical weather prevailed after a slight cold snap.

Carroll First "Casualty."

The first Catholic U. "casualty" was reported at the afternoon workout when "Irish" Carroll, the Cardinals' star halfback, made his appearance with a bandaged nose. Asked what had happened, he replied, "Sunburn," but he had suffered a minor injury in the morning practice.

Meanwhile, Coach Bergman went ahead with his plans to place Carroll in the star role, and it is expected that his sensational ground-gainer will be matched in an individual duel with Rad Rodgers, the Mississippians' All-Conference halfback. The Southerners' recent loss of Clarence Hapes, 225-pound fullback, forced a shift in their starting line-up and Rodgers is now expected to get the opening call at fullback, with Dave Bernard at quarterback and Ray Hapes and Ned Peters at the halfback positions.

Duffers Will Have Privacy on No. 1 Tees; Chicago Is Planning Peep Proof Screens

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Elmer Dubb, who is sure he can hear a chorus of snickers every time he tries to smack out his first tee shot in a friendly golf game, soon may get as much privacy as he gets when he takes his Saturday night bath.

Under a plan conceived by Tom Walsh, golf director of the Chicago Park district, Elmer will be protected from snickering critics on that dreaded first tee by a peep-proof screen. As an txperiment, Walsh plans to erect the first peep-proof screen. As an experiment, Country Club, public fee course where he serves as club professional. By the time the next summer season is in full swing, Walsh hopes to have screens placed around every starting tee of the municipal courses.

"After talking to hundreds of golfers and spectators," explained Walsh, "I have come to the definite conclusion that thousands shun the game principally because they are afraid of making fools of themselves on the first tee. It is true of women, especially, even at exclusive clubs. They dread to step up to the starting tee for fear that someone will laugh at their form. Even some of our best golf professionals tell me they would welcome a peep-proof screen so they could do all the puttering about they want to before driving off from the first tee. At public courses, you generally find from 10 to 50 people sitting back of the first tee, who, in the minds of the person attempting to hit the golf ball, are waiting there to enjoy his or her discomfort."

Several professional stars often have confided their nervousness in hitting the first tee shot.

"I usually am more nervous then the worst duffer," said Bill Burke, former National Open champion.

Douglas Fairbanks, veteran film actor, said he suffered his worst case of stage fright on the first tee in the British amateur several years ago.

"After facing thousands of people," Fairbanks said later, "I was frozen stiff when I tried to tee off with everyone watching my stance and swing."

Lawson Little, who scored his second double of amateur competition last season, once said he felt sorry for any golfer trying to make his first tee shot. At the National Professional Golf championship at Oklahoma City last fall, Walter Hagen met Johnny Revolta and decided to rattle him on the first tee.

"Guess I'll beat you, John, say about 4 to 3," mused the Haig. "How's that?"

Later, as the match progressed and Revolta beat Hagen on his march to the title, Hagen remarked: "Well, I'll be——. John was so rattled on that first tee that he didn't even hear me ribbing him!"

Lynch Rides To Surprise Triumph

Ilchester Is Second and Whippercracker Is Third in Test.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., Dec. 30. (AP).—The fifth race, a claiming affair at a mile and a sixteenth, headed today's card and resulted in a surprise triumph for the Texas invader, Red Roamer. Jockey Jimmy Lynch, who recently arrived from the Lone Star State with the stable, completed a double astride the $14.80-for-$2 shot, which, scored with ease by two lengths over J. E. Smallman's heavily favored Ilchester.

Another Texas campaigner, A. G. Tarn's Whippercracker, was a hard-luck third. This fellow probably was best. He overcame bad luck at the start and missed the place by a scant head. Red Roamer negotiated the mile and sixteenth in the good time of 1:44 flat.

Idle Along had the early speed of the seven-horse field of 3-year-olds and upward. Sammy Renick shot the filly around the first turn daylight in advance of Red Roamer, upon which Lynch was sitting tight Ilchester was a good third.

Red Roamer to Front.

The positions did not change until midway of the final bend, where Red Roamer forged ahead and Ilchester took second position from the fading Idle Along. Bobby Watson rode his mightiest astride the favorite, but Lynch had plenty of horse under him. Whippercracker easily overtook Idle Along for the third end of the purse.

Waithe Wright, now hopelessly out of the riding race with Apprentice Stevenson for the 1935 American jockey title, guided the $7.40-for-$2 shot Minton to that gelding's second straight success in the 6 furlong second contest. Lacking early foot, Minton had to come around the leaders. He caught the pacemaking favorite, Lord Tournament, well inside the last furlong and had no trouble drawing away to a length score. Orinoco was a fast closing third, two additional lengths back. This was Wright's 192d victory of the year.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GAY BUBBLE, $9.00, $4.40, $3.30; FANLE, $8.30, $5.20; MAD DASH, $3.20.

GAY BUBBLE was much the best. She broke on top, assumed lead at once, displayed keen speed and easily held the race safe. FANLE was driven hard all the way and was next best. MAD DASH lacked early speed, but finished gamely. LADY GRANDACE closed gamely. GO NOW had plenty of early foot. SWEET SUSAN came from far back, ran good race. MISS PHILURA was never a factor. MISS ALINE had no mishap.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:40. Off at 2:43½. Winner, Shandon Farm's b. g. (6), by Anson—Mint Drop. Trained by J. J. Greely. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:12.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockey	Straight
MINTON	120	5	6	7	4½	2¹	1¹	Wright	$2.70
LORD TOURNAMENT	115	1	7	1¹	1¹	1²	2²	May	2.45

POMPEIUS	108	4	1	4¹½	7²	7²	7	Jackson	9.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINTON, $7.40, $3.30, $3.00; LORD TOURNAMENT, $3.90, $3.20; ORINOCO, $6.90.

MINTON broke slow and trailed field to the far turn, where he began to move up and, taken to outside, closed fast and won going away. LORD TOURNAMENT broke alertly, was sent to the front, showed good speed, but weakened suddenly in last sixteenth. ORINOCO came from far back under a weak ride. MOANE KEALA ran an improved race and is about ready to win. REGULA BADDUN stopped fast. POMPEIUS ran a miserable race.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $700; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start poor. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:14. Off at 3:19½. Winner, R. A. Firestone's ch. f. (2), by Stimulus—My Risk. Trained by S. W. Ward. Value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:12 2-5.

REDNECK	108	3	6	7½	10	10	10	Bryson	83.35

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIRISK, $16.20, $11.60, $5.80; EDRI, $14.40, $5.60; INFLAME, $2.70.

FAIRISK got away flying, was sent to the front, raced all opposition into defeat and held on gamely. EDRI was slow to break, went up very fast and was running strong finish. INFLAME was away poorly and closed a big gap. He might have won with a better start. OVER YONDER well up all the way, had no excuse. SOMEONE ELSE ran good race. LOTOFUS quit badly.

DAILY DOUBLE (FIRST AND THIRD RACES) PAID $131.60.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, driving. Went to post at 3:49. Off at 3:50. Winner, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' ch. g. (4), by Sickle—Kawa. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:13 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KAWAGOE, $5.10, $3.90, $3.10; TIGHT WAD, $6.00, $4.00; FLOWERY LADY, $5.30.

KAWAGOE, on his good behavior, broke well in motion, raced LADY PAL and SCREEN into defeat in the first half and then drew away easily. TIGHT WAD, away slowly, worked his way up and finished with a rush. FLOWERY LADY trailed far back to stretch, closed gamely but lacks a longer route. LADY PAL got away fast, showed speed, but tired badly at end. SCREEN was hard ridden all the way. DIVERTING was never a factor.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:20½. Winner, L. and O. Odle's ch. g. (5), by Windair—Peone. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:44.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED ROAMER, $14.80, $7.30, $4.90; ILCHESTER, $3.60, $2.80; WHIPPER CRACKER, $4.10.

RED ROAMER was hustled along in early part, finally made IDLE ALONG stop, then drew away and won nicely in hand. ILCHESTER was allowed to drop back a bit in early part, came wide entering stretch and just lasted to save the place. WHIPPER CRACKER broke slow, came with a rush and might have won with better racing luck. IDLE ALONG was sent to the front going into the first turn and stopped badly after showing good speed for six furlongs. DEAN SWIFT had no excuse. OLD JUDGE was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:52½. Winner, A. G. Weston's blk. f. (3), by Wrack—Boony Belle. Trained by W. Mitchell. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:40 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STARRY NIGHT, $27.20, $10.80, $8.70; HURRAY, $4.20, $3.20; PROHIBITION, $7.60.

STARRY NIGHT followed pace to the far turn, where she ran into lead, drew away, but tired at end. HURRAY moved up very fast and was closing on the winner. PROHIBITION was kept on inside around turn. PUN made a game effort.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:25. Off at 5:28. Winner, H. Long's ch. g. by Chance Play—Mary James. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:45 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHANCE KING, $11.00, $5.70, $4.10; FOUR SPOT, $9.50, $5.10; BIG GAWK, $3.30.

CHANCE KING well ridden. He was sent to the front going into first turn, was eased back when FOUR SPOT ran into lead, then was taken to the outside and closing with a rush, won in final stride. FOUR SPOT was rushed into lead and was used up setting the pace. BIG GAWK finished very fast. JOHNS BIRTHDAY was ridden with poor judgment, being up and back. OUR ADMIRAL ran his race. EL PUMA was weakly ridden through the stretch.

At the Post . . .

Tropical Park, Dec. 30.

Dear Al:

After breezing along in great style since this meeting began, Bennings, Inc., faded out today and for the first time failed to put across a winner. Sic 'Em, my good thing, ran like the dog he probably is and several others in which I had much confidence ran as if they were dragging Joe Holman. The much-advertised tropical sun returned to serious action today, but it failed to wipe the scowl off Clocker Mike's face. He "got his load" Saturday, but he dropped it today and Mike is not a pleasant loser. However, there's only tomorrow's card and then a new year rolls in. We will start with a brand new slate, that is, if there is the price of one available. I am not a student of mental telepathy, but as I write this I have a feeling that Mike is hanging around for supper money. Dave Herman, The Post's golf writer, is vacationing hereabouts and was at the track today. I heard Mike try to arrange to meet him at 7 o'clock, which had all the earmarks of a "buy-my-dinner" angle. However, Dave tactfully insisted that the time be 9 o'clock.

BILL.

First race—Old Ironsides, second in his last start in Maryland, has been working well hereabouts and may take the measure of the highly regarded Reigh Tetrarch. The latter ran well last out and is dangerous. Sangal for the show award.

Second race—Wedding Ring gets in with 117 pounds, but I'm going to string along. This one is in rare form and, while preferring an off track, can go on a fast course when the right money is down. Creole Bird ran a nice second last out and will be in the thick of the battle here. Jim John to show.

Third race—Maj. Greenock and Sylvia G. seemed detsined to fight it out for the chief award in this sprint. Both are on razor edge. Lum Joy met with some interference in that most recent effort, but finished third. Clear sailing tomorrow may find this one surprising.

Fourth race—Maid of Arches, with Litzenberger to do the booting, will be hard to beat in this field. The filly earned her way in Maryland. Vote Boy and Jake Blieden to take cae of the place and show.

Fifth race—Tightwad has been assigned the saddle services of Wayne Wright. This one has a stretch punch that should not miss in this company. Dancing Cloud appears to be best suited of the others. Gallant Miss should make another money appearance off that last.

Sixth race—Tolimata threatened several times during the Maryland season. Gets in this affair with a mere 103 pounds and Jackson, the ace apprentice, to ride. I'm going to string along. Belle Fille and Queen Vic for the minor awards. Clocker Mike likes Doris B.

Seventh race—Colorist has been fairly consistent at this meeting and deserves the top pick in an open race. Black Watch and Lone Hand to complete the money picture. The last named may have been short in that last.

Business Gain Of 10 to 15% Seen for 1936

Favorable and Adverse Factors Are Listed by Credit Executive.

New York, Dec. 30.—A net gain of 10 to 15 per cent by American business will be registered during 1936, Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, declared today.

Admitting a group of adverse factors, he pointed out that they would be overbalanced by a weightier group of favorable factors. His analysis encompassed eight conditions and trends, which follow:

FAVORABLE.

1. Bank loans are available at low interest rates.
2. Increased sales volume can offset some of the added production cost arising from recent legislation by lowering the unit allocation of such cost.
3. Business improvement will increase the psychological improvement and this will aid in the stimulation of consumer buying.
4. Low inventories will mean a large replacement demand, but inventory accumulation may not be serious until 1937.
5. The capital goods industries will show added activity after the encouraging start in 1935.
6. Agricultural income will continue to improve and should be about $1,000,000,000 higher in 1936.
7. Increasing pay rolls mean increasing purchasing power, with increased dividends to investors as a result of the general benefits that coincide with an upward trend.
8. The unemployed should be reduced by some 3,000,000 who will be reemployed during 1936 by industry.

UNFAVORABLE.

1. The staggering amount of excess reserves has inflationary possibilities of a high extent.
2. Rising price levels bring maladjustments among various sections of the economic structure similar to the industrial-agricultural maladjustments of the '20s.
3. The uncertainties attendant upon a Congressional session, with the bonus and Townsend plan as examples, will be a restraining factor. The Supreme Court decisions may also have some effect.
4. Overanticipation of ability or desire to purchase may cause producers to overexpand production.
5. Money uncertainties are an unfavorable factor, with part of Europe nervous about the gold standard.
6. The constitutionality of the A. A. A. program is to be decided shortly and that may upset the processing tax method of increasing farm income.
7. Tariff problems, stock market speculation, higher taxes are factors that can cause some degree of recession.
8. Unbalanced budgets—private or governmental—will not be a thing of the past because the relief problem is still far from complete solution.

Steel Output For This Year Top Since 1929

World Production 96.5 Tons, Gain of 20% Over 1934.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Dec. 30.—The magazine Steel said today that the world production of steel in 1935 was the highest since 1929.

The world production for the year amounted to 96,500,000 gross tons, the magazine said. This was an increase of about 20 per cent over the 80,269,000 tons made in 1934 and almost double the 49,721,000 tons of 1932.

The United States produced 33,700,000 tons, or 35 per cent of the total. Germany was next with 16,000,000 tons; Russia third with 12,000,000 tons. Great Britain produced 9,900,000 tons and France 6,165,000 tons.

World production of pig iron was placed at 71,770,000 tons, compared with 61,550,000 tons in 1934 and 38,968,000 tons in 1932. The United States led in production with 20,700,000 tons.

Gift of Life Policies Totals $2,000,000

New York, Dec. 30.—Life insurance policies totaling more than $2,000,000 were given as New Year's presents to employes of the Commercial Solvents Corporation today. Amounts of the individual policies were based on wages earned, the lowest policy being for $1,000. All the 1,400 employes of the corporation and its subsidiaries, the Commercial Molasses Corporation and the Resinox Corporation, received the policies.

Employes in the corporation's plants at Terre Haute, Ind.; Peoria, Ill.; Harvey, La.; Westwego, La.; Agnew, Calif.; Sterlington, La., and in the corporation's offices and warehouses located in leading cities throughout the country shared in the gift.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Close Higher Despite Large Cash Sales; Bonds Firm; Francs Strong.

New York, Dec. 30.—Stocks, bonds and commodities moved forward in moderate trading, to give a good last word to the last full day's serious trading of the year. On the stock exchange, at least, some of tomorrow's trading hours will be reserved to expression of thankfulness and hope. Turnover in stocks of around 1,700,0000 shares was the smallest in over a week. Closing prices were near the best. May wheat ended with 1¼ cents gain at 100⅝ cents a bushel.

The volume of sales for cash came up to expectations. They made up a goodly portion of the total transactions and lent point to the common observation of brokers in recent trading that sales for the establishment of profits and losses for income tax purposes were a dominant part of the market. Sales of stock made today in the regular manner—for delivery two days hence—naturally would not figure on this year's transactions, as the delivery date governs. Some of the regular delivery sales probably were in the nature of profit taking, because at least taxes on them won't have to be paid until 1937.

Looking to One Side.

Brokerage opinion in general is bullish. Credit is given political influences which promise to grow rapidly with the convening of Congress, to blossom in the summer with the Presidential nomination, and to show fruit in the autumn with the election. However, the feeling now is that nothing is in sight radical enough to overcome the forward propulsion of improving business. In many minds the higher taxes that will begin to operate next year—the corporation and individual income tax rates, the social security levies and possibly an extra imposition to take care of a bonus—are more important as an influence on stock prices than are mere political possibilities.

Agitation over a bonus is now leaving the financial district cooler than it previously has done. One reason is the growing realization that after all we are operating on faith money, and that even payment of a bonus with greenbacks would not change anything much except to anticipate an obligation due in 1945 in any event. Merely because business has picked up in the face of many unsound economic policies and in spite of a managed inconvertible paper currency, many seem to think that it will continue indefinitely so to do. Even the pessimists are inclined to believe that things can run along for another year or so without a showdown.

Foreign Exchanges Firm.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Year-end repatriation of funds for window dressing purposes made itself felt in the franc market today, which also was favorably influenced by the Laval victory on Saturday. The price of future francs improved sharply, and the quotation for spot exchange rose to an extent permitting the cancellation of several gold engagements which had been made tentatively at the close of last week.

These deals could be "undone" because they had gone little further than the sale of dollars in Paris and arrangements for insurance; the price of exchange today permitted repurchase of the dollars at a profit. The call money market, usualy mildly influenced by withdrawal of foreign bank money at the year end, was not affected today because so little foreign money remained in that market.

With the air at the year-end filled with reviews of the past year's performance (the tone of which usually is cheerful) and of hopeful predictions for the future, less than usual attention is given to actual trade statistics. For that reason their influence on market prices usually is not great. The week-end and today's batch contained nothing of outstanding importance. Stiffer silver prices abroad, the temporary success of the Laval ministry in France in winning another vote of confidence, a noteworthy absence of belligerent outbursts from the diplomatic front of the war zone and the winter weather at home were calculated to give a little back stiffening to markets.

Seasonal Slack.

This week the steel industry, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute's estimate, will recede further to 46.7 per cent of capacity, against 49.5 per cent last week. A year ago the industry was operating at 39.2 per cent. Year-end shutdowns and slackness are usual for the steel trade, and the base from which to expand operations next year is comparatively high. From most of its chief consumers the steel industry is confident of better buying in the next few months than was seen a year ago.

While activity may gather way in some of the heavy industries, the coming month promises seasonal recession for many of the consuming trades. Shopping is not especially active in January in the cities, rural districts become more isolated, and speculative markets have to feed on what they can find between hay and grass.

December Trading.

Stock turnover this month on the Stock Exchange promises for the 25 trading days to amount to about 46,000,000 shares, the largest for the month since 1931, when volume was in excess of 50,000,000 shares. The highest on record for December was 92,840,000 shares, in 1928. Turnover was about 10,000,000 shares less than in November, partly because of the holiday influence and the tendency of profit taking to increase. The best day this month was the 4th, with 2,964,000 shares. Stock prices went through an unusual range, and are ending the month in both grand divisions of industrials and rails at levels virtually unchanged from those at the beginning.

Tax Burden.

A point is made by the head of United Endowment Foundation which might well be borne in mind. Exception is taken to the deceptive methods in use to compare the tax burden of this country with that of, for example, Great Britain. Instead of figuring the matter on the basis of taxes actually levied, the proper figures to use should be the expenditures of the Government. In Great Britain the two figures would be about the same, since the budget is balanced. Here we merely postpone taxes for a while by borrowing, but, as the Endowment Foundation finds, "the burden is there, irrespective of how the items are manipulated in the bookkeeping." That means the American's tax burden is now more than 30 per cent of the national income, or considerably greater than that of the British taxpayer—and it is growing mightily.

Helping.

It is rather sad to note that almost on the same day that the American Bankers Association took steps to devise ways to carry out the Administration's expressed desire for the banks to take over the banking functions of the Government, the RFC, through its ambitious chairman, Jesse Jones, announced a new policy designed to put the Government permanently into the banking business and, eventually, in the ownership and control of American industry. Great Northern shareholders all are feeling pretty well over the ability of the road, on its increased traffic and efficient operation, to show some real earnings for the stock, but Mr. Jones proposes to give them a little extra by cutting down fixed charges on a refunding bond issue. That may look pretty fine until the shareholders find Mr. Jones has taken their railroad away from them.

Pepco Honors Brooks in Rise Of Power Use

Domestic Goal of 1,000 Kw. Per Year Estimated in November.

Dr. William McClellan, president of the Potomac Electric Power Co., was the host last night at a dinner at the Willard Hotel to the directors, officers and heads of departments to celebrate the attainment of the goal fixed at the beginning of the year of an average use of 1,000 kilowatt hours per year per domestic customer. Domestic customers include residences and farms only. The average use throughout the country for this class of service is approximately 663 kilowatt hours.

The guest of honor was Harold A. Brooks, under whose direction as commercial manager the company achieved an average consumption of electricity by such domestic customers in November amounting to 1,002 kilowatt hours per annum.

In recognition of the results attained by the company in the use of electricity, the board of directors have elected Mr. Brooks a vice president of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

London Silver Up, Unchanged Here

By the Associated Press.

London, Dec. 30.—The price of silver in London strengthened today by 1 1-16 pence, to 22 1-16 pence, a standard ounce, equivalent to 48.99 cents a fine ounce in New York. Small offerings of spot metal were readily absorbed by Indian and speculative buyers.

Although brokers have established no quotation for future delivery of silver, the situation was regarded as more normal since the cancellation of several large selling orders and the resumption of buying by Eastern interests.

Bid Orders Issued On D. C. Utilities

Sale of stocks and bonds by Washington utility companies hereafter must be by bid, and at least two or three bidders must be financial houses not affiliated with the concern offering the securities for sale, under an order issued yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

The sale of such securities to company employes or to the public hereafter must be under terms previously submitted to and approved by the commission, the order provided.

The order applies to stocks, bonds or other forms of indebtedness that run for a period of more than a year.

The commisison has had power to issue the order for a number of years, but has permitted it to lie dormant. The new regulation will affect local utilities that have been marketing their securities through affiliates.

On The Air Today

YOU'LL be able to dance in a couple dozen cities tonight, if your imagination permits you to visualize the settings of the different bands you will hear over N. B. C. and Columbia nets. WMAL will be silent at midnight as usual, but WRC and WJSV will cover the country until 4 a. m.

In addition, WJSV brings a novelty at 4 o'clock in the afternoon called "The man in the street gives his New Year's resolutions"—if he has any. At any rate passersby on the sidewalks of New York, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles and Washington will have the opportunity to speak their pieces.

N. B. C.'s chief contribution to the day is a series of two-minute pick-ups by short wave from widely distributed points over the globe. The schedule runs something like this:

11 a. m.—New Year's bells from Manila, WMAL.

12 noon—Arrival of 1936 in Bangkok, Siam, WRC.

1:30 p. m.—New Year in Bombay, WMAL.

4 p. m.—Bells of Kremlin from Moscow, WRC.

5 p. m.—New Year's bells from Finland, WRC.

8 p. m.—Arrival of New Year's in Iceland, WMAL.

10 p. m.—Arrival of New Year's in Buenos Aires, WMAL.

11:59 p. m.—Trinity Chimes, WRC and WMAL.

At 2 a. m. WRC contributes 15 minutes of ceremonies of the AdAmAn Club atop Pikes Peak.

At 6 p. m., WJSV airs its international quarter hour for the day with a bit of atmosphere of the Bal Tabarin, in Paris.

From 10:30 to 11:30, WRC broadcasts the Cleveland Symphony. WMAL, as usual, will present the "Slumber Hour" until sign-off at 12:15.

New Year's Eve highlights:

Walter O'Keefe: In "McGillicuddy's New Year's Eve Party" with Case Loma Orchestra, WJSV, at 9.

Lawrence Tibbett: Sings songs of seven nations (to be short-waved to foreign countries), WJSV, at 8:30.

Kate Smith will make her first appearance January 13 on an N. B. C. net since her debut on Rudy Vallee's show almost five years ago. The occasion is a special one-hour sponsored program, with Kate, Howard and Shelton, Edwin Franko Goldman and Edwin C. Hill.

Graydon Walker walked into The Post Building Monday morning with a look in his eye that indicated he was both pleased and puzzled. Walker, as conductor of The Post's noon "Curbstone Queries," naturally listens to Vox Pop" Sunday afternoon on an N. B. C. net. "Yesterday afternoon," he confided, "I listened with my usual interest, and, so help me, there were at least half a dozen questions used that originated right here at my desk when Charlie Stofberg and I have scratched for "Curbstone material." Which proves, doubtless, that a good "trick" question or problem has a way of getting about the country. Graydon admits, with a slight blush, that he has been known to snitch a question from the Johnson-Belcher list.

Partner or Opponent?

Paradoxically, perhaps, the expert often appears at his worst in a game with three dubs. Actually, there is sound basis for this: Expert contract is so essentially a partnership affair that a player accustomed to close co-operation must feel lost when deprived of it. The dubs, on the other hand, never having known the meaning of co-operation, merely continue on their blithe, lone-wolf course with sublime (and too often justified) faith in the blind goddess.

South, dealer.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N.T.	Pass	2 N.T.	Pass
3 N.T. (final bid)

West opened his fourth-best spade and his partner put on the queen with something of a flourish. Declarer won the king, and led the king, queen and jack of hearts, West holding off until the third round, waiting for a directing signal from East. East was obliging. He discarded the nine of diamonds. West, like a trusting lamb, obediently led his diamond queen. Declarer let out a prodigious sigh of relief and spread his cards for 11 tricks.

West, noting that his partner, not declarer, held the vital jack of spades, sat in stunned silence. Not so East, however.

"Good heavens, man!" he bellowed, "why didn't you run your spade suit?"

"I was under the delusion," returned West icily, "that, since you played the queen to the first trick, you couldn't have the jack. Also, I was fool enough to believe your diamond signal!"

"That's the trouble with you experts!" East sneered, "always playing by the book. I was false-carding, and you fell for it!"

Association Protests Unshoveled Sidewalks

The Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Association voted last night to notify the District Commissioners of "the lack of enforcement of the snow cleaning law," at a meeting at the Logan Hotel.

The law obliges residents to clean snow off their pavements within 24 hours after the snow stops falling, or pay a fine.

Weather Conditions.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.
Washington, Monday, Dec. 30—8 p. m.

For the District of Columbia—Fair Tuesday, rising temperature in afternoon; Wednesday probably rain or snow and somewhat warmer; gentle variable winds Tuesday.

For Maryland—Generally fair Tuesday, probably snow or rain and warmer Wednesday.

Conditions.

The Atlantic storm is now centered about 40 degrees north and 60 degrees west, with lowest pressure about 29.20 inches, apparently moving east-northeastward. Pressure continues low northeast of Newfoundland, Belle Isle, 29.58 inches, and off northern Hudson Bay Chesterfield Inlet, 29.50 inches, and off the north Pacific Coast, Ketchikan, Alaska, 29.40 inches. Disturbances has developed over the northern Plains, Williston, N. Dak., 29.80 inches, moving southeastward, while another is centered near the mouth of the Rio Grande, Brownsville, Tex., 29.84 inches, moving northeastward. High pressure covers the Central valleys, Louisville, Ky., 30.34 inches, and pressure continues high over the Mackenzie Valley, Fort Smith, District of Mackenzie, 30.34 inches. During the last 24 hours there have been rather heavy snows in the Middle Atlantic States and along the southern New England coast. Light snows in portions of the western Canadian Provinces and rains in the Pacific States and southern Texas. Temperatures have moderated slightly in portions of the Central valleys, but they are falling over the Florida Peninsula, and over the Red River of the North Valley.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Resolved — By Harry J. Tuthill

1936! How time flies. What a lot of important knowledge we've absorbed since those days when everybody had the idea you could become a millionaire by writing a lot of zeros after the two on a two dollar bill.
Those were the days. I'll never forget how sorry I felt for people who thought the only sensible way to make money was to work for it.
What a lesson that was about not playing cards for money with strangers.
Well anyhow, one good thing about booms is that the customers have a lot of time to think between rounds.
That's why 1936 should be a top year. We realize that pulling rabbits out of a hat is a good show, but it isn't prosperity.

Year's Work Completed On Flood Control Dam

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Grafton, W. Va., Dec. 30.—Construction work at the Federal flood control dam just south of Crafton is starting on its second year. The $15,000,000 project is being constructed by the Frederick Snare Corporation and several subcontractors under the engineering department of the United States Army.

More than 1,000,000 cubic yards of concrete will go into the giant wall in 1936. Much of the first year was devoted to excavation.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Dec. 30.—William E. Hauver, teacher and athletic dircetor at Middletown High School, escaped serious injury when attacked by a bull on his farm. He is recovering at his home near Myersville.

Counties Agree To Take Over Railroad Line

Arlington, Fairfax May Use Abandoned Branches for Auto Road.

The abandoned right of way of the Great Falls branch of the Washington & Old Dominion Railway will be taken over by Arlington and Fairfax counties for delinquent taxes.

In Fairfax County the right of way, from 40 to 80 feet wide, will probably be converted into a new automobile road running to Great Falls. In Arlington that part of the old electric line which runs through Cherrydale will probably be used for widening Lee highway, which it parallels.

Action to insure this change was taken yetserday. The board of supervisors of Fairfax County adopted a resolution offering to take over the abandoned right of way in lieu of all taxes owed the county, rather than attempt to collect the delinquent taxes.

Adopts Resolution.

The Arlington County board adopted a resolution providing for the transaction, with similar conditions. County Treasurer Charles T. Jesse reported that the company was $41,008.57 in arrears in taxes. The county will also receive between $5,000 and $10,000 of the assets of the old company.

The Washington & Old Dominion Railway Co. had been in the hands of receivers for about two years. Several weeks ago it was sold to a new company, which made a final decision to abandon the Great Falls branch and operate only the division which runs from Rosslyn to Herndon, Leesburg, Bluemont and way stations.

The new company, called the Washington & Old Dominion Railroad, made the offer to both the counties to transfer to them the right of way of the Great Falls branch in lieu of paying back taxes on both branches.

Eight Miles Long.

In Fairfax County back taxes amount to $22,648.51. The Great Falls line in this county is about 8 miles long and extends from Franklin Park to Great Falls. The county will receive in addition to the right of way between $3,000 and $4,000 of the assets of the old company.

Acceptance of the right of way is subject to the approval of the judge of the Circuit Court in each county.

In Fairfax, with approval of the proposal, it is expected that the supervisors would immediately ask the State highway commission to include the Great Falls line in the State secondary road system.

Let Children Speak, Advice to Parents

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—A new adage—"When children desire to speak, adults should hold their tongues"—was advocated before the National Association of Teachers of Speech today.

It's author was the organization's president, Prof. Arleigh B. Williamson, of New York University.

He suggested that it be substituted for the old saw: "Children should be seen and not heard."

Williamson who has three children, also spoke his scorn of "The King's English" before the association's twentieth annual convention, declaring "the speech of the greater portion of Englishmen seems to be at a far lower level than that of the mass of Americans."

The association elected Maude Babcock, University of Utah, president. Others chosen included: First vice president, W. Hayes Yaeger, George Washington University.

Million Lien Placed On Associated Gas

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 30.—Another tax lien for more than $1,000,000 was filed today against a member of the Associated Gas & Electric Utility group, against which liens aggregating more than $60,000,000 have been filed during the last two weeks.

The latest lien, filed in United States District Court, against the National Public Utility Investing Corporation, described as "transferee of the assets of North American Development Co., Ltd., Transferee of Public Utilities & Financial Securities Corporation," was for $1,124,529.33. It included a claim for $609,338.12, additional income tax in 1929, a penalty of 50 per cent and interest at the rate of 6 per cent a year.

The Associated Gas & Electric Utilities organization was built up by Howard C. Hopson, a witness featured in the Senate Lobby Committee's utility investigation last summer.

U. S. to Get Uruguay Records at Moscow

By the Associated Press.

At the request of Uruguay, which has broken diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia, the United States has agreed to take over the archives of that government's legation at Moscow, Secretary Hull said yesterday.

He said American Embassy officials in Moscow would provide storage space for the Uruguayan records in accordance with general practice followed in such circumstances. Otherwise, he said, the American Embassy will perform only the disinterested functions which all governments extend to each other as courtesies in such situations.

3 Hurt as Rock Island Train Jumps Track

Gus Stemasberg, conductor, reported the injured as Mrs. E. Pipkin, El Reno, Okla.; Mrs. Minnie Taft, Norman, Okla., and Charles E. Watson, Saginaw, Mich. Watson, who said he suffered a burned toe, continued south on the train.

Stemasberg and George Hillman, engineer, said a broken rail caused the derailment.

Maryland Farmers May Ask Tax on Out-of-State Trucks

An undercurrent of revolt against the "disastrous" crowding of local markets with early Southern produce will break into the open this week when the Prince Georges County Farm Bureau considers the urging of a special tax on all trucks entering Maryland.

If the farm bureau is successful in obtaining legislative sanction on the proposed tax, it is expected States south of Maryland will retaliate with a reciprocal tax.

The question will be brought up for its first public discussion when the county farm bureau meets at Upper Marlboro next Saturday.

Hartwell Tucker, Oxon Hill (Md.) farmer, who will lead the discussion, said last night that outside trucks "were practically ruining local markets for Maryland farmers." He placed the blame, to a certain extent, "on cheaper labor that can be had in the South."

"Commercial hauling has increased to such an extent," he said, "that it is squeezing out other traffic. The State roads can no longer be maintained with the present gasoline tax. A real estate tax for the roads would be unfair when out-of-State trucks are causing much of the damage.

J. Raymond Ager has been elected master of Eureka Grange No. 177, of Chillum, Md., for the coming year.

Other officers chosen are Thomas Joy, overseer; Roy Matthews, chaplain; Mrs. Ella Q. Nalley, lecturer; Albert Miller, steward; S. S. Stabler, assistant steward; Miss Ruth Miller, lady assistant steward; Mrs. Mattie Ager, Ceres; Mrs. Roy Matthews, Pomona; Mrs. C. B. Smith, Flora; Thomas Miller, gatekeeper; Mr. Pickens, secretary, and Charles Miller, treasurer.

Organization of Oriole Lodge, Odd Fellows, of Hyattsville, for 1936 has been completed with the re-election of L. E. Cranford as noble grand; Francis Hitaffer, vice noble grand; Frank Groomes, recording secretary; Joshua Stedehouder, financial secretary; D. Hazen McLeod, treasurer, and George Fenwick, trustee for three years. Fenwick was named delegate to the convention, with McLeod as alternate. Installation will be held Thursday night at Odd Fellows Hall.

The annual Christmas party of the Decatur Heights Housekeepers' Club will be held tonight at the home of Mrs. Fred Williams.

Ruth Chapter No. 7, Order of the Eastern Star, Hyattsville, has elected Mrs. Norma Lynham as worthy matron, with James A. Crawford, worthy patron; Mrs. Bessie Faught, associate matron; Delvin Witter, asosciate patron; Mrs. M. Virginia Thompson, secretary; Mrs. Altha Jardine, treasurer; Mrs. Elvie V. Witter, conductress; Miss Marie Small, associate conductress, and George D. Johnstone, trustee for three years.

Elected officers, together with those to be appointed, will be installed next Monday. Initiation was held at a special meeting last night.

Miss Jeannette Padgett, of Hyattsville, has been installed as honored queen of Bethel No. 4, Order of Job's Daughters. Other new officers are Miss Elsie Greer, Anacostia, D. C., senior princess; Miss Esther Poole, Hyattsville, junior princess; Mary Jane Scott, Hyattsville, guide, and Miss Edith Meredith, Hyattsville, marshal. Miss Louise Coomes, retiring honored queen, assisted by other past queens, conducted the installation.

Brice Duckett, teller of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., Hyattsville, has been elected treasurer of the freshman class at the Washington College of Law. Duckett is a graduate of Hyattsville High School and the American Institute of Banking.

Mrs. Mittie Rohr has been elected president of the Alice Riley Bible Class of Berwyn Baptist Church, with Mrs. Margaret Smith, vice president; Mrs. Alice Hunt, treasurer, and Mrs. Della Millard, secretary.

C. of C. Elects R. S. Luckett In Alexandria

R. Samuel Luckett was elected president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon at King and Alfred streets. He succeeds Clarence J. Robinson, who served in that capacity for a year and declined re-election.

Lawrence E. Roland was chosen vice president; James T. Preston, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Ashby Ellmore, assistant secretary and treasurer. Mr. Preston, who served the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce as secretary and treasurer for over a quarter of a century, has been in ill health for the past year, and the position has been actively filled by Mrs. Ellmore.

Last week members of the press were asked to publish the dire need of assistance of Edward Doyle, 607 Pendleton steet, Alexandria, with the statement that Doyle was unable to receive assistance from local charities.

This statement has been challenged by the Alexandria United Charities, and also by the St. Joseph's Aid Society of St. Mary's Catholic Church. Representatives of these organizations claimed that the man has not asked for aid, and there are no restrictions in their rules to prevent giving him assistance.

R. T. Mathews, 41-years-old, giving Richmond, Va., as his home town, who was released on December 21 from custody on a charge of having 264 pints of liquor in his possession, was brought before police court yesterday charged by State ABC Inspectors Clyde Sanders and Smith with reckless driving, passing a red light, passing a stop sign, having no registration card and only one headlight.

He was fined $100 and costs and given 30 days for reckless driving; $25 and costs for passing the red light, and the same fine for passing the stop sign. He was acquitted of the other charges. Mathews noted an appeal to the corporation court and his bond was fixed at $1,000.

Mathews won his freedom in the first case after producing a bill of lading that he was en route to South Carolina with the liquor, and was supposed to leave town at once with it.

Duchess Elizabeth Suffering Pneumonia

Windsor, England, Dec. 30 (AP).—A bulletin issued from the residence of the Duke of York tonight revealed the Duchess of York is suffering from an attack of influenza and pneumonia, but it was said her condition was satisfactory.

The announcement was the first indication that the duchess had pneumonia. On December 19 it was said she was confined to bed for a few days with influenza and was making satisfactory progress.

Arlington Pays $21,122 Share For Boulevard

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 909. Clarendon, Va.

Bringing to a close its term of office, which expires at midnight tonight, the county board yesterday authorized the payment of $21,122 to the State highway department as the county's share in acquiring remaining rights of way for the completion of Lee Boulevard.

In accordance with an agreement between the State and county, the State appropriated $100,000 for rights of way and there is now every indication that during January bids will be asked for the construction of the boulevard from Lyon Park to the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Failing to approve the request made by Attorney Thomas Philips for the rezoning of a lot which adjoins the Woodrow Wilson School at Fort Myer Heights for general business, the board agreed to cooperate with the county school board in order that the land may be purchased for school purposes.

Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, informed the board that he would take the matter up with the school board during next week and then confer with the new board, which takes office tomorrow.

The board adopted a resolution offered by Lawrence W. Douglas, Commonwealth attorney, which provides that the commissioner of revenue shall collect a local license tax of $25 from all merchants operating slot machines which use nickels or slugs, and $5 for all penny machines.

An appropriation of $2,550 was ordered paid to Lyon, Inc., for the sewerage system in Lyon Village. The system becomes a part of the county system.

Approval of expenditures amounting to $48,413.08, of which $14,764.99 represents the monthly pay roll, was given by the board.

The new board will meet tomorrow at 9 a. m. in the courthouse to complete its organization, the election of a chairman and the appointment of a county manager.

With an 8-inch snow blanket to greet the residents of Arlington County yesterday, the county road forces under the supervision of Robert N. Walker, superintendent of roads, with a fleet of nine snowplows, worked for a night and day to clear the highways.

Early yesterday all main highways leading into Washington and Fairfax County were clear of snow and travel was easy. Later the plows cleared practically all side roads.

Travel on all hills was made safe through the use of sand, and no accidents were reported at the sheriff's office.

20% Gain Reported In Christmas Mail

By the Associated Press.

Nearly 20 per cent increase in Christmas mail was reported yesterday by Postmaster General Farley.

A "sampling" report from 12 large cities scattered all over the country, he said, showed business for Christmas week was 19.9 per cent greater than last year. In the 12 cities $4,449,941 was taken in during the week ended December 27, compared with $3,736,751 last year.

During the day, Farley gave a personal greeting to Postoffice Department workers, at a mass meeting in his reception room. At the same time he sent out a general acknowledgement of the efforts of postal employes throughout the country.

He wrote them that "I wish to compliment and at the same time extend my most sincere thanks to postmasters, supervisory officials, and all other employes for the diligent effort which they put forth to insure the handling of the holiday mail."

Red Cross Answers Appeal of Cripple

By the Associated Press.

Wausau, Wis., Dec. 30.—Jimmie Spiecher, 26-year-old crippled farm youth, was launched on what he hopes to be a literary career today because he wrote to President Roosevelt.

Methodically he pounded out on his new typewriter practice sentences like "the quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog," and grinned with joy as he told how it came about.

"Since 1929, when I was injured in an automobile accident, I have been paralyzed from the waist down," he said. "I wanted to do something to help support our family (he lives with his mother and two smaller brothers on a farm at Weston, near here), so I wrote to the President.

"I told Mr. Roosevelt about my condition and that I wanted to write and sell articles and stories, but I had no typewriter and no money to buy one. The President must have read my letter, because he notified the American Red Cross, and the national office told Mr. Frank L. E. Will, chairman of the Red Cross here, and they got me the typewriter."

Supervisors Oppose Proposal to Shift Funds to School System.

The board of supervisors of Fairfax County, Va., at its special meeting yesterday adopted a resolution opposing proposals of the county school board for changing the State laws.

In its last meeting the school board, in a conference with State Senator John W. Rust, adopted a resolution asking that all profits and taxes from the sale of liquor and beer under the alcoholic beverage control law be distributed to the public school system instead of to the general county fund. According to the distribution of such funds during the past year, the share of Fairfax County is approximately $1,000 a month.

According to the resolution adopted yesterday, the supervisors believe that no change should be made in the distribution of these funds. If the various counties desire to transfer these funds to the county school board, they stated that this could be accomplished by local resolutions. The board felt it should be the sole source of all funds for local expenditures.

The other change in the State law opposed by the supervisors was the request of the school board to raise the limit that can be borrowed from the State library fund for a single building project from $25,000 to $50,000.

The supervisors' resolution classed the request for the change in the law as "an indirect method of increasing the bonded indebtedness of the county, and such increase was overwhelmingly defeated in the recent bond issue election for a school building program."

The board authorized the purchase of new uniforms for the county police force. This will be the first complete uniforms purchased by the county for the police in about three years.

Harmon Roberts, of Indian Spring, Mount Vernon, Va., was re-elected president of the Woodlawn Horse Co. yesterday morning at the seventy-first annual meeting of the association in the Woodlawn schoolhouse. Other officers of the mutual protective association against horse thieves were A. R. Harrison, of Groveton, secretary, and A. Kirk Wilkinson, of Sherwood Hall, treasurer. Wilkinson was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, Frank Wilkinson, several weeks ago.

The organization, one of the oldest in Fairfax County, was founded October 10, 1865, for the purpose of protecting its members from the depredations of horse thieves active in lower Fairfax County in the days following the War Between the States.

Six Abandoned Schoolhouses Sold at Auction

Montgomery Past Masters Re-elect Kinsinger President.

Six abandoned Montgomery County schools have been sold at auction, Preston L. Snyder, supervisor of school property, announced yesterday. The six schools, each with approximately an acre of ground, were sold for a total of $2,586, subject to the approval of the county board of education.

The schools and their purchasers follow: Lewisdale, two-room, $985, Deets Day, of Lewisdale; Woodfield, $850, Joseph Duvall, of Woodfield; Snouffers, $250, Mrs. Mary G. Peter, of Rockville; Burdette, $265, Paul Reed, of Burdette; Kingsley, $300, M. Cooley, of near Clarksburg, and Kings Valley, $136, Leslie King, of Kings Valley. The last five are one-room school buildings.

Martin H. Kinsinger, jr., of Silver Spring, Md., was re-elected president of the Montgomery County Past Masters' Association at the annual meetin at the Masonic Temple in Silver Spring. Other officers are Thomas R. Peddicord, of Poolesville, and Bowan F. Erb, of Rockville, secretary treasurer. The past master's degree was conferred upon the following recently elected worshipful masters of the various lodges of the county: Montgomery, Rockville, J. Cullum Barnsley; Poolesville, Thomas R. Peddicord; Silver Spring, Charles E. Jones; Kensington, William L. Maddox, and Bethesda, Dennis C. Simmons. Preceding the meeting the annual banquet of the association was held.

Under the auspices of the Silver Spring (Md.) Chapter of the American Red Cross, a course in first aid will be held in the Silver Spring Fire Department Hall beginning Thursday. Twenty firemen have already enrolled in the course, which is open to all men of the community.
